Biggest Fleet Is Authorized; U. S. to Have 272 Warships

President Signs Super-Navy Bill

Notice Served on World Monroe Doctrine to Be Enforced.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the $1,156,000,000 naval expansion bill designed to give the United States the greatest navy in its history.

The program authorizes construction of the most powerful warships ever floated and is regarded in some diplomatic circles as America's warning to aggressive nations of the world that encroachment in the Western Hemisphere will not be tolerated.

Definitely scrapping the last of the naval limitation agreements, the net effect will be to increase American naval strength 20 per cent above existing authorizations.

The measure provides for construction of 46 combatant vessels, 26 auxiliaries and at least 950 planes to give the Navy an air force of 3,000 fighting aircraft.

Fighting ships provided for by the bill include:

Three super-dreadnaughts of not less than 35,000 tons and not more than 45,000 tons. The latter to be built if the President deems necessary.

Two 20,000-ton aircraft carriers which may be able to carry from 150 to 200 planes apiece.

Nine cruisers of 10,000 tons each with speeds of approximately 35 knots.

Twenty-three destroyers to be superior to any ships of their type, both in speed and gun power.

Navy of 272 Ships.

Completion of the program in six to eight years would give the United States a total fleet of 272 "under-age" men-of-war, including 18 capital ships, 8 aircraft carriers, 18 heavy cruisers, 28 light cruisers, 144 destroyers and 56 submarines.

In view of widespread demands that the United States maintain fleets in both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, it is regarded as entirely probable that numerous warships, scheduled to be replaced by new ships, will be retained. They would provide a nucleus around which to build an Atlantic fleet.

The bill as signed by the President states that this country would "welcome and support" an international disarmament conference, but Administration spokesmen in Congress have made it clear that the White House considers the present time inopportune and therefore will not take the initiative in that direction.

Vulnerability of other nations in this hemisphere to attack and the necessity, in the interest of American security, to be prepared to enforce the Monroe Doctrine by arms were given by proponents of the super-Navy as justification for the expanded building program.

Numerous official statements recently have indicated Administration fears that Latin America may be invaded by a combination of the "have-not" powers in search of raw materials, market and room for expansion.

The signed measure serves notice on the world that the full military and naval might of the United States will be thrown into action to defend the Monroe Doctrine.

Col. McCoach Chosen D. C. Commissioner

Harris & Ewing.
LIEUT. COL. McCOACH.

Lieut. Col. David McCoach, jr., one of the Army's most popular and capable engineers, yesterday was nominated by President Roosevelt to be District Commissioner succeeding Col. Dan I. Sultan, who has been ordered to command of the Second Engineers, Fort Logan, Colo. Col. McCoach will take over his duties here September 9.

A native of Philadelphia, he was chosen because of his superior record and the fact he is the senior engineer available for the assignment, the White House announcement stated.

Col. McCoach, who was with the Isthmian Canal Commission during the construction of the Panama waterway, last month was assigned as field investigator to determine the advisability of improving the Hudson River channel to Yonkers, N. Y., and the ship basin there.

In February he was in charge of the Army Engineers' hearing on the Navy's recommendation for widening and deepening the East River to permit great battleships and ocean liners to sail up the river to Long Island Sound.

Since 1936 he has been in charge of river and harbors work at New York City, and in the Mississippi flood last year acted as adviser to the district engineer in Memphis, Tenn.

During his tour of duty in New York two engineer districts there

Mexican Army Drops Cedillo; Rushes Troops

By the United Press.

Mexico City, May 17.—The government of President Lazaro Cardenas placed his adversary, Gen. Saturnino Cedillo—strong man of San Luis Potosi State—on the army retired list tonight and hurried federal soldiers into his state, where a revolt by his followers has been rumored for weeks.

The seventeenth infantry entrained at Chalco, State of Mexico, for San Luis Potosi to reinforce the nineteenth regiment, which left for the northern state yesterday. It was denied officially that air force precautions were being taken.

Rumors have persisted that Gen. Cedillo, former agriculture secretary, planned to head an uprising. He was assigned on April 1 to take over command of the Michoacan military zone, but did not.

The official announcement that the general had been retired said:

Place in Cabinet Is Reported Again Rejected by Eden

London, May 17 (U.P.).—Capt. Anthony Eden was reported tonight to have rejected Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's offer to reinstate him in the cabinet as first lord of the admiralty or colonial secretary, in the government shakeup precipitated by attacks on the slow pace of British rearmament.

Eden, who enjoys strong support throughout the country since his resignation as foreign secretary in protest against Chamberlain's "realistic" foreign policy, said he will not return to a government headed by Chamberlain.

It was said Eden might make a bid for the premiership and leadership of the Conservative Party.

Treasury Jobs Safe, Is Hint Of Roosevelt

Wants Independent Relief Accounting Continued by 3,400 Workers.

By Edward T. Folliard

President Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that he wants the Treasury Department to continue its independent accounting of emergency relief expenditures.

The House, in passing the Administration's lending-spending bill Thursday, voted, in effect, to abolish the jobs of some 3,400 Government workers—700 here and 2,700 in the field—who have been checking WPA and other emergency expenditures for the Treasury.

The House cut the appropriation for this work from $8,000,000 to $2,000,000 and explained that the smaller sum was to "liquidate" the work. The money, it was estimated, would last only until about September.

President Roosevelt said that this slashed appropriation created a problem, but he revealed that Treasury officials were conferring with Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Special Senate Unemployment Relief Committee. Byrnes also is a member of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, which now is holding hearings on the House spending-lending bill.

Byrnes said he favored leaving the accounting work with the Treasury.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee, said that Harry L. Hopkins, Works Relief Administrator, had testified that he was satisfied to leave the accounting work with the Treasury.

Previously there was a belief—particularly among the Treasury employes who feared loss of their jobs—that Hopkins wanted WPA to do all of its own accounting, with the Treasury double-check removed.

Taken together, the indications were yesterday that the 3,400 Treasury employes would hold on to their jobs.

Churches Are 'Country Clubs,' Babson Says of All but Two

By the United Press.

Dedham, Mass., May 17.—Roger W. Babson, national moderator of the Congregational Church, in a searing attack on modern religion, tonight branded all denominations, with the exception of the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches, as "country clubs."

The noted statistician, who earlier in the day had led a revolt of several hundred church leaders and ministers from the State convention here, said the "country club" denominations are "slipping badly" and the "time has now come for them to return to the old-fashioned principles upon which they were founded."

Emphatically asserting the revolt did not indicate a major break in the Congregational Church or the possible birth of a new denomination, Babson told the United Press:

"The Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches have stuck to their guns, while the other eight principal denominations have followed the world in keeping up with Lizzie and become social clubs.

"Religion is all right so long as you keep money out of it—keep it homely, simple and Christian. Just as quickly as you make a church a money-making organization, politics creep in and the essence of its fundamentals is lost."

'Squeal' Seen As Limerick Case Motive

Langdon Is Accused of Attempt to Conceal His Whereabouts.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Robert F. Langdon shot and killed Beulah Limerick because she was a "squealer" and the .25 caliber shell he later claimed to have found in a coffee cup in the Limerick kitchen was fired by a gun now linked to the murder by ballistics tests, a District court jury was told yesterday.

These are facts the Government intends to prove, said Assistant United States Attorney John J. Wilson as prosecution of the 44-year-old former policeman finally got under way.

In his opening statement to the jury of 12 men—selected only after a day and a half spent in examining 102 prospective veniremen—Wilson said he would show that Washington's now famous whoopee girl of the jazz age was slain in cold blood with deliberate and premeditated intent.

Surprise Witness Named.

At the same time, Wilson pulled the cloak of mystery from a much-discussed "surprise" witness and announced that Donald E. Boyer, never before mentioned in the 7-year-old case, was a milkman who served the Limerick home and heard the fatal shot early on the morning of New Year's Eve, 1930.

By Langdon's own admission, Wilson told the jury, it will be shown during coming days of the trial that the one-time "cop on the beat" knew the dead girl intimately and was frequently seen in and around the gaunt frame house where she lived with her brother and a friend at 18 Nineteenth street southeast.

Warning Is Charged.

It will further be shown, said the stocky prosecutor, that on the night of the murder, Langdon attempted to conceal his whereabouts by falsely reporting to his station house through the police patrol box system.

As members of the newly selected panel leaned intently forward in their chairs and appeared virtually to hang on his every word, Wilson declared he would produce evidence showing that Langdon once warned the Limerick girl not to discuss his visits nor tell fellow officers he knew her.

The President was in conference, with some Senators when William M. Stuart, Post stamp editor, went to the waiting room.

Steve Early, White House press representative, told Stuart the President was greatly interested in the 24-cent inverted airmail stamps, which were to be exhibited last night at a meeting of a local stamp club. The stamps that once cost 24 cents each, now sell for $5,000 each, $20,000 for a block of four.

"I have them in my brief case," said Stuart. They went directly to the President's desk, where official business was suspended while the President admired them.

Last night more than 300 persons turned out to view them in Thomson School and were addressed by Harllee Branch, second assistant postmaster general; Charles P. Graddick, superintendent of the air mail division; Lieut. James A. Edgerton, who piloted the first airmail plane, and William E. Robey, original purchaser of the stamps.

Hague Protests Given Cummings by President

President Roosevelt said yesterday he had turned over to Attorney General Cummings complaints made against Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President in 1936, and Representative O'Connell (Democrat), of Montana.

Rails Prefer Pay Cuts to Aid of RFC

Will Give Up U. S. Loans Rather Than Abandon Wage Savings.

Wheeler, McAdoo and Wagner Join Move to Refuse Aid.

By Sidney Olson.

The Nation's railroads, faced with a Congressional threat to shelve legislation extending them financial aid unless they abandon their proposal for a 15 per cent cut in workers' wages, will stand pat on their pay-cut program, The Post learned last night.

Railroad officials consider the wage cut they have asked more vitally necessary in their financial crisis than the Wagner-Steagall bill empowering the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make unlimited equipment loans to the carriers, it was said.

With the showdown scheduled for today, before the Senate Banking Committee, the carriers will not oppose threatened abandonment of the RFC bill if the issue is drawn flatly on those points.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, committee chairman, announced yesterday that representatives of the railway labor unions, of the railroads and of the RFC had been invited to present their views to the committee today.

House to Act Friday.

Wagner, Chairman Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and Senator William G. McAdoo (Democrat), California, took the floor yesterday to announce their support of the position taken yesterday by six Senators—that no rail aid bill which might "prop up the railroads' crumbling debt structure" should be passed if a wage-cutting campaign was to ensue.

This topped numerous developments in the struggle to tide the railroads over their crisis without injuring railroad labor.

Others were:

Unanimous consent was granted the House Banking Committee to take up Friday afternoon the House version of the RFC-railroad bill, with a two-hour debate limit.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee prepared to meet at 11 a. m., today, to consider whether to take up the Wagner-Crosser bill to set up a separate unemployment compensation system for railroad workers.

This committee also will decide whether a sub-committee shall con-

Night Cruise Boat Tears Big Hole in Alexandria Wharf

The excursion steamer City of Washington crashed headon into the Norfolk and Washington Steamship wharf at Alexandria last night, jolting 700 passengers returning from a moonlight cruise on the Potomac.

A large hole was torn in the dock but the boat escaped damage and returned to her Water street dock after dropping Alexandria passengers.

Capt. John Amring said the accident was caused by a "confusion of bells" and a stiff wind. He estimated damage to the wharf at "several hundred" dollars.

CHARLES JONES, for Governor.

GEORGE H. EARLE, for U. S. Senate.

Apparent Republican Winners

ARTHUR H. JAMES, for Governor.

JAMES J. DAVIS, for U. S. Senate.

Lewis Apparently Is Defeated In First Bid for Political Power

Only Kennedy, His Candidate for Governor, Still Has Slim Chance in Late Returns; Farley Wins Consolation With Earle.

By Robert C. Albright.

A test bid for State and national political power by John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization in Pennsylvania's maddest of primaries appeared lost early this morning.

But returns were far from complete and Lewis' C. I. O. entrant for the Pennsylvania governorship, Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, indorsed also by Postmaster General James A. Farley, was conceded a bare chance to overcome the State Democratic organization's early lead.

Kennedy was slowly cutting down the percentage lead of Charles Alvin Jones, the Pittsburgh attorney put up by the State organization against him.

But if early returns are sustained, Lewis has failed on every front in his first try for domination in politics, through the high stakes at issue in the Keystone Stone primaries.

Lewis' Senate selection, Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, appeared definitely out of the primary race. And Lewis' Republican choice, the man to whom it had been said he would throw his support if Kennedy lost, was badly beaten—the veteran Gifford Pinchot.

Postmaster General Farley only Tuesday had cast his lot with Kennedy, who is secretary-treasurer of Lewis' United Mine Workers.

But Farley was assured of a consolation prize, regardless of the fate of the Lewis entry. The chairman of the Democratic National Committee picked Gov. George H. Earle to win over the Lewis candidate for the Senate, Mayor Wilson. Earle apparently had a safe margin over Wilson.

The Gallup poll predicted Kennedy and Jones would run neck and neck, and it still was not too late for the C. I. O. candidate to cap late returns in an exciting finish.

Kennedy backers claimed the bulk of their strength in the C. I. O. mine strongholds had not yet been fully reported.

A prize of 36 electoral votes, a 30,000 State pay roll, 72 votes in the Democratic National Convention and 75 delegates to the Republican Convention were the sharply contested rewards of the victors in this three-cornered Democratic cat-and-dog fight and the all but overshadowed Republican contest.

But the Republican issues were hardly less tensely drawn or sig-

Winant Slated for Directorship Of International Labor Office

John Gilbert Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire and chairman of the Social Security Board, has received the Administration's blessing as candidate for the directorship of the International Labor Office, The Post learned yesterday.

Winant, 49-year-old assistant director of the Geneva organization, conferred with President Roosevelt yesterday and with Secretaries Hull and Perkins Monday on the question of his accepting the post as successor to the retiring director, Harold B. Butler.

Interest of the United States Government in his nomination virtually assures the selection of Winant.

His promotion to the highly important international position would tend to emphasize the concern of the Americas with problems affecting labor throughout the world. It would also probably bring the United States into more active cooperation in this sphere with other countries.

If the I. L. O.'s governing body does the expected and chooses Winant at next month's elections, he would become the first American to head the organization. The first director, Albert Thomas, was a Frenchman. Butler is English.

The only other candidacy yet announced is that of E. J. Phelan,

Governor Ahead By 300,000 Ballots

Senator Davis Is Given 442,849 to Rivals' 330,362 Votes.

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia (Wednesday), May 18.—Candidates bearing the indorsement of John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. fell steadily behind early today as returns from yesterday's primary voting piled up for the rival Democratic Pennsylvania primary slate backed by the State committee.

Meanwhile, 72-year-old Gifford Pinchot, whose fight for the Republican gubernatorial nomination also was a feature of the sensational primary campaign, conceded defeat by Judge Arthur H. James.

Taking the lead from the start, Gov. George H. Earle, Democratic State committee-indorsed candidate for the United States Senate nomination, ran up a big margin over Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia.

Jones Holding Lead.

Earle's running-mate, Charles Alvin Jones, of Pittsburgh, though showing less strength on early returns than did the Governor, held his lead over Thomas Kennedy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Jones is a lawyer.

C. I. O. Leader Lewis and U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey backed Kennedy and Mayor Wilson against the Democratic State Committee's ticket after a split between Guffey and the committee over the committee's slating of Jones for Governor.

Only the day before yesterday's balloting, National Democratic Party Chairman James A. Farley urged Pennsylvania Democrats to unite, in the interests of harmony in the November general election, or Earle for Senator and Kennedy for Governor.

Davis Piles Up Votes.

In the Republican Senatorial race, overshadowed by the Democratic contests and the Pinchot-James gubernatorial clash, veteran Senator James J. Davis pulled away to a long advantage over State Senator G. Mason Owlett.

Returns gave:

Democratic United States Senator—(4,962 of 8,075 districts)—Earle, 501,160; Wilson, 195,385.

These figures include all of Philadelphia and about half of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh).

Margiotti Runs Third.

Former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, independent Democratic gubernatorial candidate and chief charge-maker of a Democratic fight that knew no quarter, ran a poor third to Jones and Kennedy.

Landon Labels Roosevelt Foe Of Free Speech

He Favors It 'For His Side Of Case Only,' Republican Leader Declares.

By the United Press.

Chicago, May 17.—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican candidate for President, said today that President Roosevelt's actions make it clear "he is in favor of free speech for his side of the case only."

In an address before the Inland Press Association, Landon characterized the press regulation bill offered in Congress by Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, as a dire threat of censorship, and demanded that the President do something about the "violation of the spirit of the Bill of Rights" in Jersey City.

Landon said he did not believe Congress would take the Minton measure seriously, but added that "apparently it reflects the New Deal attitude toward the press of the country."

Attacks Hague.

"I'm afraid it may reflect the attitude of the President," he said. "The President's views have, no doubt, encouraged Senator Minton and others."

In his attack on Mayor Frank Hague's conduct of government in Jersey City, Landon demanded:

"If the President continues to wash his hands of this dangerous precedent in Jersey City, will he also stand by while Senator Minton 'Frank Hagues' the American press?"

Gridiron Guest.

"Up to this minute," Landon said, "President Roosevelt has said there is nothing he can do about the menacing limitation of decent public discussion in Jersey City. He says it's a local police issue. I think there is something the President of the United States can do about it.

"The Chief Executive must always furnish spiritual and aggressive civic leadership to the people of his country. By his attitude the President indorses this violation of the spirit of the Bill of Rights, and betrays the faith of the liberals in him."

Landon was a guest tonight at the annual Gridiron dinner at Lebanon, Ind., which also was attended by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana.

Earlier, Frederick A. Willis, of Columbia Broadcasting Co., and Boyd W. Bullock, of General Electric, said that private broadcasting facilities were open to the Government without cost.

A similar bill is before a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, and hearings on it are scheduled to be resumed today.

Johnston was guest of Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, at a luncheon, when Smith walked in. The veteran Senator patted his rival on the back while uttering his dire threat.

Getting Things Done for District Needs Hammering, Says Cottrell

ROBERT J. COTTRELL.

Reforms Move Slower Here, Trade Board Leader Observes, Than in Other Towns, But City Is Growing and Improvement Keeps Pace.

By Christine Sadler

If the Washington Board of Trade had its own work-song, the chorus appropriately could run: "Hammer, hammer. We'll just keep hammering on."

Other cities are able sometimes to rush through an emergency piece of legislation and to speed up the processes of government to meet the needs; but local District leaders never count on such.

"It's a hammering process with us. Sometimes it takes us 10 years and sometimes 25. With the Memorial Bridge, it was 40. Forty-five years ago, to be specific, the bridge committee of the board took some Congressmen out in a tugboat and showed them where the bridge was needed. When finally built, it was placed within 300 feet of the site suggested; but there was plenty of hammering in between the two dates," says Robert J. Cottrell, now serving his eleventh year as executive secretary of the Board of Trade.

Geared to Process.

Not that the board and its 4,000 members are the least bit pessimistic. They're geared to the process, and it has helped develop them into one of the most efficient and always-alert groups in the country. Each year they add an imposing list of accomplishments to their 49-year-old record. Already they're getting ready to start on the legislative program they want to get through the next Congress.

The program will center around District budget and fiscal affairs, which Cottrell says have been the biggest problems for the past several years. "The people have had to pay more and more. Our effort is to try for economies in the District Building and to keep taxes down," he declares.

Eventually, Cottrell believes, Congress will come around to paying "a more proportionate share of the cost of District government." He considers that $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 would be enough to stop the local grumbling and to ease the financial burden considerably.

Wants Auditorium.

Next year Cottrell hopes the program will also include a municipal auditorium large enough for conventions of groups as large as the American Medical Association or the American Library Association.

"The lack of such a building is costing us more than $10,000,000 a year," he estimates.

The Washington Board of Trade differs from the chambers of commerce in most cities in that it is open to lawyers, doctors, scientists and all citizens, as well as heads of businesses. One of its most illustrious members is Gen. John J. Pershing, who "pays his $12 a year regularly." At its monthly meetings an attendance of 1,200 to 1,600 is not unusual. On its 110 committees are experts and hard workers from every profession and section of the city.

Town Is Growing.

The business establishments of Washington have increased in proportion to the increase in population and are still growing, Cottrell says. "Washington is an unusual city, however. It is not a place where a businessman comes to get rich in a hurry. On the other hand, his profits do not suffer the terrific drops they might in highly industrialized areas," he asserts. "The Washington businessman is not a transient, as a rule, but one who intends to live here and build up slowly."

One of the gratifying trends Cottrell notices today is the movement of national headquarters of various businesses to Washington. He sees it as the natural result of the development of the city into the Government and financial center it is, and its increasing importance as an educational and art center.

On the subject of taxation for national headquarters, Cottrell believes the organizations that "make no special contribution particularly to the city" should be taxed, although he does not think this should apply to the Red Cross headquarters and the like. "The Board of Trade pays taxes," he reminds.

Cottrell, born in England, has lived in Washington for a number of years and is a naturalized American. He came here to attend the law school of National University and his first job was advertising. He is secretary of numerous citizens' committees, interested in boys' club work, and like to ride horseback. He's the father of a pretty 14-year old daughter.

On Friday—Robert V. Fleming, civic leader who has been boosted as the District's "choice for President," will be next in the "Working for Washington" series.

G.O.P. Will Lay 9 'Headaches' Before Voters

Questionnaire to Charge All Come From New Deal Administration.

Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.

Chicago, May 17.—The Republican program committee will lay "nine basic headaches" before American voters in a questionnaire designed to help shape party policy and principle in 1940, a party spokesman told the United Press tonight.

The program committee charges the "headaches" have resulted from the New Deal Administration.

The spokesman who disclosed the "basic headaches" said a tenth might be added before the questionnaire was submitted to the people through G. O. P. precinct captains.

Hunts "Nation's Pulse."

From these "face-to-face" discussions bteween party officials and voters, the program committee hopes to "feel the pulse of the Nation" and evolve into 1940 policy and program the sentiments of American voters.

The spokesman listed the "basic headaches" as follows:

1. The Government and peace.
2. The Government and foreign trade.
3. The Government and taxes.
4. The Government and deficits.
5. The Government and labor.
6. The Government and agriculture.
7. The Government and business.
8. The Government and relief.
9. The Government and social security.

A possible tenth point under consideration dealt with the Government and conservation, the spokesman said.

Threefold Objective.

The spokesman said the reason the "basic headaches" were listed as main points of the questionnaire was threefold.

1. First, to get the rank and file of Republican voters into the habit of thinking about and discussing governmental problems.

2. Second, to interest the voters in the Republican Party through this method of attempting to solve their problems.

3. Third, this method will supply Republicans with answers and comment with which they can convert New Dealers to the G. O. P.

The questionnaire was decided upon as a method of reaching the voters when the nine regional chairmen of the program committee of 215 met last week to plan an "audit of the New Deal."

The "headaches" which have been drafted to make up the questionnaire first will be submitted to the regional chairmen for their approval and suggestion and comment.

The Gallup Poll

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, May 17.—American public sentiment is almost evenly divided on the question, now being debated in the New York Constitutional Assembly, of whether States should conduct lotteries to help pay the cost of Government.

George Gallup.

Slightly more than half of the voters in a survey throughout the Nation oppose the principle on the ground that States should raise funds by any process even remotely connected with gambling, no matter how worthy the cause. The other half argues that local governments might just as well try to get a share of the millions of dollars which go out of the country every year for the Irish sweepstakes and other lotteries.

The issue is especially significant today as many State and local governments face the difficult task of raising money to help care for the growing ranks of the unemployed.

But the deadlock of opinion on the question indicates that if the drive for legalized lotteries extends to other States besides New York, it will probably cause a lively and dramatic controversy, with strong forces developed on both sides.

The survey on lotteries, which was conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, put the following question to voters in all walks of life:

"Would you favor lotteries in your State to help pay the cost of Government?"

The vote was:

Yes	49%
No	51

In a companion question the Institute asked:

"Do you think Government lotteries would produce an unwholesome gambling spirit in this country?"

On this question, too, the vote was closely divided:

Yes	51%
No	49

The survey reveals a most interesting sectional difference of opinion on the lottery issue. It found that highest opposition comes from the Mid-West and Southern farm areas. Voters there are against legalized lotteries by majorities of around six to four. Ballots from these sections were studded with comments indignantly rejecting the idea that the Government should even think of taking part in a gambling venture. In the urbanized New England and Middle Atlantic sections, however, and along the Pacific Coast, the majority of voters favor Government lotteries.

	Government Lotteries
	Favor	Oppose
New England	59%	41%
Middle Atlantic	58	42
East Central	45	55
West Central	39	61
South	37	63
Rocky Mountain	43	57
Pacific Coast	58	42

The lottery idea is much more popular among poor voters than among the well-to-do. Even though this method of paying the cost of relief might reduce the burden on taxpayers, the upper and middle income groups oppose it by approximately 55 per cent—chiefly on moral grounds. The lower income group is 55 per cent in favor of legalized lotteries.

Women reached in the survey were much more suspicious of the lottery idea than men. Six out of every ten women voted against legal lotteries, whereas men were about six to four in favor. Judging from comments, housewives fear apparently that their husbands may squander pay checks on lottery tickets. "Lotteries waste poor people's money," was the comment of one typical woman voter.

President Would Change Name Of Election Day to 'Citizens Day'

Suggests Ballot Date as Proper Time to Pay Taxes and Clear Up All Business With Government, as Well as to Vote.

The President yesterday told reporters they ought to write stories about changing the name of election day to "citizens' day"—a day set aside for all citizens to vote, pay their taxes and clean up all business with the Government.

Mr. Roosevelt said he wasn't advocating the idea, but had heard it discussed a lot and thought it would make an interesting story.

The idea originated in Australia, according to the President. He said he didn't know who was indorsing it, but the proposal might eliminate much doorbell ringing for Government statistics and might promote larger participation in voting.

When Mr. Roosevelt explained that taxes would be collected the same day under the plan, a reporter facetiously chimed in that this wouldn't help the vote turnout.

Another phase of the plan, the President said, entailed assessment of a $5 poll tax, which would be remitted to those who vote. He remarked this wouldn't be a bad idea. "Citizen day" proponents also have suggested that citizens use election day to supply the Government with important statistical data on changes in their business, crops, cattle conditions, whether they are renting or buying their homes, and similar information.

President Vetoes Aid to Contractor

President Roosevelt yesterday informed Congress that he believes the Federal Government in no way responsible for prolonging the carpenters' strike on the Library of Congress annex a year ago, in vetoing a bill which would have permitted McShain Co., the contractor, to sue the United States Government for $30,000 damage by reason of suspension of the work. The contractor contended Government officials did not make sufficient efforts to expedite settlement of the strike.

25 Pianists to Play.

Under the chairmanship of La-Salle Spier, the Washington section of the National Piano Playing Tournament held its auditions last week with 191 entrants. Hans Barth and Harold Morris, New York pianists, were judges. The 25 students who won highest honors will be presented in recitals Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week at 8 o'clock at the Washington College of Music. The recitals are open to the public.

Baton Rouge, La., May 17 (AP).—More than 3,000 strawberry growers, mostly members of the Louisiana Farmers Protective Association, massed at the capitol here today to demand legislative relief from distress caused by low prices.

Bill Setting Prison For Block-Booking Passed by Senate

By the Associated Press.

Film distributors could be fined $5,000 and imprisoned a year for engaging in block-booking under a bill passed yesterday by the Senate and sent to the House. Similar penalties would be provided for blind selling.

The measure, offered by Senator Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, passed the chamber on a voice vote.

Neely told the Senate that because distributors often required exhibitors to lease an entire block of films in order to show one which they desired, they were compelled to lease "bad pictures," even though patrons objected.

President Renominates Mathews to SEC Term

George C. Mathews, of Wisconsin, was nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday for another term as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Proposal to Free Mooney Approved By Sub-committee

By the Associated Press.

A proposal that Congress ask a pardon for Tom Mooney won the approval of a House Judiciary subcommittee yesterday.

Chairman Cellar (Democrat), New York, called for the sub-committee vote with the statement that he wanted to "push for action before the full committee."

The resolution would put Congress on record as believing that a pardon for Mooney would "re-establish the faith of our people in the administration of justice by law." It also would call on President Roosevelt to intervene with Gov. Frank Merriam of California in the interest of clemency.

House Will Get Fair Trade Bill Report Today

Unfavorable Finding Due on Heavy Sentences to Curb Crime.

By James D. Secrest.

The Palmisano fair trade practice bill, which has been assailed by local consumer organizations, will be reported to the House District Committee today by its judiciary sub-committee, Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, said yesterday.

McGehee said that he will report unfavorably two armed holdup bills which sought to impose heavy prison sentences for first offenses and the death penalty for second offenses as curbs on crime.

The sub-committee decided in executive session to report the fair trade bill to the full committee without recommendation, but to ignore the Smith measure, which goes a step further than the Palmisano bill in attempting to prohibit the sale of goods below cost.

Little Chance of Passage.

Members of the sub-committee admitted privately, however, that they believed there is little chance that the legislation will be passed by the House this session.

Palmisano's bill would apply only to registered or standard products, while Smith's bill included all goods sold in retail trade.

The judiciary sub-committee also voted to report favorably a District Commissioners' bill to modernize the District zoning act, and a D. A. R. measure to set up a commission for the selection of a District flag.

The House District Committee, which hasn't had a quorum in more than a month, will try to meet today to clear its calendar in preparation for the last District day, scheduled next Monday.

More than a dozen bills are due to be considered. Besides those to be reported by the Judiciary subcommittee, the most important are the Senate bill to set up a lunacy commission, the measures to amend the Alley Dwelling Authority act and the District PWA loan act, and a bill to amend the 1939 District revenue act, which President Roosevelt signed yesterday.

$500,000 Loss Faced.

The amendment was slipped into the House unobtrusively as District officials admitted shame-facedly that they had made a blunder in drafting the new business privilege tax.

Unless the joint resolution is passed by both houses before adjournment, the District stands to lose around $500,000 and to reduce thereby its "cushion" of surplus revenue to $400,000 or less.

The blunder was in not specifying in the law that personal property taxes paid on motor vehicles cannot be credited against the business privilege tax as are all other personal property levies. Unless amended, the law will permit business men to charge off the personal property taxes they pay on all their motor vehicles when paying the business levy.

Sam Beard Seeks Release, Charging Wires Were Tapped

Sam Beard, Washington's so-called gambling czar, yesterday sought his release from the Atlanta Penitentiary on the ground that he had been convicted on testimony obtained by tapping his telephone wires.

In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, filed in Federal Court at Atlanta, the burly gambler pointed out that the United States Supreme Court recently outlawed use of evidence obained by wire-tapping.

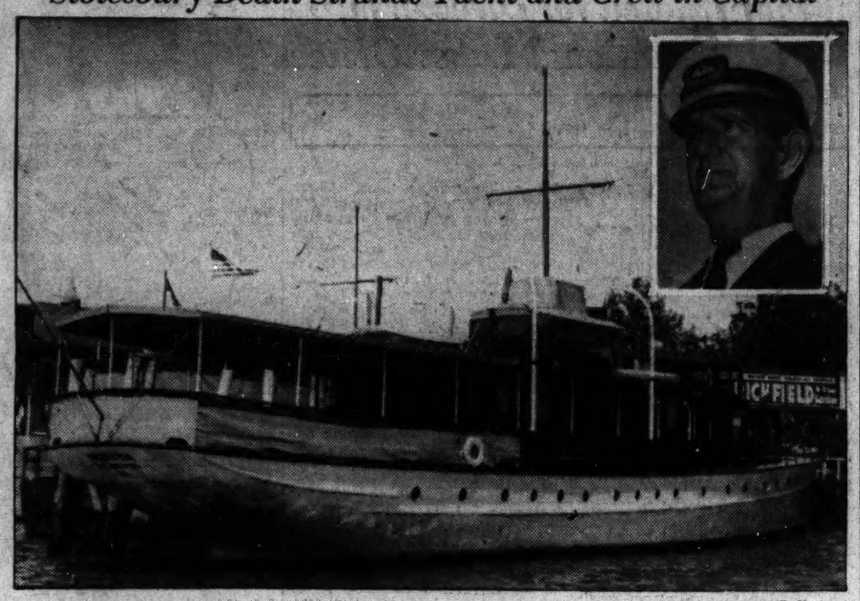
Stotesbury Death Strands Yacht and Crew in Capital



Post Staff Photo.

Edward T. Stotesbury's 100-foot yacht Nedeva, and its captain, Charles A. Webb (inset), who is without sailing orders since the death of the financier at Philadelphia Monday night. The last orders, to remain in Washington until the owner arrived Friday to superintend the yacht's trip back to Philadelphia, were given by telephone Monday. The Nedeva has been tied up here for nearly a month, having come from Palm Beach at the close of the season. Mr. Stotesbury used the $130,000 vessel last weekend for a cruise to Indian Head. The Nedava has a crew of seven, all worried about pay and bills piling up in the Capital.

Earle, Jones Piling Up Lead Over C. I. O Slate; Pinchot Concedes Defeat for Pa. Governor central Pennsylvania, raised his general election battle cry against the New Deal within a few hours after Former Gov. Pinchot conceded.

He had accused Pinchot of being a "half New Dealer," but in a telegram early today to Pinchot he said:

"When I enter the ring against the New Deal this fall, we are counting on you in our corner."

Pinchot had promised to support the Republican nominee.

Victor Blanc, representing Margiotti, said nearly 14,000 in Philadelphia who changed their registration from Republican to Democrat to vote for Margiotti were refused ballots.

Top Democratic stakes were party control and control of Pennsylvania's commanding block of 72 votes at the 1940 National Convention.

Aside from being a test of power for Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization, the primary also marked a battle between the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor, whose Pennsylvania units urged defeat of C. I. O.-indorsed candidates.

Both Sides Claim Victory.

Both sides in the New Deal factional fight, in which Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley essayed eleventh-hour intervention, clung to victory claims to the last. From some came assertions that Farley's statement, urging nomination of Gov. George H. Earle for United States Senator and of Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy for Governor, in no way affected the trend of the vote.

Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, represented in the minds of many the man behind whom John L. Lewis embarked upon his most important political adventure. And it was over Kennedy that the Pennsylvania Democratic organization, which in 1934 elected Earle the first Democratic Governor in over 40 years, split wide.

Author of many of the charges raised against both the Earle administration and the C. I. O.-Kennedy line-up, was Margiotti, whom Earle finally fired as attorney general after an altercation over Margiotti's charges that $20,000 from brewery interests "bought" State legislation in 1935.

Gov. Earle campaigned almost to the hour of voting, with the assertion that Democratic voters faced—between Jones and Kennedy for Governor—a choice between rule by John L. Lewis and by the "continued liberal administration" which Earle said he had started.

Kennedy insisted he stood on his own feet and would be bossed by no one.

The Democratic high command did not openly enter the Pennsylvania fight until Monday, when Farley attempted an election eve peace role because, he said, the struggle "imperils the success of the Democratic Party in the November election."

Earle refused to go along with Farley's recommendation for Earle and Kennedy, and stood by his ticket mate, Jones, who would have been sacrificed under the Farley plan. Mayor Wilson charged "double-crossing."

The C. I. O. issue also was injected into the Republican fight. Judge James, supported by the old-line Republican organization with which Pinchot has fought intermittently since his "Bull Moose" days, appealed to anti-C. I. O. elements with the cry that "a vote for Pinchot was a vote for Lewis." Lewis, he contended, had a foot in the Pinchot camp as well as in Kennedy's.

Pinchot denied any Lewis tieup. Two weeks before the voting both Democrats and Republicans began looking ahead to the November general election—Democrats hoping for a formula for peace; Republicans predicting New Deal dierences would help toward a Republican triumph.

"These differences," said State Chairman Lawrence in his last campaign address, "are just the mark of growing pains in a party new to power"

Roosevelt Silent.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt declined comment yesterday on the indorsement by James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman, of Gov. George H. Earle for Senator and Thomas Kennedy for Governor in the Pennsylvania primaries.

The President also was asked whether he was supporting Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina in the coming Democratic Senatorial primary against E. D. Smith, the incumbent.

By way of reply, Mr. Roosevelt turned to his secretary and asked him, with a smile, to turn on the old phonograph record.

Mr. Roosevelt frequently has made this reply in referring to past declarations of a personal hands-off policy in State contests.

The same reply, he said, applied to the Oregon primary in which Secretary Ickes has indorsed Henry L. Hess for Governor in opposition to the incumbent, Charles H. Martin.

Montgomery County police last night were searching for two masked bandits who threatened to kill an ailing Montgomery County grandmother as she lay abed in her daughter's home, and escaped with family savings of more than $400.

The victim, Mrs. Harriet Babbington, Treasury Department employe, had been ill with a heart disorder at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. Harold Harmon, at 804 Bonifant street, Silver Spring, for the past three weeks.

Baltimore Mail May Quit Europe In Subsidy Fight

Baltimore, May 17 (AP).—The Baltimore Mail Line issued a statement late today it would discontinue its transatlantic steamship service on May 26 unless the Federal Government increases the company's subsidy from $400,000 to aproximately $1,000,000 yearly.

Plane Search Blocked by Fog; 9 Feared Dead

Skyliner With 2 Children, 9 Adults, Believed Crashed in Sierras.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, May 17.—Seven adults and two children were feared dead tonight in a giant skyliner which vanished barely outside the city in a fog that blocked land and air searchers.

Five hundred men unsuccessfully hunted in the Sierra Madre Mountains less than 50 miles from here for the lost Lockheed Electra plane which had been labeled "The World's Fastest Commercial Airliner," capable of 250 miles an hour. The $80,000 ship was not on a regular flight, but was being "ferried" to St. Paul via Las Vegas, Nev., to be delivered to Northwest Airlines.

Aerial search was useless because the fog extended upward 5,000 feet from the floors of the mountain canyons.

The plane was unreported since 2 p. m., Pacific time, yesterday. Searchers believed the ship crashed before reaching Daggett.

Had All Equipment.

Among the passengers on the missing plane are the two small children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Salisbury, of St. Paul. Salisbury, an engineer from NWA, had brought his family here while he oversaw final construction work on the transport. The children were Richard, 3 years, and Judith, 2½ months.

Others aboard were Mrs. Carl B. Squier, of North Hollywood, wife of a Lockheed executive; Lola Totty, Lockheed stenographer; Miss Evelyn Dingle, of St. Paul, NWA employe; Sid Willey, of Burbank, who was at the controls, and Fred Whittemore, of St. Paul, the co-pilot.

Parmele Is Given 38 Years in Fraud

William R. Parmele, of Arlington, Va., yesterday was sentenced to 10 to 38 years in the Ohio Penitentiary and a fine of $20,000 on charges of fraud and issuing fraudulent checks. He and four other officials of the Toledo Guaranty Corporation, of which he was president, were found guilty last week by a Toledo jury.

Parmele was arrested last October at his home on Glebe road, Livingston Heights, by Sheriff Howard B. Fields of Arlington County.

Extortion Case Studied For Police Trial Board

Evidence in the case against former Precinct Detective Luther Wise, acquitted in District Court Monday of attempted extortion, was turned over to Corporation counsel yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police. Brown asked the prosecutor to determine whether the case should be presented to the Police Trial Board.

Wise remained suspended from the force. He was accused of accepting $10 from Fred Kosma, restaurant proprietor, which he claimed was merely a loan.

Eastern's Co. A Wins Drill as 12,000 Look On

High School Cadets Lead Two Thousand With 91.5 Rating.

Company A, of the Third Regiment of Eastern High School, marched briskly to glory and first place in the competitive drill of High School Cadets in Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Stepping smoothly behind their captain, Earl Coddington, the cadets scored a mark of 91.5 to lead the field, as the 12,000 students, teachers and parents who jammed the grandstand, the pavilion and the bleachers cheered wildly.

Capt. Coddington was decorated with the Allison Nailor award as leader of the winning company. His top sergeant, James Ellis, also was decorated by Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner.

Third place went to Company A, of the First Regiment of Central, with a rating of 88.5, under Cadet Capt. Edward Nicholson.

Individual medals for excellent records and performances as petty officers went to Cadet Sergt. E. S. Cornwall, of Eastern, who took first prize; Cadet Sergt. Robert Revello, of McKinley, second prize, and First Sergt. Richard Bond, of Roosevelt, third prize.

Participating were 2,094 cadets and cadet officers, along with the High School Cadet Band. Each company gave an individual demonstration in marching and open order drill and skirmishing.

Lewis Apparently Is Defeated In First Bid for Political Power

Reaction

The main issue was Kennedy, his C. I. O. backing, his indorsement by Senator Joseph F. Guffey, when he was not personally selected to run, and the last-minute support thrown to the Lewis-Guffey contender by Postmaster Farley.

But there were labor and Administration issues involved in the Republican race. When former Gov. Gifford Pinchot last night conceded his defeat to Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James, Old Guard candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, both Lewis and the New Deal were dealt an indirect rebuff.

For James had charged throughout the campaign that Lewis would throw his C. I. O. backing behind Pinchot in the November elections if Kennedy lost the Democratic nomination. The 72-year-old veteran of many Pennsylvania campaigns also had been charged with being "half a New Dealer." That accusation never could be made against his triumphant adversary, for James has been bitter in his denunciation of the Administration.

Judge James was accumulating the largest individual vote in the primaries, as Republicans turned out a heavy vote. The second highest individual poll was being rolled up by Gov. Earle, who has been consistent in his loyalty to the Administration but has bitterly denounced Lewis' entry into Pennsylvania politics.

Senator James J. "Puddler Jim" Davis, Secretary of Labor in three Republican administrations, was piling up a lead for the Republican Senatorial nomination. He had remained aloof from both the James and Pinchot factions and was waging his fight on his own labor record and background.

If the early returns in the Democratic battle royal are borne out, Lewis has lost an opportunity not only for a voice by remote control in the next Democratic convention, but his bitter labor rival, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, has scored heavily against Lewis' C. I. O.

Green spotted the Pennsylvania contest as a testing ground for the C. I. O.-A. F. of L. battle to the death, and was one of the first to charge Kennedy was "Charlie McCarthy" for Lewis.

Executives of the Federation of Labor State organization at a Harrisburg convention had declared for Jones, State Democratic committee's nominee, and for Judge James in behalf of their Republican members.

Both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., of nearly equal Pennsylvania membership strength, had perfected campaign organizations throughout the State.

Lewis, while never coy in his support of the Kennedy-Wilson ticket, had cautiously remained out of the State and out of the campaign, as complaints against his interference rang out in State organization campaign speeches.

There was one bright ray in the apparent primary outcome for the Administration. Some observers felt that Pinchot's defeat offered the Democratic ticket in November a chance for labor backing it would not have had if the 72-year-old former Governor had been nominated.

Limerick Jury Told Girl Died For 'Squealing'

Limerick

that Policeman Langdon was in the vicinity of the desolate murder scene at 1:45 a. m. on the dark, winter's night when Beulah returned from a dance, went to bed and was slain in her sleep.

There was considerable speculation yesterday following the opening defense statement by J. Russell Kelly, chief defense attorney. It was apparent in the crowded courtroom—spectators were admitted after the jury was selected—that Kelly was purposely concealing main points of his plan to save Langdon from conviction.

He merely stated that his client did not kill the erstwhile jazz-mad Beulah and that evidence would be produced to prove it. He said Langdon's only interest in the Limerick house and its occupants "was the interest of a police officer."

Neighbors, Kelly contended, complained repeatedly of "wild orgies" in the "house on the hill" and Langdon's visits to the premises were in the nature of investigations. In fact, said Kelly, the officer had told the Limericks and their friend to move.

Will Trace His Movements.

The mild-mannered defense counsel said he would trace for the jury all of Langdon's movements on the murder night and would disprove the Government's contention that his client tried to conceal his whereabouts.

Prosecutor Wilson opened his remarks with a description of the Limerick house and the basement room where Beulah met her death. He told how she was found on the tiny cot where she slept and how Richard (Dick) Reed, who occupied a third-floor room with her brother, Vernon, at first thought she was asleep.

He described for the jury how the trio intended to move because Langdon had been "annoying" the girl and how Vernon discovered her dead about 9 a. m. on the day before New Year's.

Said He Was at Box 24.

Langdon, Wilson charged, deliberately tried to hide the fact he was near the house on the murder night and at 1:55 a. m. called his station from patrol box No. 11 at Eighteenth and East Capitol streets and told the desk sergeant:

"I've been following a man around Fourteenth and A streets. Mark me as having called in from No. 24 box."

On three different occasions, the last one at 3:51 a. m., Langdon called in from No. 11 box, less than a block from the Limerick home, and gave false reasons why he should be listed as reporting from other boxes along his beat, Wilson declared.

On the last call, however, the station clerk refused to accept Langdon's reason for being "marked in" from another box and listed him at No. 11.

"We will show," said the fiery Wilson, "that between 2:30 and 2:45 a. m. the defendant Langdon shot this girl with a .25-caliber automatic while she lay on her day bed in the basement room. This shot was heard by the milkman.

"We will show also," Wilson related, "that Langdon had his private automobile on his beat that night and that at exactly 3 a. m. he was seen by a fellow officer on East Capitol street near Eighteenth, a stone's throw from the Limerick house."

And a few moments before he was seen by the other policeman, Wilson continued, Langdon called the station and said:

"I tried to get you at box 49 (Seventeenth and C streets southeast), but no one answered. Mark me in at No. 49, will you?"

As a consequence, said the prosecutor, Langdon was listed as calling from Box No. 49 at 2:54 a. m., when in reality he was many blocks away near the Limerick house.

The barren, scantily furnished frame house, which has since been torn down, was rented by Vernon Limerick and Richard Reed on November 1, 1930, Wilson told the jury. A few days later, Beulah went there to live and keep house for the boys.

As the "cop on the beat," declared Wilson, Langdon came to know her and "pestered" her for several weeks. On one occasion, the jury was told, Beulah threatened to have the policeman either removed from the force or transferred from that particular beat.

Because she "squealed" on him, Langdon plotted and carried out the girl's murder, Wilson charged. And on the night of the slaying, the accused man drove in his car to the home of a friend in the 200 block of Fourteenth street southeast and attempted to establish an alibi, said the assistant district attorney.

Langdon Is Quoted.

Langdon was quoted by Wilson as telling his friend:

"If anyone asks where I was between midnight and 4 a. m., tell them I was with you."

Wilson told how a hospital interne pronounced the girl dead from "natural causes" and how an undertaker later discovered a bullet hole above her right ear.

After requesting to be detailed in the house following the murder, Langdon allegedly discovered a shell in a coffee cup, a bullet hole in the girl's bed mattress and a slug imbedded in the floor, said Wilson.

The shell and slug will be linked to the murder gun and evidence will be produced to show the bullet hole was not in the mattress before Langdon was assigned to the guard detail, Wilson declared.

The Langdon jury was completed yesterday, after the prospective panel list was twice exhausted. Yesterday's additions included Clifton Royston, a tire salesman, and Harry L. Selby, a bank cashier. U. I. Brown was challenged and withdrawn from the panel after being locked up with the jury overnight.

William E. Paddy, Beulah's escort at the New Year's Eve dance, will be called as the first witness today.

Churches Are 'Country Clubs,' Babson Says of All but Two

Babson

York, for suppressing an article written for the denomination's organ, The Advance.

In that article, he said, "I decried the low pay among Congregational ministers, averaging about $1,656, plus parsonage, and recommended reforms in the executive committee and church boards."

Enlarging upon his contention that "287" (the headquarters), persecutes the ministers, Babson later said:

"If they find a man whose ideas do not meet with their approval, they gang up on him and make it difficult for him to get a pulpit or better himself in the church. It's purely a matter of politics all the way through, and woe be to the man who has a mind of his own."

Holds Two Churches Worst.

He characterized the Congregational and Methodist churches "as the worst of all" in slipping from the principles upon which they were founded. Babson urged they "return to independence, freedom of thought and speech, avoid central authority, back the temperance movement and beat down crime and injustice in every form.

"Protestants—that's what they call themselves, but they have forgotten what the word means," he said.

Babson said tonight that he had been trying for two years to get "287" to lead the way in bettering ministers' salaries. "Those leaders, whose salaries far exceed those of a minister, have done nothing."

Leaders Deny Charges.

Babson told his followers:

"We must liquidate the national headquarters to a point where it no longer will administer rewards or punishment to our ministers."

Clarifying this later, he said "'287' spreads stories about the men they don't like. That's persecution."

[On the conference floor, meanwhile, two of Babson's charges were being denied by leaders in the church, the Associated Press reported. Dr. William E. Gilroy, editor of the Advance, declared he alone was responsible for the magazine's policy. W. Boult, treasurer of the National Council, sent a communication denying he threatened retaliation if Babson insisted his recommendations for church reorganization be published.—Editor's note.]

ident Cardenas' instructions, granted General of Division Saturnino Cedillo's request that, effective May 16, he be given absolute license from the army.

The announcement was signed by Gen. Luis Bobadilla, chief of staff.

In an interview with the newspaper Universal Grafico, President Cardenas said he would make a trip soon to northern Mexico for the purpose "of restoring tranquility to homes which are uneasy on account of the alarmist rumors current in the past few days."

Cardenas denied that he contemplated any cabinet changes, as reported abroad.

Japanese Begin Final Assault Upon Suchow

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), May 18. Vanguards of four Japanese armies which have encircled Suchow today began their final assault on the key city to China's fortified Lunghai Railway line defending Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's provisional capital at Hankow.

The Japanese Domei News Agency reported at 2 a. m. from Japanese field headquarters in Hochai, outside Suchow walls, that artillery atop Mount Pawang, five miles from the western walls, were hurling shells into the city.

It was believed a breach soon would be made in the walls through which infantrymen could advance.

Chinese forces inside the walls of Suchow, which Japanese have been trying to capture for more than four months, to clear the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and thus link their provisional north and central China capitals in Peiping and Nanking, were said to be in panic.

Part of an estimated 50,000 Chinese soldiers in the Su-Hsien area, south of Suchow, were retreating westward along a highway leading to Lake Hung-tze, but it was indicated that most of the Chinese in this area, estimated last week at more than 400,000, had escaped.

Elsewhere in the eastern Lunghai area at points between Kaifeng and Haichow Japanese were meeting determined resistance. It was admitted that reorganized Chinese divisions had started a strong counterattack on the extreme right flank of the Japanese third army north of Kweiteh.

The heaviest fighting on the whole eastern Lunghai front was taking place in this area centering around the towns of Feng-Hsien, Kin-siang, Yu-tai and Cheng-wu, which still was in Chinese hands.

Winont

Irish-born chief of the I. L. O.'s diplomatic section.

Although the I. L. O. was created by the Treaty of Versailles and has somewhat tenuous connections with the League of Nations, it is an autonomous body with an independent charter. The United States has been a member for several years, and Japan and Brazil, also nonmembers of the League, are numbered among the 60 nations which support the organization. The I. L. O. is unique in that it has triparty representation of governments, workers and employers.

Director of the I. L. O. is appointed for an indeterminate time. His salary is fixed by agreement with the governing body. If Winant takes the post, it will almost certainly mean that he will be a resident of Geneva for at least five or six more years.

The Lincolnesque New Hampshire Republican, who resigned from the Social Security Board in 1936 so that he could defend it from "partisan attacks," was queried by The Post yesterday about the merits of proposed wage-hour legislation in the United States. "Speaking personally," he said, "I believe in establishing a floor for wages and a ceiling for hours, without sectional differentials. I don't think a low minimum wage tends to become a maximum so long as collective bargaining is generally accepted."

Refusing to comment on the probability that he will soon be director of the I. L. O., he enthusiastically discussed its work.

"One reason for the success of the International Labor Organization (of which the labor office serves as secretariat) is that nations enter into it with no prior commitments," he said.

"Conventions, dealing with conditions of employment, child labor, health of workers, etc., are effective in each member nation only when that nation accepts them. There is, of course, no compulsion. But when leading industrial states agree to abide by the requirements established in the various conventions, very strong moral pressure is thereby exercised on the more backward countries to follow suit.

"In the case of the United States," Winant explained, "most of the minimum requirements are below the American standard."

Winant pointed out that war economy is a serious barrier to improvement of labor conditions. "Nations at war, or about to go to war, are more interested in turning out armaments than in limiting hours of work or improving social conditions," he observed.

At the invitation of any member State, the I. L. O. will send representatives to help draft social legislation, Winant said. "The I. L. O. has been instrumental in drawing up many health, unemployment, old-age and other forms of social insurance laws, in South American countries and elsewhere."

On an equal plane with the labor conventions and the drafting of labor legislation, Winant placed the information-gathering activities of the I. L. O. "At Geneva, we have the best library on social legislation in the world," he said. "I. L. O. headquarters are becoming the center of research in matters affecting the welfare of the worker, not only because of the extent of printed information we have on hand, but also because of the knowledge and experience of members of the permanent staff."

Adm. Sellers Attacked for Middie Ouster

By the Associated Press.

Forced resignation of Frederick Krupp, member of the graduating class, from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., drew sharp attack and rigid defense yesterday before a Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

A member of the House and a brother of the former midshipman said Krupp's cramming for an examination in order to get leave to serve as best man at a wedding caused a series of events that brought his forced resignation.

Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, urged the Senate committee to approve a bill which would reinstate Krupp in the 1938 class.

Admiral Sellers Blamed.

The House member said Admiral David F. Sellers, academy superintendent, had meted out "punishment far beyond what the evidence warrants."

Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, spokesman for the Navy Department, opposed the bill saying it would "undermine the confidence of the regiment of midshipmen at the Naval Academy and lower the standards."

Opposing sides agreed that Krupp had skipped a class to cram for a course in which he needed a high mark to obtain Christmas vacation leave for the wedding.

The official Navy accounts charged Krupp had reported he was at the dentist and later denied knowledge of this report. He was given a chance to resign for the "good of the service" for "making a false statement with intent to deceive."

The brother said that when Krupp applied for a job with an airplane firm and for admission to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the academy report on his credits included a statement he made a false statement and resigned facing dismissal.

"This ostracizes this boy from every opportunity," the brother said. "We don't believe this boy should be buried for the rest of his life just because one man, who might not have felt right that day, overruled every officer under him."

14 Jurors Chosen Tentatively to Try Harlan Mine Case

London, Ky., May 17 (AP).—Twelve jurors and two alternates were tentatively seated today in the Harlan County labor conspiracy case, regarded as a test of whether civil rights statutes of reconstruction days can provide criminal law to back up the Warner labor act.

Farmers predominated among the 14 men, as weeding out of veniremen who are related to any of the 66 defendants started. The defendants include 23 coal company operators, former Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton, of Harlan County; 21 of his deputies and 21 coal mining corporations.

The indictment followed last year's Senate Civil Liberties Committee hearing, at which members of the United Mine Workers of America painted a picture of terrorization to prevent union organization in the coal fields.

Today Hugh Taylor, former Harlan deputy who failed to respond when defendants were called yesterday, was brought into court. Federal Judge H. Church Ford had ordered Taylor's bond forfeited, but today he said investigation showed that Taylor was not guilty of any delinquency.

U.S. Workers Here Back Mexico in Oil Expropriation

A group of Federal workers has issued a resolution upholding Mexico's action in expropriating American and British oil properties and protesting any economic pressure the American Government may bring against Mexico as a result of the seizure.

The resolution was drafted by United Federal Workers of America Local 2, a C. I. O. affiliate whose membership is entirely in the Agriculture Department. The resolution said, in part:

"... That Local No. 2 (U. F. W. A.) representing employes in the department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., go on record in support of the stand taken by the Mexican government and the Mexican workers in restoring Mexico's oil resources to the Mexican people ... That this body protest the use of economic pressure against the Mexican government and the Mexican people by the United States Government."

War Games Convince Army It Needs Long-Range Planes

Five Days' Mock Maneuvers Over, With Broken Propeller Only Casualty; Officers Reticent on Results.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—Five days of mock warfare on the most elaborate scale ever undertaken by the General Headquarters air force were concluded today, and gray-thatched Frank M. Andrews, its commanding general, announced that the only casualty was a bent propeller.

For 24 hours a day combat planes, which would be called into service if invasion threatened the United States, flew on "missions" from 18 airdromes scattered over six States along the North Atlantic seaboard.

They had been concentrated here from the Far West, the Middle West and the South to cope with a theoretical enemy, a coalition of Asiatic and European powers.

The enemy did invade it, but to the question of who won the war, the umpires put their tongues in their cheeks and grinned.

A critical note was injected into the final day's exercises, a parade of almost 150 war planes which assembled near West Point and roared past the Mitchell Field reviewing stand on Long Island, when the "air defense league" asserted the Army general staff had curtailed publicity.

A final communique, embodying the findings of the eight umpires, advanced the belief that more long range planes were necessary and a great communication network to transmit warnings should be established.

TVA Officers Give Utility a Day More On Purchase Offer

By the Associated Press.

Mayor Walter W. Mynatt of Knoxville, Tenn., and officers of the Tennessee Valley Authority extended "for another 24 hours" today their offer to buy the Tennessee Public Service Co. for $7,500,000.

The decision followed a four-hour conference between David E. Lilienthal, TVA director; Mynatt, Paul B. Sawyer, president of the National Power & Light Co., and C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of the Electric Bond & Share Corporation.

U. S. Reports Idle Equal Population Of Fifteen States

The total number of registered unemployed in the United States is equal to the population of 15 States, and 61.3 per cent of the jobless are either under 25 or over 45 years of age, Director John D. Biggers of the National Unemployment Census reported last night.

In one of the final summaries of his census, Biggers said that 7,845,016 had registered as unemployed and, of this group, 5,833,401 said they were totally jobless, and 2,011,615 said they had emergency jobs.

Mr. Landon On Liberty.

"The real test of our belief in freedom of speech," said Alf M. Landon in a speech at Chicago yesterday, "comes when we listen to someone who expresses views we abhor. When we are willing to make the fight to permit the expression of such views, freedom is safe."

Mr. Landon has put the case in a nutshell. And he speaks with authority on the subject because no man in public life has shown a more sincere devotion to the simple yet essential principles on which, as John Stuart Mill pointed out years ago, the continuance of liberty depends. The former Governor of Kansas has not forgotten that he was once dismissed as being merely the chief executive of "a typical prairie State." But, as he says, "at least we treated Norman Thomas with respect and tolerance when he came to Kansas to speak." In fact it was Mr. Landon who introduced him at Topeka.

The ruthless suppression of minority rights by Mayor Hague, the insidious attack on freedom of the press sponsored by Senator Minton, the startling intolerance of criticism exhibited increasingly by the present Administration, are all straws in the wind which makes the issue stressed by Mr. Landon of vital importance. There is all too much evidence behind his assertion that "none of us, of this generation, has seen a group so intolerant of the views and beliefs of others as are the so-called New Deal Liberals."

In this intolerance there is an underlying anomaly which must have occurred to many people. Those who are most insistent in their belief in human perfectibility are also frequently most eloquent in attributing unworthy or shameful motives to anyone who disagrees as to procedure. The attitude of those who advertise their own righteousness by denouncing the unrighteousness of others is bound to become questionable to the objective mind. And that attitude seems further to exhibit a profound disbelief in the essential worthiness of mankind on which the case for reform must rest.

Liberty and tolerance, as Mr. Landon emphasizes, are "close companions." When there is a growth in the spirit of intolerance there is simultaneous weakening of the foundations of liberty. The former Presidential candidate is too generous in saying that "throughout the years, American newspapers have fought uncompromisingly for tolerance, free speech and a free press." But he is eminently correct in asserting that the present effort to censor the press roots in a spirit of intolerance which is the very essence of spurious liberalism.

Undesirable Imitation.

The several bills now before Congress to establish a Government radio station for broadcasts to Latin America reflect the growing uneasiness in this country over the dissemination by radio of Nazi and Fascist propaganda in this hemisphere.

It is felt, and not without reason, that Germany and Italy should no longer be allowed to go unchallenged in their attempt to propagate in the New World the ideologies of dictatorship. The daily broadcasts from Berlin and Rome to the nations south of us have had the effect, it is said, of creating a tolerance there for beliefs utterly at variance with democratic concepts. Thus American influence has steadily been undermined, with potentially dangerous consequences both to Pan Americanism and American trade.

How true is this alarming picture of the effects of Nazi and Fascist radio propaganda in Latin America it is impossible to say with any degree of accuracy. Mark Etheridge, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, in his testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee, has argued that this propaganda has backfired, that "recent developments in Argentina, Brazil and Chile demonstrate the futility of the efforts of foreign governments to extend their influence into these republics."

But whether his optimism on this score is justified or not, he has reason on his side when he opposes direct governmental action by the United States to counteract Fascist radio propaganda. There is no question that more frequent radio broadcasts from this country to Latin America are desirable. A better understanding of the United States in the other republics of this hemisphere would pay large dividends in enhanced good will and make possible a greater degree of co-operation. So would a better understanding in this country of the nations below the Rio Grande.

But for the United States to indulge in radio propaganda through the medium of a Government-owned station would put us in the same class with the totalitarian powers. All Government propaganda is suspect whatever its origin, for it inevitably entails a certain amount of special pleading. And, as Mr. Etheridge points out, it is "subject to a very natural suspicion."

Nor would the failure to construct a Government-owned and operated short-wave radio station designed to make possible the sending of programs to the other republics of this hemisphere mean giving a clear field to the Fascist government. For some time private radio stations, on their own initiative and at their own cost, have been broadcasting good-will programs to Latin America. More of this should be done. But the job ought to remain in private hands.

The Future Of The Railroads.

Senator La Follette and a number of his colleagues have announced their intention to oppose further financial aid to the railroads if they persist in their determination to reduce wages. Their attitude, however, is based upon the false assumption that the roads are seeking Federal loans simply for the purpose of "propping up their indefensible and outworn debt structure."

Mr. La Follette's refusal to look at the situation realistically shows very clearly what the country would be "up against" if our railways were Governmentally owned. Under such conditions any attempt to reduce the wages of railway employes, however justified by economic conditions, would be certain to encounter a determined political opposition. And it is a safe guess that the loser in the contest would be taxpayers called upon to supply the funds for subsidizing the roads and their employes.

It would contribute greatly to a solution of the railway problem if our legislators would acknowledge that the financial plight of the roads is not entirely of their own making and hence not self-correcting. The current depression has resulted in a drastic contraction of business. And the situation has been aggravated by restrictive rate policies which have prevented the roads from offsetting these losses more fully. Increases in wage payments during the past year have also contributed to higher operating costs. Added to these more immediate causes of distress are the growing pressures from the subsidized competition of other transportation agencies.

Current records of earnings show that strong as well as weak roads are jeopardized by the combination of decreasing revenues and rising costs. When a strong, conservatively capitalized railroad like the Atchison, for instance, defers payment of interest on its adjustment bonds, it can hardly be maintained that its difficulties are due to "an indefensible and outworn debt structure."

The Splawn committee whose recommendations for relief of the carriers were recently transmitted to Congress by the President effectually disposed of the facile assumption that the roads could solve their financial problems by reducing unjustifiably high fixed charges. There are, of course, roads that will find it necessary to scale such charges. Indeed, with nearly one-third of the country's railway mileage in receivership or bankruptcy, a large number have been relieved for the time being of fixed charges. When reorganized, their financial positions should be improved.

As the Splawn committee says, however, There is some misunderstanding of the fixed charge situation and its significance. Many seem to think that these charges represent an unjust burden, and that if it could be removed all would be well. The fact is that these charges constitute a comparatively modest return on only a part of the legitimate investment in railroad property.

Consequently, the committee concludes that reduction of this burden, while desirable as a means of enabling carriers to weather depressions more easily, is "not a cure for basic railroad ills."

Indeed, regardless of the character of the capital structure—the proportion of bonded debt to stocks—railroads must be permitted to earn enough on their investments to attract new capital into the industry. In other words, if the railroad systems of the United States are to remain in private hands, conditions must be such as to enable competent managements to cover operating expenses and provide adequate returns to holders of the roads' securities.

Unless that is conceded, public ownership or perpetual subsidization of the railroads are the only alternatives. And President Roosevelt himself in a recent message to Congress indicated that he strongly objected to such a solution of the railway problem.

Realistic Advice From AAA.

Representatives have gone out from the Triple A to educate farmers as to the advisability of moderate loans on wheat. Their line of argument is convincing. When high loans are made, their message points out, "exports are retarded and surpluses pile up."

The AAA is to be congratulated on this realistic presentation of the case to farmers. There is no reasonable reply to its contention that artificially high prices maintained by Federal loans would give the appearance of a better market for wheat than really exists and would thus encourage the production of a still greater surplus next year. If farmers are wise, they will accept this advice and not try to mobilize political pressure for maximum loans under the 1938 adjustment act.

Adherence by the AAA to the advice it is now giving to wheat growers would have prevented at least part of the loss in foreign markets for cotton suffered by American farmers in recent years. That agency now knows through bitter experience that the prices of export crops cannot be artificially pegged above the level prevailing in the world market without sending buyers to other countries for their supplies. The AAA representatives in the field might effectively cite the shrinkage of our outlets for cotton as a warning against excessive wheat loans.

It should be noted, however, that responsibility for the rate of loans to be made under the new agricultural adjustment act falls upon the Administration rather than the borrowing farmers. The amount, terms and conditions of such loans are to be fixed by Secretary Wallace, within the broad terms of the act, subject to the approval of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the President. It is up to these officials to hold the naturally exorbitant requests of the farmers in check.

In the application of drastic marketing quotas the farm act is entirely too severe. That cannot be said, however, of the provisions granting Federal benefits to farmers. No one can legitimately accuse Secretary Wallace of arbitrary conduct if he exercises his own discretion, against the will of farmers, in keeping commodity loans at reasonable figures. That is a question of Government policy. But when the AAA steps in to manage the production and marketing policies of individual farms complaints from farmers have much more substance.

Jobs And Minimum Wages.

Reports that minimum wages recently established in Washington have resulted in the dismissal of a substantial number of employes should be of special interest on Capitol Hill where the wages-and-hours bill is still under consideration.

The rates of pay for women employed in local retail establishments and in the public housekeeping industry were fixed after careful studies by groups representing employers, employes and the public. Undoubtedly these minimum wage conferences analyzed the conditions within each industry and made an earnest effort to protect the interests of female workers. The minimum wages they established are by no means exorbitant—ranging from $14.50 for hotel maids to $17 for retail clerks. Yet they appear to have resulted in the dismissal of a considerable number of women whose services are valued by employers at less than the minimum fixed.

Under the national wage-and-hour bill sponsored by the House Labor Committee there would be no careful adjustment of minimum wages to the conditions of each industry in each locality. On the contrary, a rigid minimum would be fixed for all industries affecting commerce throughout the country. And within three years that minimum would be considerably higher than the lowest rates established in Washington, despite the fact that in most of the States living costs are lower than they are here.

Congress ought not to ignore the very real implication in the District's experience that the wage-and-hour bill would cause a good deal of unemployment at a time when a staggering number of individuals are already without jobs. That measure was pressed in the House largely as a means of creating purchasing power. In so far as it might raise wages this reasoning is correct. But sponsors of the bill entirely overlooked the counteracting effect of dismissals likely to result from the elevation of low-bracket wages above the ability of many employers to pay.

In some industries there are large numbers of employes who are kept at work only because their inefficiency can be offset by low wages. If minimum wages are fixed with no allowance for such conditions, Congress ought to prepare for a permanent expansion of relief rolls.

Inalienable Squawk.

Having recently missed the significance of the Supreme Court's decision in the Tompkins case, the press now gulps black coffee at all court sessions. As one result, perhaps, the Associated Press carries a story from West Virginia that might otherwise have been passed over. Happily it was not, for the dispatch has Nation-wide interest. In Huntington a police court judge has declared it the "inalienable right" of a baseball player to "get mad and have a fight with the umpire."

Who now will maintain that the courts do not follow the wishes of the majority? It is a tense moment in a game—say, the last half of the ninth with two out and the winning run on second. The count is two and three. The nod, the stretch, the pitch. It's wide. But "Strike!" calls the umpire.

Breathes there a man who wouldn't set up a squawk. And, if necessary, carry it further? The American Institute of Public Opinion could tabulate the answers without fear of criticism, even from Thomas Kennedy.

An Ohio woman is suing for divorce because her husband brought home a 20-year-old girl friend to live with them. Women are so unreasonable.

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

Pump-Priming Abroad.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A writer signing himself "American" states in a recent letter to The Post that "pump-priming has proved a disastrous failure" and suggests that the Administration adopt the methods of England and 21 other countries, which he says have balanced their budgets and are on the high road to complete recovery."

I am no economist and have no opinion as to whether pump-priming is a panacea or a crime, but I should like to have verification of the statements contained in this letter.

What are the 21 countries besides that brilliant example of England with its 27½ per cent income tax?

When I was in England last summer I saw evidences everywhere of enormous housing construction by the government. Was this not in "competition with private business"?

Won't your correspondent tell us how the budget balances have been accomplished, whether by devaluation of currency, by annexing new territory or by mere horse sense? But when he does give this information I trust he will make a fair comparison and not mention Switzerland and Finland as being in any way similar to the United States in their situations.

Misnamed Trees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Altadena is only a little town in southern California. But it got itself some pleasant publicity in The Washington Post Monday, May 16, because of the arrival at the Washington airport Sunday of Marion Weldon, chosen by 22 air pilots and stunt men to fly to the National Capital as representative of the Altadena Chamber of Commerce and present a deodar tree.

Probably the most picturesque cedar of deodar in America stands opposite the White House and a few rods northeast of the Jackson statue. For years it was incorrectly labeled on its metal shield as a Cedar of Lebanon. Near the southwest corner of the same Lafayette Square is a slender treelet with a bronze marker explaining that it was dedicated to Grace Goodhue Coolidge by the women's clubs of Washington, and that it is a quercus rubra (red oak); and it happens to be a scarlet oak. But when one's face is red, why quibble about the shade? ARCHIE RICE.

Was Swedenborg Mad?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of your recent correspondents referred to Emanuel Swedenborg as "mad." My encyclopedia says that "his writings show no symptoms of aberration, he was always regarded as a learned and pious man."

When, after 250 years, a man succeeds in getting his birthday observed on an international scale as this great scientist recently has, there must be a lot of people who would not agree with your correspondent. Swedenborg's visions of hell were cited by your correspondent as proof of his madness. But Swedenborg's visions of heaven were not mentioned. One of his most quoted books is on "Heaven and Hell" and his visions of heaven are so beautiful and include such profound philosophy that many people throughout the world find in these writings a worthy guide to human conduct. The Concern Of Taxpayers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial of May 14 entitled "Taxes and Expenditures" you state, "This concern over the possible loss of a few millions of tax receipts seems rather forced in view of our present budgetary position."

This philosophy, so often expressed by our press and politicians, and apparently prevailing among our people, is most harmful. It seems to me that when our national debt is enormous and rapidly increasing and our burden of taxes heavy, every dollar received and spent by the Government is important. It is when the contrary conditions obtain in our Government finances that we can afford to be unconcerned in a matter of a few million dollars. Every dollar we borrow must be paid and should be paid with a dollar as good as the one borrowed. It is evident that the more there are to pay the more painful the payment of each will be.

The Story Of Mr. Hogan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to commend your paper for the fine piece of work offered to the readers when you presented the story of Frank J. Hogan in The Sunday Post of May 15.

It was one of the finest and most impressive biographical sketches appearing in your paper, and I read it with intense interest. Even though this illustrious career made good material to work with, it couldn't have been presented more interestingly than the manner in which it was presented. The material was well organized, bringing out the interesting little incidents and carefully blending them into the story with the more important phases of his career, thus making it more enjoyable to read and to keep the reader's interest. The group of informal poses of the different moments of his past career, fitted into the story most harmoniously.

I hope to see more such stories appearing in The Post.

The Stimsons' Gift.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since they can't take it with them, how admirable and sensible of Mr. and Mrs. Stimson to assure the preservation of their beautiful estate, Woodley, by deeding it to Phillips Academy?

This act is a reproach to certain rich men (and let us hope an example to others) who, to avoid paying taxes, have allowed the earthly mansions they once were privileged to inhabit to be razed and their site to be occupied by parking lots, hot dog stands and other degradations. T. H. R.

Brickbats For Bureaucrats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: None of the abuses said by the bureaucrats to exist in industry are half as ruinous to the welfare of the forgotten man as the evils bureaucracy has created within itself.

If more bureaucrat politicians and reformers joined the unemployed ranks the national unemployment problem would cure itself in record time.

To their credit be it said they have piped down agreeably of late, perhaps in the realization that another untimely lunge to the left by the much-buffeted and mis-piloted Ship of State might sink the craft and their ambitions with it.

Real Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I congratulate Mr. Arch McDonald on the fine way he handles the ball games. You have me so interested that when Washington is losing I am pulling my hair out. If they lose many more games I will be bald-headed. His coworker, Mr. Sweeney, has been swell also.

Mr. McDonald is doing his best in bringing me enjoyment in the ball games, so I said to myself why can't I do something. I already am a Wheaties eater, so I had to think. The Post also helps bring the games, so I decided to order The Post. I am already getting two other daily papers, but I believe I owe The Post something. S. D. WHARTON.

Propaganda In Latin America.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On the House Naval Affairs Committee docket is the bill introduced by Representative Celler concerned with the construction and maintenance, by the Navy Department with cooperation of the office of the Commissioner of Education, of a so-entitled "Pan-American Broadcasting Station."

The problem which this bill attempts to solve involves our national and international future, particularly our corresponding relations with Fascist-inclined European governments and the continuance of the present neighborly attitude in respect to our immediate and remote southern neighbors. Ostensibly, the purpose of this legislation, and the noble intention of its author, is the establishment of an American hemisphere separated from Europe.

It proposes, for instance, to authorize the Navy Department to construct a sufficiently powerful short-wave station, and for the Commissioner of Education to supply programs suitable, in order that American diplomacy may ween from the above-mentioned European governments the political thought of the American republics.

Events of the last few years in Europe have forced upon us an extremely difficult position. European affairs should rightly be of interest to our students, diplomats, representatives of commercial concerns having business on the eastern side of the Atlantic; but, this justified interest should be an end in itself. Conditions throughout the world have changed greatly since Lord Bryce wrote in substance that American interests have remained essentially on the American side of the Atlantic and therefore we are not compelled to engage in disputes involving the Old World nations; nevertheless this reasoning still applies.

Therefore, it should be of little immediate importance to the United States if Il Duce is determined to make Victor Emmanuel Emperor of Ethiopia. However, if he and his African cohort attempt to stretch authoritarian doctrines to meet the conditions prevailing just south of us, that should not be considered merely "interesting" to us, but, a threat to our way of life.

Reference to the Monroe Dictrine is not enough. The terms of encroachment as understood when this document was drafted are not terms which anticipated purely economic warface, or, short of that, constant nonconstructive propaganda. To date the nondemocratic powers have increasingly employed the latter, while the democratic lineup has never resorted to serious use of the former. Consequently, all important activity has been on the side of the Fascists.

Therefore, the importance of disturbing the constant flow of undemocratic enlightenment is a job bluntly facing American diplomacy; this fact can be generally realized. The question involved is the means. As with many utilities, its destiny either remains to be free or controlled.

Analyzed, it can amount to this: Effectively and completely to halt what amounts to twentieth century intervention in Latin-American affairs and thought it is imperative for this Government to attract the audience of the millions in question. The focus must be direct and intense. Can the present equipment of commercial broadcasting satisfactorily gain this audence, or is it necessary for the Government to go into the business?

It is my opinion that the private companies and stations as we know them can satisfactorily achieve all that an emergency Government one could, and more expeditiously. This nation's three main networks have for years captured the interest of millions of critical citizens of the United States. Through their constant and keen interest we now have, undoubtedly, the freest broadcasting service in the world, supplying the greatest variety of program material. This great service can accomplish the most that anyone could reasonably expect, if it is allowed the opportunity. Public radio entertainment, whether it be destined for the American public of the United States or that of Latin America, is no enterprise for the United States Government.

The Post Impressionist

Early Music.

THE recent Folk Festival stirred interests in early music. In some European countries a few centuries ago a person who lacked musical ability—well, there was just something wrong with his "bringing-up."

In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries London was full of musicians. Royalty, evidently, set the fashion in those early days, as the kings and their families were musicians. Henry VIII played the lute and the virginal. Ann Boleyn was an enthusiastic musician, too. King Edward VI, according to old diaries, was quite an accomplished musician, and played the lute especially well. In an old letter written by Catherine of Aragon to her daughter she insisted upon her playing the lute and the virginal.

The virginal was a small rectangular spinet without legs and usually placed on a table. The strings were metal, one for each note, and was played by means of picking with a piece of quill or whalebone. It resembled the harpischord, and was the most popular of all instruments in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in England.

The lute, another favorite of that period, was a stringed instrument having a large pear-shaped body, and, like the virginal, the sound was made by picking. Queen Elizabeth was an expert at playing the virginal. The best known collection of virginal music manuscripts is known as Queen Elizabeth's Virginal Book.

It is said that Charles I "often appointed the services and anthems himself" in the Royal Chapel, "and would play his part exactly well on the bass-viol."

A Fellow of Trinity was expected to sing "his part" in chapel as a matter of course. It was considered the merest qualification that an Elizabethan bishop should be able to sing well. And young university gentlemen thought it nothing to learn all the mysteries of both pricksong—a written part, and descant—an extempore part.

Musical evenings had a prominent place in all social life during that period. One writer relates of a dinner party when the conversation was entirely about music and after the dinner, according to the custom, "parts" were handed around by the hostess. One guest, when given his part, made excuses as to his vocal inability and finally was compelled to confess that he was not musical at all. At this the other guests "wondered," and some whispered to their neighbors, "How was he brought up?"

The unmusical guest became so embarrassed that he left the party immediately and sought an old music master. The old master was greatly surprised to see his caller and even more so when he learned that he wished to take music lessons. This particular young man was known to be bitterly against music in all its branches, as he contended it was a "corrupter of good manners, and an allurement to vices."

But his experience at the dinner party changed his views completely and he was eager to learn, so eager to learn that he was willing to start in from the very beginning as though he were a child.

When his first lesson ended he bade his master farewell: "Sir, I thanke you, and meane so diligently to practice till our next meeting, that then I thinke I shall be able to render you a full account of all which you have told me, till the which time I wish you such contentment of mind and ease of body as you desire to yourselfe . . ." The master replied, "I thanke you and assure yourselfe it will not be the smallest part of my contentment to see my scholars go towardly forward in their studies, which I doubt not but you will doe . . ."

It was not only the upper classes that were enthusiastic about music, but the lower classes as well. Singing in parts was a common amusement with soldiers, watchmen, cobblers, tinkers, blacksmiths and even country parsons. Young college students looked upon part-singing and extempore singing as a diversion and a proper form of recreation after hard studying.

The art of descant corresponded closely with what is known today as "strict counterpoint." It should be extempore and not written, as when written it ceased to be true descant and was known as "pricksong."

In those earlier days both master and student were so intensely interested in music that they often carried a "plaine-song book" in their pockets and walked through fields singing together—"the master, hee would sing the plainesong and cause me to sing the descant."

It was even the custom for a man awaiting his turn in the barber shop to while the time away by playing some instrument. The cittern was the instrument usually played; it had four strings and four frets, much like a guitar, and had a carved head of dragons or gargoyles, and was considered a rather vulgar instrument. Other popular musical instruments at that time were the tabor, which was a small drum, and the sackbut, which was about the same as the slide trombone.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

They Don't Like Our Ernest.

THERE IS great indignation in Rome against Mr. Ernest Hemingway, the fur-bearing author, because of certain remarks which he wrote from Spain about the valor of Mussolini's Invincible Black Shirts.

PEGLER

Mr. Hemingway wrote that the Conquering Legions of the Duce marched on two-way feet, or words to that effect, and were faster in reverse than forward. He was referring particularly to their conduct at Guadalajara, where the Duce's Indomitable Hosts executed a spirited advance to the rear and suffered many casualties from trampling.

It appears that combat experience developed in Mussolini's Irresistibles a peculiarity which no other great military captain has had to consider as a hazard of war. In most Invincible Legions the front rank is regarded as the post of maximum peril and highest honor. But at Guadalajara, when Mussolini's brave Black Shirts encountered the enemy and started their charge for the rear, the men in the rear rank found themselves overwhelmed by the impetuous dash of their comrades in the forward positions who were climbing up their backs in their haste and shouting the Black Shirt war cry of "Get out of the way and let a man run that kin run!"

It is reliably reported that most of the Black Shirt casualties were caused by hobnails, and the Italian commander is known to have sent a paper to the high command recommending that hereafter in building military roads it would be an excellent idea to bank the turns, as his men lost much time and many lives slowing up on the curves.

• • • •

MR. HEMINGWAY'S description of this engagement was written against the background of his own experience in the war to end war, in which he served with the Italians and observed the great Caporetto Run. He thought the Black Shirts were even faster in retreat than the weary and half-hearted soldiers of the Royal Army of those days.

The Fascist journalists of Rome seem to have detected a derogatory note in Mr. Hemingway's tribute to the Black Shirts' footwork, however, and some of them have proposed that he throw away his pen, or typewriter, and meet the Black Shirts personally on the field of honor.

They obviously must know, however, that Mr. Hemingway is now up in his forties, that he weighs about 200 pounds and that he has not been keeping in athletic trim.

It was one thing for Mr. Hemingway to win a newspaper decision over Mr. Max Eastman in a closed room in a dispute over the allegation that he wore false eyelashes on his chest. But any fair sportsman would be bound to admit that Mr. Hemingway, at his age and weight, would have no chance of catching the Duce's Invincible Legions, who are all young and trained to get off their marks fast and run all day, always urged to greater haste by the hot breath of their comrades on their necks.

• • • •

IF THE Roman journalists had proposed a meeting between Mr. Hemingway and the Black Shirts in some bullring or stockade, that would have been different and Mr. Hemingway probably would have accepted with alacrity. But in open country, and especially on a downhill terrain, the contest would be so one-sided as to add no luster to the burnished eagles on the standards of the Duce's valiant hordes. The Duce's heroes would run Mr. Hemingway ragged.

Mr. Hemingway wrote another thought which also seems to have been misconstrued by the Roman journalists as a dirty dig at the Fearless Legions. He said that whenever a fearless Black Shirt falls down and suffers hobnail bruises while advancing to the rear the sight of blood arouses the tenderest filial feelings in the conquering hero and sets him to crying, "Mamma mia!' Mamma mia!" in the night. He thought this rather sweet in an Invincible Legion and suggested, in a respectful way, that Mussolini ought to send their mammas with them when they go out to execute his inflexible will.

At the risk of the same displeasure that Mr. Hemingway now suffers one is tempted to propose a new war song for the Invincible Legions. Song-writing is a specialized art, but, roughly, the theme would be:—"Oh, mamma! Oh, mamma! That Spaniard's here again."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Man Of The Year.

The most courageous man in the United States has been definitely located. He is James Gailey Ashley, formerly of Brattleboro, Vt., but presently of Litchfield, Conn. Mr. Ashley actually wants to own an American railroad!

• • • •

He is probably the only male in the country at the present time who wouldn't leap out the window at the very thought.

• • • •

Owning and operating railroads is the one thing scores of Americans would like to stop doing, but with Jim Ashley it's a passion.

• • • •

Ashley leased an abandoned line up in Vermont a few years ago and ran it with the aid of his wife, but even when it collapsed he wasn't cured. He has now bought a 6-mile branch of the New Haven Railroad between East Canaan and Norfolk and will have it running any day now, weather and Mrs. Ashley permitting.

• • • •

Mrs. Ashley is the board of directors, flagman, steward, conductor, train dispatcher and assistant to the general manager. In a pinch she can also act as a dissenting stockholder and magazine vendor.

• • • •

The Ashleys may or may not make any dough but they must be America's No. 1 Couple for Good Clean Fun.

• • • •

Mr. Ashley as a boy probably got toy railroad trains every Christmas, and Mrs. Ashley got, well, she got Mr. Ashley.

• • • •

Mrs. Ashley must have been pretty stunned the first time Jim looked up from his newspaper and said, "Honey, I think I'll throw up my job and buy me a railroad!"

• • • •

Or maybe she just asked him one evening, "How are things going down at the office, Jim?" and he replied without batting an eye, "Lousy! If I could find a locomotive I wouldn't even show up at the dump tomorrow morning.

• • • •

Anyhow Jim got his locomotive and is still at it. He thinks a 6-mile line such as the East Canaan to Norfolk one is just the right size for a man and wife. At least all the labor troubles will be under one roof.

• • • •

We can see no real chance of trouble until Mrs. Ashley demands more money as a railroad worker.

• • • •

And even then it should be easy to avert a crisis. Mr. Ashley can always argue, "Oh, look, mom! Be reasonable! . . . There's no real dough in this business but think of all the fun pulling the locomotive whistle as we near the bend!"

Japan is concentrating on the biggest drive against China this year. She is even thinking of calling it war.

Siam held its first royal elephant hunt last week and the catch totaled 55 wild bull elephants. It seems they weren't biting or something.

Europe In Shadow

Correspondent Finds Tensions And Fears Prevalent Everywhere With Old Bases Of Politics Destroyed.

By Peter F. Drucker.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

MOST IMPORTANT of all the impressions, facts and figures gathered during a trip of observation through the main European countries, appears to be the impression of the universality and extent of tension and fear, everywhere, in all countries and in all classes.

One day they are stronger and break through to the surface in the form of panic as in England, Holland and Switzerland after Hitler's invasion of Austria. These things quieten down again superficially. But under the surface of "business as usual" fear and tension remain undiminished.

They betray themselves in chance remarks which you can hear everywhere like the half-joking, half-serious answer which a Londan banker gave to the writer's question why he had suddenly stopped eating at the restaurant at which he had taken lunch daily for 20 years: "It isn't bombproof." Or they show themselves in a sudden cracking of the outward shell of confidence and security like on the day in Milan when two mechanized divisions drove through the town in full daylight on their way to Italy's northern frontier.

The Milan people who only the night before had celebrated Italy's victories in Spain with a show of genuine enthusiasm just could not stand the sight of tanks, heavy guns and armored trucks roaring past; by the end of the two hours during which the troops drove through, the onlookers were pale and trembling and many were in hysterics.

What Europe fears most is, of course, war, and this fear has been multiplied by Hitler's invasion of Austria. Yet, during the last months, fear and tension seem to have grown far beyond that. It is the Unknown—the threatening, apparently inevitable collapse of the entire fabric of European society—fear of which grips the people more than anything tangible like war or depression. To a large extent this development is due to the disappearance of all moral or rational bases of European politics.

Nations Risking All On A Gamble.

SINCE ENGLAND threw collective security and the League overboard three months ago—regardless of whether that was necessary or not—every major European power bases its policies upon a gamble. And everyone knows that it is a gamble against superior odds; for nobody believes—as they did 25 years ago—that wars can be won. Whatever illusions were still entertained on that score have been destroyed by the bombing of Barcelona, which impressed Europe almost as much as the conquest of Austria.

The German gamble is, of course, based upon the expectation that the western powers will not fight for the small Danubian countries; and so far Hitler has been right—against the advice of his generals and his diplomats.

Italy's gamble is based upon the expectation that the western powers will pay to lure her away from Germany, while Germany will respect Italian interests and territory; so far Mussolini has also managed to keep his hand in, although the "Anschluss" of Austria was a bad shock, and although the Italian specialists and advisers in Spain have gradually been replaced by Germans during the last months.

It is the English gamble that is the most obscure and at the same time the most important since the other non-Fascist nations in Europe are either too weak—like France—or too small to have a foreign policy of their own, and must therefore follow the English lead. That the British believe that German penetration of the east and southeast is the best safeguard of peace is fairly obvious; and that they are therefore prepared to resign themselves to whatever Hitler does along the Danube—provided there is no armed clash—and to sacrifice 70,000,000 people between the Danube and the Black Sea to Naziism, is also fairly clear.

Is there an even more sinister conception behind British policy? Especially has the old idea of the "Cliveden Set" which has become so prominent lately, namely, that war between Germany and Russia is inevitable and that the two monsters will then destroy each other, become the basis of Mr. Chamberlain's ideas? And if that should be the case, how probable is it that instead of such a war there would be an alliance of the two against the west, just as there almost was such an alliance before the last war and as there was a German-Russian understanding immediately after?

Europe Succumbing To Totalitarian Ideas.

THESE WILL undoubtedly become the vital questions of European policy in the next years; and to the extent to which the people giving the one answer will base themselves on belligerent speeches in Moscow and Berlin, the people giving the other answer will be able to point to the ever-increasing similarity of the two social systems, especially now after the "non-Aryan" policy has been used openly to expropriate the great majority of the propertied classes in Vienna.

Next to the universal tension the extent to which Europe has succumbed to "totalitarian" economic and social conceptions, has made the greatest impression upon the writer.

Largely this is the result of the armaments race which forces all European countries to mobilize their resources in a way unheard-of in peace times. But beyond that degree of state control, state interference and slow expropriation through currency devaluation, excessive taxes and virtually compulsory loans that is necessitated by the requirements of economically almost unbearable armaments, the "planned economy" and the rigid organization of the "totalitarian" countries, and especially of Germany, seems to have an unholy fascination for the masses in the small European countries.

They all know the price which has to be paid for this organization; they realize that it would not only cost their liberties but also make them poorer. And yet Europe is full of discussions as to how the "advantages" of "totalitarianism" can be obtained without sacrifice of freedom and liberty.

Tensions Increased After The Anschluss.

IT IS NOT the small circle of Fascists who indulge in these thoughts, but the very "anti-Fascists," the English trade unions, the French socialists or the liberal Protestants in Holland. And if there should be a severe economic depression in Europe—of which some observers profess to see the first signs—these classes might conceivably even ask themselves whether falling industrial production and rising unemployment are not a high price for civil liberties—although they know very well that the "totalitarian" prosperity is only a deception.

All this tension and fear, as well as the increasing strain upon the European social and economic structure, have largely been latent long before Hitler invaded Austria. The great importance of this event is that it has released all these latent cross-currents and has demonstrated to the European people the extent to which the very foundations of the European order have been destroyed.

So far the invasion of Austria really initiated a new period in European politics and economics—a period in which the old foundations of collective security, of the League of Nations and of a free economic order have apparently been permanently discarded.

Democrat League Indorses Ballot, Honors Randolph

The cause of District suffrage was boosted at the third annual District League Day dinner, held last night at the Shoreham by the Democratic League of the District of Columbia.

Dr. F. Thomas Evans, founder of the league, presented a plaque to Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, for his services on behalf of the District. Evans received a Founder's Plaque from Joseph Cotter, attorney.

Other speakers included Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland; Representatives Richard M. Duncan, of Missouri; William F. Allen, of Delaware, and Robert L. Mouton, of Louisiana, and Malcolm McConihe, Democratic National committeeman for the District. Hugh V. Keiser, president of the league, presided.

Big Ideas

Story Of The Great Theorists.

NO STORY is more fascinating than that of man's struggle with the unknown. Today we accept science and the major theories on which it has been built as a matter of course. Carefully-tested findings of research no longer require human sacrifice at the stake to establish their validity. But the general acceptance of science does not minimize the dramatic qualities of its origin and development.

In his volume entitled "Architects of Ideas" Ernest R. Trattner has taken full advantage of the deep human interest in intellectual pioneering. He has truly written "the story of the great theories of mankind." Man's slow penetration into the mysteries of the universe is cleverly interwoven with the biographies of the great theorists. The growth of modern knowledge is given a background of human drama that makes it not only readable but often fascinating.

Copernicus, Darwin, Pasteur and Einstein are household words. But the contributions of each to our understanding of the world in which we live is fully comprehended by few people. For the great majority of readers the works of these pioneer thinkers have been too technical or tedious. And too many writers who have undertaken to explain the theories of the solar system, of evolution, of disease and of relativity have failed to infuse them with the vitality of a human experience.

• • • •

IN SOME RESPECTS Trattner has done for the great modern theories of science what Will Durant did for philosophy in his "Story of Philosophy." Scholars may scorn this popularization of the masters of thought. But educators will not. Books which give the intelligent layman an understanding of the broad outlines of science serve a very real purpose. And when they are written as lucidly and as interestingly as "Architects of Ideas" they are a doubly welcome addition to our store of informative literature.

To intensify the human interest of his work Trattner has divided it into 15 chapters, each of which is named for the outstanding theorist in the field discussed. But the book is not confined to the lives and work of these 15 "architects" in the intellectual sphere. Copernicus, for example, is not the exclusive subject of the chapter devoted to the theory of the solar system. Rather he is the principal actor in a drama that includes the first assaults upon the Ptolemy theory, the burning of Bruno, the tragedy of Galileo, and the comparative triumph of Johann Kepler. As the reader is made acquainted with Copernicus, his methods of work and the activities of his followers, the modern concept of the universe revolving around the sun is gradually developed. It becomes a gripping story rather than a dose of either historic or scientific information.

Not all of the chapters maintain the tempo of that devoted to Copernicus. The reason may be that the struggle to establish most other modern theories has been less intense than the fight over dethronement of the earth as the center of the universe. Yet few are likely to give this book a permanent place on the shelf until they have read the chapters on Hutton and the structure of the earth, on Dalton and the discovery of the atom, on Lavoisier and the development of chemistry, on Rumford and the theory of heat, Huygens and the theory of light, Malthus and his studies on population or Schwann and the discovery of the cell.

INCLUSION OF KARL MARX and his economic interpretation of history in the volume gives it additional variety and color. Marx's theory certainly must be classed as one of the great influences in the modern world. Yet a certain contrast between this and other chapters of the book is unavoidable. Most of the "great theories" which Trattner has selected for discussion have been proved beyond reasonable doubt. But the revolutionary doctrine evolved by Marx is far from general acceptance in any country except Soviet Russia. And there a modification of his theories is maintained by terroristic methods.

Between Marx and Einstein are interesting chapters on Freud and the theory of the mind, Chamberlain and the origin of planets, Boas and the theory of man. When thus grouped together these theorists may appear to be a strange assortment of men. But they have at least one characteristic in common—a devotion to truth as it is revealed by observation, research and re-examination of traditional beliefs. Trattner refers to them as "a thin and irregular line of searchers after truth, men who battled almost alone on the vast frontiers of knowledge."

It is in this thought that the book finds its unity. The work of each great personality is separate and distinct. But the motives behind those achievements are similar and the findings of one expert tend to merge with those of all others to give mankind a better understanding of the world in which we live. Science consists of varied work on many different salients; yet basically it is one struggle against the unknown.

• • • •

THE THEORIES that have survived this relentless, probing, testing and re-analysis are comparatively few in number. However, many theories that have perished have nevertheless contributed to enlightenment. For they have replaced other theories that were still farther from the truth, in addition to stimulating the scientific process by which new discoveries have been made.

Even the major theories now generally accepted may undergo further modification. "Ultimate truth," this author says, "is never attained in any one generation by any one man. Truth grows by small accretions and is relative to the age in which it appears." And it must be admitted that the facts which science has brought to light are dwarfed by comparison with the mysteries which continue to elude human analysis.

Perhaps it is Mr. Trattner's realization that the great theorists of the last few centuries have developed a technique of infinite possibilities that makes his discussion of achievements to date so interesting.

"ARCHITECTS OF IDEAS," by Ernest R. Trattner (Carrick & Evans, $3.75.)

Lower California

A bill is being introduced in Congress by Representative Kramer of Los Angeles, apparently at the instance of a Mr. Evans of that city, providing for the purchase by the United States from Mexico of the peninsula of Lower California. The purchase price, to be agreed on by an international commission, could be used by Mexico, according to Mr. Evans, to pay off the claims of expropriated oil companies against the Mexican government, and the territory acquired by the United States could be used to settle millions of our unemployed.

This is quite a scheme and no doubt Mexico would like to have the money, though it has not evinced a desire so far to trade off Lower California. As far as settling the unemployed there, or making any other use of the peninsula, that seems out of the question. Unless the reference books are wrong all the United States would get out of the trade would be some 94,000 Mexicans and a lot of desert land. Like other desert areas, parts of Lower California could be made highly fertile with irrigation, but that is not a simple problem where the average annual rainfall is less than 10 inches and the climate inordinately hot.

The World Of Wales

"MY WALES," by Rhys Davies. (Funk & Wagnalls, $2.50.)

This is the third of a series on the British Isles. Rhys Davies writes honestly of a tiny country which, as he realizes, is little known to other people of the world. He shows how the land of Wales has fashioned the character of the people and how the character of the people has shaped the character of the Welsh nation. There is little "beauty," as the word is popularly understood, in this account. But it is written by a man who knows the country and the people he is writing about, and it is valuably informative and dispassionate in its viewpoint.

Senate G. O. P. Fights Priming; Democrats Quit

Democrats Give Up Battle But Vandenberg Files Substitute Bill.

By Robert C. Albright.

Senate Republicans yesterday took over the leadership of the fight against the President's $4,512,000,000 spending-lending program, as Senate Democratic opponents narrowed their attack to an effort to "improve" the bill.

Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, a leader of the Democratic opposition, said he "has lost all faith in pump priming, but there is no chance to beat it. The best we can hope for is a number of amendments improving the bill."

Duplicating House minority efforts to eliminate "pump priming" features and return administration of relief to the States, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, introduced a substitute for the relief section of the bill.

Vandenberg Substitute.

Meantime Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of utility executives, said the utility industry could provide "a mighty machine for creating jobs and spreading social benefits, if the Government would cease competition with private power." He pledged "co-operation" by utility interests in providing jobs.

Gadsden appeared before the Senate Appropriations sub-committee in opposition to "priming" provisions of the relief bill which he said would permit the PWA to continue to foster public duplication of private power facilities. He fought a section authorizing the PWA to lease Government-built projects to municipalities tied by legal debt limits.

Farm Emergency Feared.

The Vandenberg proposal would strike out PWA appropriations but provide $2,160,000,000 for relief allocations to the States by a "non-partisan" Federal board over the full fiscal year ending July 1, 1939. States would have to put up at least 25 per cent of Federal grants. The Administration's proposal provides $1,250,000,000 for work relief over a seven-month period, without any State "matching."

An attempt to increase appropriations by at least $200,000,000 to make parity payments to wheat, corn and cotton farmers meantime was launched in the Senate subcommittee holding hearings on the omnious spending-lending program.

Senator Richard B. Russell, jr. (Democrat), of Georgia, said he would offer two parity payment amendments to the relief bill. The $500,000,000 farm act authorized parity payments to farmers (based on the 1909-1914 price average), if and when additional funds were available.

Russell said he would offer one amendment to increase the total of the bill, and if that fails offer another to "earmark" bill funds for the purpose. The Georgian said "there is going to be an emergency condition among farmers this winter, particularly in wheat and cotton sections."

He declared Wallace told the subcommittee that as a pump priming measure "it would have a better effect on all other lines of business than any other money spent."

In the Senate, Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, introduced a bill to reimburse producer members of cotton cooperative associations for losses attributed to stabilization operations of the old farm board. The bill would authorize $25,000,000 for settlements and payments to growers.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee meanwhile prepared to wind up hearings on the relief program this morning, and to proceed to write the Senate version of the bill. Chairman Alva B. Adams indicated it may be ready for a full committee vote later this week.

Highlights in yesterday's hearings were:

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins told the subcommittee unemployment is increasing. He testified 4,000,000 persons have lost their jobs since the start of the recession, an increase of 1,000,000 over the figure he gave the House committee. He placed total unemployment at between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000, and said the spending bill would enable WPA to increase its relief rolls to 3,000,000 next winter.

Mrs. Sara Oliver Hulswit, of Suffern, N. Y., who said she represented the "Women's Rebellion" against the spending-lending program, told the subcommittee administration of relief should be returned to the States "and the smallest subdivisions of the States, so we can watch it and see whether it makes sense." She said she has received letters from housewives in every State opposing the priming program.

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, said he would offer an amendment to make WPA allocations for relief work materials per man "uniform for all of the States."

Hearings will be concluded this morning, after the subcommittee hears Frederic A. Delano, of the National Resources Committee, testify in favor of an increase over the $250,000 provided by the House for his agency.

Speaking for the utility executives, Gadsden told the group the chief obstacle to creating "a great job pool" in the power industry is investor fear of further Federal duplication of existing facilities.

He said the spending bill, in addition to renewing the gift-and-loan policy of subsidizing power competition, goes farther and permits the Government to build and lease projects to public agencies disqualified to borrow because of legal debt limitations.

"Stop duplication of facilities by Federal subsidy and much lost confidence will be restored," he said.

Swanson Is Given Anchor of Poppies

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson yesterday received a 6-foot anchor made of artificial poppies from Lieut. Charles E. Weickhardt, U. S. Navy, retired, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Swanson entrusted the tribute to the Admiral Robert E. Peary Ship of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, for use in Memorial Day services at the navy yard.

Keeping Tab.

Harry Ritner, of GAO, writes: Inquiries have been received regarding H.R. 8202 which provides the reorganization of the Government and the establishment of the Department of Welfare. The measure was reported out of the Reorganization Committee on August 10, 1937; report No. 1487, passed the House on August 13, 1937, and reported in the Senate on March 25, 1938. The bill was reached on calendar in the Senate on May 5 and was passed over on motion of Senator Vandenberg.

If and when the measure comes up for consideration, the reorganization program of June 30, 1932, will be the principal issue. Incidentally, the following agencies would be exempted from reorganization: Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Federal Power Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Communication Commission, National Labor Relations Board, National Bituminous Coal Commission, Maritime Commission, Engineer Corps, Coast Guard and General Accounting Office.

Picket Question.

Employes of the cafeterias in Government buildings, disgruntled at the Welfare and Recreation Association management, are withholding picketing on hope that Secretary Ickes (under whom the WRA operates) will settle the quarrel speedily. The employes want to picket to bring the fuss to a head. Their union, which is affiliated with the C. I. O., has recommended waiting on some action by the Secretary. The union seems smart. It figures that Secretary Ickes in his own lights is a liberal, that his action won't be too much against the employes, may even lean toward them; and they know also that you never will get anywhere with the Secretary by holding an ax over his head—as a demonstration by pickets would be construed. The union is bearing down on one solid point—that involving sick leave. They contend that in the absence of any sick leave provision, the cafeteria workers stay on the job until ready to drop, thus bringing themselves into contact with food eaten by healthy persons.

The United Office and Professional Workers will hald a dance at the Melody Club, beginning at 8 o'clock, Saturday evening. There will be a floor show. The club is at Thomas Circle . . . South Carolinians living in Washington will pay a tribute to their King Cotton tomorrow night at a cotton ball and cotton fashion show in the continental room of the Wardman Park Hotel. The festivities are arranged by the South Carolina State Society.

House Veering to Substitution Of Senate's Modified Wage Bill

A strong House movement to substitute the less drastic Senate version of the controversial wage-hour bill became evident yesterday. Rapid support was accorded it by conservative Southern Democrats, hitherto foes of any wage-hour legislation, on the grounds that the Senate bill's flexible differentials would be less injurious to Southern industry than the rigid House measure.

The movement was further indication of the crumbling opposition to the wage-hour bill, leaders said, and evidence that the Southern Democrats have decided to focus their forces on an effort to obtain substitution of the Senate bill.

The House measure, authorizing the Secretary of Labor to administer its provisions, is called an "escalator" bill, since it would fix minimum wages at 25 cents per hour for the first year, stepping this up 5 cents an hour until a limit of 40 cents was reached; while hours are stepped down two hours a year from a first-year limit of 44 hours to the final limit of 40 hours.

The Senate bill would set up a Labor Standards Board, which would determine the hours and wages to be set in each industry in each locality according to the weight of the various factors involved, living costs, average wages, etc.

Passage of the House wage-hour bill, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins estimated yesterday, would eventually shorten the hours of about 2,500,000 workers and increase the wages of more than 850,000 factory employees.

The Secretary pleaded for solution of the wage-hour problem in an address to a regional conference of Democratic women in Chicago. The address was broadcast by the mutual broadcasting system from Washington.

The Secretary said the far-reaching effect of the wage-hour legislation would not be instant. Only a small percentage of the 13,000,000 workers employed in interstate industry, she said, would be directly and imediately benefited.

She asserted, however, that reports to the Labor Department indicated at least 10 per cent of all wage earners were receiving less than 40 cents an hour and a large group, therefore, would benefit when the measure had been in force three years.

"Wage and hour legislation," Miss Perkins said, "will protect that great majority of employers who are trying to maintain decent standards, but may now be at the mercy of price cutting competitors."

Merger Bill Foes Promise to Fight Revival Attempt

Two leading opponents of the Government reorganization bill yesterday canvassed Senate sentiment on revival of the measure, and promised "a determined fight that will delay adjournment a long time" if an effort is made to drive it to passage.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, and Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, Democrats, reopened their assault on the merger measure as the President avoided a direct question on his plans for the bill.

Ray Herbeck's Band Held Over At Glen Echo

Henry Halstead to Come to Spanish Garden Next Week.

By Chanticleer

In the Spanish Garden Ballroom at Glen Echo Park Ray Herbeck and his famous band have been held over for the current week. Joe Martine, Shirley Martin and the Three Top Hatters, vocalists, have been sharing the wave of popularity which will continue until lights are dimmed Saturday night. Then another Californian will take over, Henry Halstead, who was at the St. Francis in San Francisco for four years, and in other bright spots from coast to coast.

Frank Swadley, manager of the Carlton, has been playing host to Hollywood's loveliest recently. Last week it was Olympe Bradna and currently he is entertaining Marion Weldon, Paramount starlet, who came here by plane as Hollywood's representative at the air-mail week festivities.

The team of Taras and Masters is attracting Washingtonians and out-of-town visitors to the Lotus this week with clever dance steps and breath-taking spins and swings.

The dance team of Warren and Myra are featured in a circus number which employs all the razzle-dazzle, from cracking of whips to shooting of revolvers.

Ted Alexander, who plays the bass fiddle in the Paul Kain Band in the metronome room of the metronome room of the Wardman Park, is a brother of the bass fiddler in Wayne King's Band, now at the Earle.

The third week of the national ice carnival starts with a new routine. Paul Von Gassner, director of the show, has been working out new stunts to be done in dazzling new attire. One of the numbers will be "Snow White," dramatized on ice with Marguerite Verden as Snow White and Von Gassner as the prince.

Peggy Fahy, the popular comedienne, will do a skit of Mickey Mouse riding an ostrich.

The military number with Russ Jones as major and the ballet in snappy costumes is supposed to stop the show.

For those not content with watching, the Shoreham is opening the floor Thursday to all who would like to try their skating skill. Every afternoon henceforth except Sunday between the hours of 3:30 and 5:30 there will be skating by local lads and lassies. Paul Von Gassner will be on hand to teach the fine points of making a figure eight and doing stunt skating.

The Bamboo Gardens offer a famous dancing team, Nolan and Woodward. This team is synonymous with the modernistic dance. Arnold and Florence, with an array of canine stars, are also featured.

Stinton Says Wife Forced Him to Wed And Maligned Him

In answer filed in District Court to his wife's suit for annulment, Joseph Whitla Stinton, of New York, yesterday declared the marriage was "at the insistence of the plaintiff."

Stinton, a New York lawyer, said his wife, Mrs. Lola M. Stinton, persuaded him to accompany her to her summer home in Nova Scotia, where he resided in a separate cottage. They were married in Bar Harbor, Me., in September, 1937.

Stinton said he was compelled to leave Mrs. Stinton because of her "vicious verbal assaults" which, he alleged, she began the second day of their marriage. He said when he first met Mrs. Stinton he was employed in the Department of Justice, but that now he is not employed and at the time of the separation was penniless.

The husband said he had relinquished all rights in a trust fund Mrs. Stinton had established for him.

President Asks Business Relief From Statistics

Calls for Survey to Fix Nature and Duplication of Present Reports.

The President yesterday sought relief for business and industry from the cost and inconvenience involved in the large number of statistical reports required by Washington's many Federal agencies.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote Dr. Stuart A. Rice, of the Central Statistical Board, that he is "concerned" at the mounting demands on business for this data. He called for a survey to determine the nature, duplications and diversity of reports now required.

The President asked Rice to report to him before January 1, 1939, recommendations on which legislation can be based to consolidate some demands for statistics. He said changes in present requirements should result in economies for Government and business alike.

Business interests long have complained of the increasing Government demand for statistical data. The President told reporters the complaints have not noticeably increased of late. He added that there was no particular reason for making the proposal at this time, except the survery by the Statistical Board may be of aid in conducting the 1940 census.

Government demands for business statistics range from those required by law to such agencies as the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission, to the voluntary data often sought by the Commerce Department's many bureaus.

Capt. Fletcher Named To Navigation Bureau

The Navy Department announced yesterday that Capt. Frank J. Fletcher, U. S. N., has been ordered to duty as assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Succeeding Capt. Chester W. Nimitz, who has been selected for promotion to rear admiral, he will be detached from the Naval Examining Board early next month to assume his new duties.

Second Concert By Civic Group Well Received

Hall Filled as Orchestra Under Kurt Hetzel Shows Its Potentialities.

The Community Center Department presents a concert by the Washington Civic Orchestra under Kurt Hetzel in the Central High School Auditorium Tuesday evening. Program: Overture to "Die Zauberfloete" (Mozart), Second Movement from Symphony No. 3 (Beethoven), "London Suite" (Eric Coates), "Procession of the Sardar" (Ippolitov-Ivanov), Second Movement from Symphony No. 5 (Chaikovski), "Les Preludes" (Liszt).

"Behold," sang the psalmist, how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity."

This might well serve as the motto for the Washington Civic Orchestra which gave its second concert last evening in the Central High School auditorium, for the orchestra communicated its enthusiasm to its audience in a comfortably filled hall.

The eighty-odd semiprofessionals not only gave a fine concert but they demonstrated great potentialities.

The program, a familiar one, found high regard with its audience. The Mozart number gave the evening a splendid start and the unity of the group was displayed immediately with a fine welding of themes and instruments. That the Beethoven followed this brilliant work was the more difficult for the orchestra, since here was the heaviest task of the evening. To do justice to the Beethoven an experienced orchestra is vital for an expression of its more subtle moods and in this work Dr. Hetzel's musicians' unfamiliarity with their work was more evident.

Back to a unity they were, however, for the familiar tunes of Sir Eric's London Suite, tunes played from the heart of London to the most out of the way P. & O. steamer in the far Pacific. These popular, swirling melodies, a picture of the British metropolis, were played with an elan which found unanimous favor. The movement from the Caucasian Sketches of Ippolitov-Ivanov was zestfully achieved, but the highlight of the concert was the finely done Chaikovski. Here the violins exhibited their finest work with unity and richness of tone. The coloring and blending of the group was genuinely good, boasting effective diminuendoes, a matter which the acoustics of the hall had made difficult in the other numbers. The familiar "Les Preludes," with its prophetic symphonic form closed the program.

Although Washington should be proud to boast such a group of citizens who play together so well and joyfully, Dr. Hetzel has done a great work and given promise of some exceedingly pleasant evenings this summer at the Sylvan Theater.

tinue hearings on a measure granting train dispatchers a 6-hour day. Labor proponents of the bill have been heard but officials wishing to testify against the measure have not yet appeared.

McAdoo Backs La Follette.

The Railway Labor Executives Association, organization of chiefs of railway labor unions, has created a new office, that of executive-secretary-treasurer; has named J. G. Luhrsen, president, American Train Dispatchers Association, to the post and will for the first time open a regular Washington office on June 1, with Luhrsen in charge.

George M. Harrison, president, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, is head of this organization, and has managed it from his Cincinnati office except for special visits to the city.

McAdoo began Senate debate on the question yesterday by repeating the argument made Monday by Senators Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, and Harry S. Truman (Democrat), Missouri, that the Banking Committee had not contemplated a railroad wage reduction when it originally reported the bill. He said he would not support the RFC-rail bill if such a result followed.

Wagner Opposes Loans.

Wagner then remarked that the committee had recalled the bill for further hearings and that possible alterations might be made in the previous favorable report on the measure. He said:

"At the meeting tomorrow the question will be raised as to whether the proposed legislation should pass in the face of a threat to reduce the wages of the employes of the roads.

"I am resisting any effort to use the credit of the United States to pay interest or something else on the railroad debt structure while permitting the railroads to take purchasing power out of the wage-earners' pockets by decreasing their wages."

Wheeler then told the members that previous conferences among railroad executives, labor officials, RFC officials and legislators had been based on "the distinct understanding that the Government would make loans to put men to work but not to pay interest on bonded indebtedness."

Office, Professional Workers to Convene

The prospects for peace between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. will be the chief topic of discussion by the national convention of the United Office and Professional Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, at its opening session today in the Burlington Hotel. The convention will last five days.

The organization is one year old and has grown from an original 8,000 members to 45,000.

District's New Engineer-Commissioner at Home

Rites Are Today For Dr. J.A. Fergel

Dr. John A. Fergel, 65, Washington dentist, died of a heart attack Monday at his home, 1405 Girard street northwest.

Born at Norwalk, Ohio, Dr. Fergel came to Washington more than 40 years ago to attend Georgetown University. A graduate of Georgetown Dental School, he afterward taught at the institution and devoted much time to charity work at St. Vincent's Orphanage. Before he began the practice of dentistry, Dr. Fergel spent several years as a professional actor.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Emma Simms Fergel and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Roland Trogner, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 8:30 a. m. today at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Dr. Walsh Will Talk.

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and regent of the School of Foreign Service, will speak on "The Challenge to Democracy" at the annual Congressional dinner of Potomac Grange No. 1, to be held tomorrow evening at 6:30 p. m. at the Hotel Harrington. The dinner is given in honor of Congressmen who are members of the Grange, national farm organization.

Fay Findlay Takes Prize for 6B Class In Poster Contest

Fay Findlay, of 6B Class at Force School, yesterday was adjudged the winner for her class in the poster contest of the District of Columbia Dental Society.

Second and third places in the same class went to Nancy Kirkner, 6B, Force School; Bert Wells, 6B, Cooke School. Winners for students in Grades 7 through 12 were Doris Vassos, 8A, Macfarland Junior High, and Harold Gooding, Eastern High School, while second and third places were awarded to George Munson, 9B, Eliot Junior; Warren Silver, 8A, Paul Junior; Elliott Twery, 10A, Roosevelt, and Alfonso Basile, Eastern.

In the parochial school division, first in the sixth grade class went to Paul Fitzpatrick, St. Anthony's, with Margaret Dunn and Robert Moore, both of St. Mary's, second and third, respectively.

Catherine Healy, Immaculate Conception, was first in the ninth grade class, with Catherine Theresa Domano, second, and Mary Helen Green, third. In the eleventh grade class, Elna Bennery, Immaculate Conception, was first; Anna May Schaben and Lorraine Koontz, both of Immaculate Conception, second and third.

Richard Skinner Rites Are Today

Richard Skinner, 73-year-old veteran of the Spanish American War, and retired Navy Yard employe, died Monday at Providence Hospital.

A native of Doncaster, Md., Mr. Skinner enlisted in the Navy during the Spanish War, and later entered service at the Washington Navy Yard, where he was in charge of the pipe shop for many years. He retired in 1928. Since his retirement he had lived in Doncaster.

Mr. Skinner was a member of the Anacostia Lodge of Masons, the Daughters of America, and the Junior Order of American Mechanics.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Z. Skinner, and a brother, Samuel Skinner, of Doncaster.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today at Chambers funeral home, 517 Eleventh street southeast. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Sen. Green Will Speak To Nursing Graduates

Senator Theodore F. Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, will give the principal address when 34 students of the Emergency Hospital School of Nursing are graduated at the school at 8 tonight.

have been combined and dredging and other harbor maintenance work since has been done under his supervision.

When informed of the appointment, Col. McCoach declared it an "entire surprise to me." He added, "Although I have not heard of it officially I have a hard man to follow in Col. Dan I. Sultan."

Universal commendation of the appointment was made by Engineer officers, who declared the slightly grayed, well-built officer "a grand fellow," and "thoroughly qualified and one of the men best fitted for the job."

Friends in the service added that he is "an easy man to work with and very popular throughout the service and the Engineer Corps."

Col. McCoach, who was a plebe at West Point when Col. Sultan was a member of the first class, graduated from the Military Academy in 1910.

He has had various assignments on engineering work and three tours of duty here. He was attached to the war plans division of the general staff from August, 1917, until May, 1918, when he was ordered abroad with the A. E. F. Returning to the United States in 1919, he served for two years in the operations division of the general staff. Col. McCoach was again on duty in the National Capital while studying at the Army War College from which he graduated in 1928.

During the World War Col. McCoach served on the general staff of the Twenty-seventh Division, participating in the September, 1918, attack on the Hindenburg Line.

A graduate of the Army School of the Line and the General Staff School, Col. McCoach is included on the General Staff Corps eligible list.

He had a prominent part in the development of the mammoth airports in Newark and Philadelphia while acting as WPA engineer for projects in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

His wife is the former Anna Black, of Philadelphia. They have one son, Lieut. David McCoach 3d, of the Army Engineers.

Roosevelt Signs Gettysburg Bill

Veterans of the Civil War, both Confederate and Union, will see again the field of Gettysburg, where the Southern cause reached its high tide, in a joint reunion from June 29 until July 6, under provisions of a measure signed yesterday by the President.

As guests of the United States the former enemies, whose average age today is 98 years, will be addressed by Mrs. Roosevelt on July 3, exactly three quarters of a century after Gen. Robert E. Lee began his retreat.

The law approved by the President provides that expenses of all veterans to and from Gettysburg, as well as costs at the celebration, will by defrayed by the Government, which will also provide an attendant for each of the veterans.

House Committee For Fountain Bill

The House Library Committee yesterday reported over the objection of the Fine Arts Commission the Sabath bill providing erection of the Columbian Fountain here and the Jenks bill to authorize completion of the Navy and Marine Memorial on Mount Vernon boulevard.

Still at odds over two bills aimed at the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, the committee came to no decision.

SAFE SPEEDY WAY TO FLUSH KIDNEYS OF HARMFUL ACIDS AND POISONS

Keep Bladder Free From Irritation and Stop Getting Up Nights

35 CENTS PROVES IT, WHY PAY MORE?

When you flush out the poisonous waste and acids that are clogging the millions of delicate filtering tubes of the kidneys you are going a long way toward helping nature to purify the blood—this means you'll live a longer, happier and healthier life.

You help nature and nature will reward you — give you more energy — more ambition—increase your physical attractiveness— you'll feel younger—more active.

Irritated Bladder Often Causes Nervousness—Sleeplessness

Not only that, but your irritated bladder should start to function more properly and you'll sleep more soundly the whole night thru.

You can stop getting up nights.

But remember this: when you start to flush kidneys of acid and poisons and put healthy activity into them and also soothe irritated bladder get a tried and true kidney diuretic and stimulant such as Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules that work thoroughly and harmlessly — don't depend on harsh, drastic medicines that promise wonders in just a few days—better be safe than sorry.

A Grand Diuretic Druggists Assert

Your druggist knows all about Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—he has been selling them for years to people who want a good diuretic and stimulant that is safe and inexpensive—that always works.

There's other symptoms of kidney trouble that make life miserable—that keep you feeling irritable and out of sorts.

Backache, for instance, and dizzy spells—nervousness and those terrible leg cramps—often passage is scanty and frequent and smarts and burns.

You Wouldn't Let Your Bowels Be Clogged With Poisonous Waste?

Doesn't it stand to reason that your waste clogged kidneys need a good thorough cleaning the same as your waste clogged bowels?

And when you can clean them safely and without harm and improve your health while so doing, why not ask your druggist for a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and start to get rid of the excess uric acid which poisons the system.

Sciatica—Neuritis—Lumbago

You can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for over 50 years to correct their aches and pains and to help banish excess uric acid conditions—the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

BE SURE AND GET THE GENUINE—ASK FOR GOLD MEDAL

Some other symptoms that point to clogged kidneys are puffy eyes—darkness under the eyes and moist palms.

But be sure and remember to ask for GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—every drug store in America sells them. Adv

Only Your Mileage Merchant OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Do you need any reminder of what oil you bought? Not if it delivers smooth long mileage that you can't forget! Then here's the real big value of the little drain tag you get from Your Mileage Merchant: he marks it with your mileage today as you change to his patented Conoco Germ Processed oil, and then you can keep tabs on how far you go before you ever need another quart in your OIL-PLATED engine.

OIL-PLATING is exclusive with Conoco Germ Processed oil. The patent-guarded Germ Process forces this oil to "magnetize" on to the working parts in the form of imbedded slippy OIL-PLATING. The parts that used to wear worst and make your oil "rub out" fastest, now possess this all-over, deep-seated OIL-PLATING. It can neither drain down while your engine is stopped, nor let loose in all the whirl of 4,000 revolutions a minute. Therefore OIL-PLATING, done only by Your Mileage Merchant, distinctly tells you why your Germ Processed oil and your car money won't be doing a "disappearing act." Continental Oil Co.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

What About Husbands Who Insist on Having Secretaries at All Parties They Attend, Asks Wife.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Will you give in your column an opinion on the problem that confronts the "home woman" here in Washington—more so, I think, than in any other city. I am one of them; in early middle age, good looking, with a husband, two children and a home to care for. I have little time for recreation and find little opportunity for outside interests, as nearly all afternoon meetings, lectures, teas, etc., are held late in day, when the average housewife must be home.

• • • •

My only time for parties is in the evening and I am faced with this problem: My husband always suggests that his office secretary be included in all such parties. I find other women complain of this same problem and I wonder if it is quite fair to us wives not to have our husbands to ourselves, without such competition, when we can manage to give or get to a party with them.

• • • •

These secretaries are usually young and both better groomed and better dressed than the wife can afford to be. Furthermore, they have intimate little jokes and chats about people and events that the wife knows nothing about. I sometimes wonder who is most important to the husband—his wife or his secretary. One thing sure—no husband would stand for such an arrangement, if the situation were reversed, and his wife were the one who went to business. Please let me hear your opinion. S. C.

• • • •

Crude Minority.

DEAR S. C.: It is news to me that Washington businessmen in general make a habit of installing their office secretaries as fixtures in their social life, as well. Frankly, I don't believe it. If there are husbands who habitually stipulate that their secretaries be included in all parties they expect to attend, they constitute a crude and selfish exception to the general rule. And if your husband is not the solitary, outstanding exception—if this practice prevails in the group of young-marrieds with which you associate—then that group has invented something new and different in the way of social procedure.

• • • •

The average hard-headed businessman realizes the necessity for maintaining a rather impersonal relationship with his office subordinates, well knowing that it makes for greater staff efficiency and reciprocal respect, and so far as his relationship with his confidential secretary is concerned, he appreciates the wisdom of keeping it not only above reproach, but above suspicion of reproach.

• • • •

When a secretary becomes her employer's constant social companion, both lose caste professionally, since such excessive interdependence promptly gives rise to speculative and unpleasant gossip—and, in the majority of instances, such gossip is not without its foundation in fact. No self-respecting wife would countenance such an arrangement to the extent of glossing it over with her own complaisant chaperonage, and the public does not expect her to go to such lengths. As a matter of fact, the world thinks rather less of her for doing so. It pities her as a blind or spineless creature, who either doesn't know when she is being affronted or lacks the courage to defend her rights.

• • • •

Any wife who finds herself thus shunted aside in favor of an office secretary is justified in supposing that, for the time being at least, the latter is more important in her husband's eyes than herself. Either that, or he is acting on the theory that he can have his cake and eat it, too; that his wife is either too stupid or too cowardly to challenge his unkind, indiscreet and unethical conduct for what it is.

• • • •

A wife in such a position should demonstrate a certain amount of patience and tolerance, and no more. She can accede to her husband's request to invite the secretary to their home, or as their guest to someone else's party, once in a while; but she can—and should—put her foot down on it as a permanent, tacitly accepted arrangement. She can say, quite frankly, after a time, that she is bored to death with and sick of the sight of Miss Blank, with her fine clothes and familiar airs and infernal fund of office gossip.

• • • •

She can say, "For heaven's sake, if you prefer Miss Blank, take Miss Blank, and leave me out of it, please. I'm fed up with the role of chaperone." Or she can say, "Is this Miss Blank your soulmate, or just what is the big idea? I'm darned if I'm going to put up with any more of this camouflaged competition for your notice. I refuse to condone this silly flirtation any further. Take your Miss Blank to lunch or dinner and feed her 'til the ice cream runs out of her ears, but for gad's sake keep her out of my sight."

• • • •

In the average husband's mind, his wife is rather closely identified with his mother's image, and if she calls his hand in an office flirtation with a subtle mixture of impatience and ridicule, he is apt to come to heel like an abashed small boy. The worst possible tactics she could employ is to endure the situation in meek martyrdom, on the one hand; or to get tensely jealous and emotional about it, on the other hand.

Summer Fashions Featured at Show

The return of the "prodigal sun" was celebrated with great pomp in a style preview of summer clothes at a local store yesterday. In the 106 costumes worn by the mannequins there were clothes to take care of every occasion from bathing suits, beach wear and play suits, through casual and more formal afternoon costumes and evening gowns in a variety of materials and stylings. There were smart interpretations for the older woman—a popular feature of recent fashion shows in Washington.

Cottons fraternized with silks and fine laces, and peasant-influenced clothes hobnobbed with formal affairs of the Winterhalter styling. White, pale pastels and gay prints shared honors. The smart presentation closed with a lovely garden wedding—the blonde bride in white imported mousseline and short tulle veil, and the two attendants in hyacinth blue and petal pink net. The bride carried a white prayerbook and the bridesmaids huge bunches of pink roses and delphiniums tied with large bows and streamers of pink satin ribbon.

Mastery of Music Has No Age Limits, Miss Stillings, Noted Violinist, Asserts

Woman of 50 Still May Attain Success in Field, She Says.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

MASTERY of music has no age limitations. The woman of 50 can begin any phase of music she desires and can expect a reasonable amount of success and untold enjoyment from a belated start, according to Kemp Stillings, noted concert violinist and teacher, of New York, who came to Washington as the guest of Mrs. Stanley Woodward.

Furthermore, explained Miss Stillings, the mature man or woman has a richness of experience to bring that a younger person does not usually possess.

This artist knows whereof she speaks, for she trains pupils of all ages, ranging from 4 to 60. As a concrete example of her theory she cited several of her own pupils who, long past middle age, began studying the violin, cello, viola or piano. Two of these pupils, she said, had made pronounced success in the professional field. And, within the last year, many of her other pupils have crashed symphony orchestras in Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Dallas and New York.

Studied in Russia.

Born in Boston, Miss Stillings began her studies at the Berlin Royal High School of Music. After one year she went to Petersburg, Russia, where she remained for eight years, studying under Leopold Auer. Later she studied under Prof. O. Sevick in Czechoslovakia. She is the first and perhaps the only woman ever admitted to the Conservatory of Music in Russia. Since the World War she has been teaching piano, violin, violincello and other string instruments in New York City.

Believing that mere technique and mechanical skill are insufficient to express music, either as a profession or hobby, Miss Stillings says to her pupils: "Go out and live, observe, venture forth until something boils up that must inspire fiery, fervent, subtle or dominant expression. Then go back to your piano, cello or violin and I'll teach you to play."

Awakens Senses.

By venturing forth into a complete life she means the awakening or resharpening of the five senses—and not licentious carousing. She thinks no man or woman can appreciate or translate music who allows his five senses to atrophy.

"New Yorkers have dulled their senses," said Miss Stillings. "They cannot differentiate between the various sounds. Accustomed to deafening noises, they have closed their ears and hear nothing. And shut in by high buildings, they also lack perspective. Many have never seen the ocean or any great space and they have no feeling of distance. Therefore, they have to go out and see these things before they can transmit the feeling into music. For music is life transmitted into art."

She advises women who are lonely or strangers in a vicinity to join some musical group. Besides the pleasure derived from playing some instrument or singing, Miss Stillings says: Music paves the way for social contacts by opening up avenues of friendships that could not be entered in other ways. The stranger who sings in the village choir forms friendships more easily than a stranger not interested in any form of music."

Favors Early Course.

"How soon should children begin studying music?" Miss Stillings was asked.

"As soon as possible," she replied. "Certainly, before they begin studying in school. Music teaches them to concentrate and they learn more quickly in other studies when they have learned some music first. They are more persistent than children who have not learned to concentrate before starting grade school. Music makes for quick thinking, for it requires great mental and physical co-ordination.

"I have never found a child without some rhythm. But the children's pitch has to be trained. They cannot tell the difference between high and low; it is either loud or soft to them."

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Charm School for Husbands.

DURING the deluge of the "How to Please Men" literature of the last few years, many a wife must have wondered if life held anything for her other than to be a vassal and a mind reader of the household potentate. The air has been fairly thick with such warnings as, "Men Like This," and "Men Don't Like That." Womankind seemed to be headed socially back toward the harem.

Now, however, things seem to be perking up for the girls. A book has just been published on how husbands may please—yes, and actually hold—wives.

While Anne Fisher's "Brides Are Like New Shoes," just published by Dodd, Mead & Co., is addressed primarily to bridegrooms, it contains advice that if taken to heart by all husbands would make for more generally contented wives. And since wives are the ones who usually initiate the Reno trek, husbands might, as the author points out, by a little forethought, save themselves some alimony payments.

Men who have never been fortunate enough to see themselves through the eyes of, say, a feminine bridge group, may learn some astonishing things from this book. For instance, wives have been warned from the beginning of time against nagging. However, it seems there are also men naggers. And they are one of the things that make wives leave home.

Sniffers and Snoopers Irritate Wives

A husband is a nagger, points out the author, if he criticizes his wife's dress and particularly if he makes fun of her clothes and her taste before outsiders. He is a nagger if he sniffs at her haircuts, if he points out her household inefficiency, if he is continually telling her how things should be done, if he snoops in the pantry or the icebox, if he tells her his mother managed or did this or that.

"Women wander," says Anne Fisher, "for two reasons—bored or bothered." She further admonishes husbands:

"If you don't want to come home some night and find a note on the pincushion and the joint bank balance missing, you'd better check up on yourself regularly under the two B's.

"Been too bossy? Too aggressive in trying to make her over? Maybe she feels like a Duke's mixture of herself and what you want her to be, and she can't stand the combination.

"Do you run the house and her by the criticism method?

"Maybe you don't stay home enough nights to really get acquainted with your better nine-tenths?

"Has she had too many big doses of your family?

"Do you just take her for granted like the overstuffed Chesterfield set in the living room? Aways there, always the same, and not requiring any upkeep?"

Bragging and Snoring Break Up Homes

The author further suggests that a husband's stinginess may force a wife out of the home, or his bragging, or his jealousy or even his snoring. The last problem, she points out, may be met by arranging for the wife to have a room of her own "even if you move and have to pay higher rent."

Moreover, the book suggests that husbands should do a few constructive things toward making their wives happy—such as learning how to clean sinks and fix kitchen pipes, complimenting the cookery, working out a sensible and fair system for handling the finances, taking the little woman out one night a week at least, being tidy about their things, always calling up when they will be late for dinner, and giving warning when they are bringing guests home.

Some of the "Don'ts" listed for men who are breaking in new brides are to avoid going on a fishing trip or to visit "his" relatives on the honeymoon; not to tell what his mother said or did; not to talk about his previous love affairs; not to brag too much; not to read the newspaper at the breakfast table.

Dogs and Girdles Present Problems

The book gives concrete advice on such matters as who shall walk the dog, how in-laws shall be handled and vacations conducted. It tells how a husband in a tactful way may even cure his wife of making up her face at the restaurant table or of pulling down her girdle in public.

Let us hope this will be the beginning of a long line of books telling men how to be more agreeable not only to their wives but to their mothers, mothers-in-law, daughters, sisters, sisters-in-law, fiances, "dates," secretaries, stenographers, waitresses, telephone operators and what-not. Let us hope that from now on every man will be confronted on all sides with the reminder, "Now if you want to please a woman——"

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE ONLY WAY we could see ourselves as we really are would be to have a dual vision mirror which magically reflected the way we looked five years ago as well as the way we look today. Change is so gradual that, without such a contrast, we are blissfully unaware that any change has occurred.

If you could compare these two reflections, you would probably find a startling difference. The one would have a neat and tidy waistline, slim hips and no tummy at all. The other would have a settled look through the midsection . . . definitely older.

What has happened to those nice strong muscles nature gave you? They have been allowed to stretch and grow slack until they no longer hold the figure in line. But you could have kept them firm and strong. Only ten minutes of daily exercise during those five years would have given you as young a figure now as you had then. It is never too late, however, for corrective exercise, and here is one that simply walks away with a tummy bulge:

POSITION: Stretch the arms high overhead, pulling the tummy muscles up and in. Now bend over and touch the fingers to the floor in front of the toes, keeping the tummy muscles pulled up.

MOVEMENT: From this position "walk" backward until the weight is resting on hands and toes, the body stretched out in a straight line. Keeping the knees stiff, walk back to the hands, continually pulling up and in with those tummy muscles. Relax, and repeat the exercise not more than three times daily for the first week.

It will not be necessary for you to get down on all fours to exercise if you make a habit of pulling up with the abdominal muscles to keep them where they belong. Don't try to pull in—this only gets your breath. Make it a rule to pull up always with the abdominal muscles and with the chest, and you will continually strengthen these muscles as well as cultivate a naturally beautiful posture.

We don't grow old by years, we grow old by inches, and when the figure spreads you can look middle-aged at 25. Don't let excess inches change your figure and make you look old.

2 Variations Mark New Evening Gowns

Paris (U.P.).—Two of the leading fashions for evening gowns are shown by all the leading Parisian dressmakers. One is the gown with wide and ample skirts and the other has the straight line, not narrow but simply vertical.

These two general lines are carried out in many variations. The shoulder drop is marked, and often there are no straps at all, leaving the outline clear. Back and front of gowns are cut low.

The waistline is either emphasized by elastic materials holding in the dress to model up or down in many subtle ways. Double or triple belts, incrustations of contrasting colors, ribbons and drapes make one believe the waist is anywhere but where nature put it.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 17.

STRANGE HOW THE scions are running these days. I mean the grandsons of the rugged American individuals who fit and scrambled and wiggled their way to fortune in the days when their kind was calmly divvying up the United States among themselves. I wonder what their grandpappies would say to some of their activities.

ALICE HUGHES

I think especially of the Rockefeller lads. Their grandpop spent his early years building his oil empire and worshiping the Baptist way. Their father, the present John D., was a serious young man and finally took over the great fortune. His sudden and astonishing liberalization turned him against prohibition, turned part of his money to other Christian bodies and at last miraculously sent him into the night club and theater business in New York.

Then his youngsters came along. The first charm boy to appear was Nelson, a handsome, affable lad, who has always taken a large part in the affairs of Radio City, its Music Hall and its other myriad affairs. This spring a family rival pops up in his brother Winthrop, also good-looking and amiable.

Winthrop has been chairman of the fund raising committee hoping to gather $10,000,000 for our welfare agencies. Everyone seems to go for him. He has had his picture taken with Grace Moore in her garden, and has enjoyed himself hugely. Yes—the scions are running good looking, liberal and socially-conscious these days! I'll bet the young Rockefellers won't end up as grandpa did, either—bald and dyspeptic at 50, after a slaving youth. Of course, they won't live to the brink of a hundred, either. But they'll have a much finer time!

• • • •

Local cats now purr that Duchess Wally has not only bobbed her locks but given them a dash of henna and some new glints. Fie, girls! What of it?

• • • •

The silly-season publicity gag here is to have men design clothes and hats. Fredric March and Frank Buck are among the many who have run up outlandish duds, and the other day my bedeviled spouse was rung in to design something made of oyster shells. In a wink he created the 1939 bathing suit, consisting of just three oyster shells, strategically placed—and won the Grand Prix!

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Human Skin Shedding.

THERE ARE certain people who welcome the warm season that is being ushered in just now because they lose the rough coat of skin they have been wearing all winter. They are examples of the disease which is known as "icthyosis" or "fish skin." In winter their skin gets rough and scaly and, in fact, they look as if they were covered with fine fish scales. In the summer this all smooths down and they have as nice, normal skin as anybody.

A similar condition is known as "peeling skin" and presents a very remarkable picture. The most famous case was that of a man who at regular intervals was covered with a red rash with a rise of temperature, nausea and weakness. This red rash lasted for 36 hours and then the skin came off in large sheets, with complete casts of the hands and feet.

There are also people who shed their entire skin periodically about every three years or so. This is not accompanied by any redness and does not involve the nails or hair. General health usually is excellent.

Nobody knows what to do for these patients.

Summer is the best cure for icthyosis. In the winter ultraviolet light and the use of thyroid extract have given some relief, but there is no permanent cure or method of preventing a recurrence with the oncoming of the winter season.

Learn to Dance the Shag

The peppy Shag Dip they're doing now they quickly picked up.

You can easily follow it. On Count 1, spring lightly to left foot. On 2 bend left knee, quickly slide right foot to side. On 3 and 4, repeat—starting with right foot.

How to get that bouncy "umph" good shag dancers have? Dance high on the balls of the feet, keep knees and ankles loose. Hold arms higher, stand farther apart than in the fox trot. You want room for the swingy shag.

Easy as pie to pick up all the popular steps, from rumba to truckin', when you have diagrams showing you how to place your feet, instructions on how to keep time, fit steps to music.

German Ambassador Enetrtains for Violinist; Japanese Attache Gives Luncheon for Consuls on Duty in This Country.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Luncheons and dinners seem to be Washington society's favored type of entertainment these days, when spring feting is whirling to its close and the summer round of garden events has not yet pushed other parties entirely out of the social picture.

The French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, who has been widely entertained since his arrival here not so long ago, was host at a dinner last evening at which the Turkish Ambassador, Mehmet Munir Ertegun, was ranking guest.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Others in the company were Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, Senator Theodore Green, Representative and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, the Counselor of the Polish Embassy and Mme. Witold Wankowicz, Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve System, and Mrs. Eccles; Philip Broadmead, first secretary of the British Embassy; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark, Mrs. George Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, Mrs. Higgins Chapin, Miss Mary Winslow, Mrs. Harold Hinton, Antoine de Geofroy, Geroge de Geofroy and members of the Embassy staff.

Also on last evening's calendar was the dinner given by the Hungarian Minister and Mme. John Pelenyi, in compliment to their house guest, Miss Mary Wright, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. J. Butler Wright. Since Miss Wright came to Washington last week, she has been the honor guest at as many parties as she could attend. Last evening's dinner was the fourth function that Mme. Pelenyi has arranged for the popular visitor.

Justice and Mrs. Stone Are Ranking Guests

Included in the company were a number of persons who are old friends of Miss Wright's parents. Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Senator Alben W. Barkeley were ranking guests. Covers were laid for 24. Miss Wright will leave tomorrow for Aiken, S. C., to join her sister, Edith Southerland Wright, who is attending school there. They will sail for Havana early in June.

Among the informal dinners last evening was the one given by the German Ambassador and Frau Dieckhoff for Prof. Florizel Von Reuter, widely known German violinist who is just beginning his concert tour of this country. Following the dinner, the honor guest entertained the company with a varied program of violin selections.

Still another dinner last evening was the one given by Col. Masachika Hirata, military attache of the Japanese Embassy. For the past few months, Japanese diplomats here have done their entertaining on a small scale, with little fanfare. Only by accident, it seems, have any of their luncheons and dinners been reported. Col. Hirata's party, which took place at the Mayflower Hotel, was arranged for members of the Japanese consular service on duty in this country.

Nicholsons Feted At De Bayle Luncheon

Meredith Nicholson, newly appointed United Minister to Nicaragua, and Mrs. Nicholson, who are making a brief visit here before sailing for his post, were guests of honor at a luncheon given yesterday by the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora De Bayle at the Nicaraguan Legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, whose marriage took place here in the apartment of Senator and Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys in 1933, have an extensive circle of friends in Washington. Widely known as an author, Mr. Nicholson has managed to continue his literary work in the years he has been in the diplomatic service. Mrs. Nicholson, the former Mrs. Dorothy Lannon, of Marion, Ind., is also a writer. She and her husband will leave Washington the end of this week for New York, where they will sail for Nicaragua on May 27.

Guests at the luncheon for them yesterday included Laurence Duggan, chief of the Division of American Republics of the State Department, and Mrs. Duggan; Ellis O. Briggs, also of the State Department, and Mrs. Briggs; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Drew and Dr. and Mrs. Henri De Bayle.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: From Idaho comes word that Mrs. William E. Borah, in a recent interview at Moscow, where she is visiting, told reporters that of the seven President's wives she had known in 30 years in Washington, Mrs. Roosevelt was "the most democratic and the greatest entertainer" . . . Miss Yoeh Wang, daughter of the Chinese Ambassador, will entertain ten guests at luncheon tomorrow. The menu will be "strictly Chinese" . . . Dr. Wang, the Chinese Ambassador who is now in New York, attended a dinner last evening at the Pierre given for the benefit of victims in the conflict in the Orient . . . Beginning early next month, the Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Mircea Victor Babes will take a two-month vacation. They plan to motor to California. M. Babes, who is now in Canada on official business, will return to Washington Saturday.

Natalie Huntress Wed To Samuel Green in Md.

The marriage on Monday of Miss Natalie Huntress, of Royal Oak, Md., and Samuel Leonard Green, of Washington and Baltimore, has been announced. The ceremony took place in the Cathedral at Baltimore.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. H. Helbrook Smith, of Red Bank, N. J., and Sarasota, Fla. Mr. Green is the son of Mrs. Charles F. Green and the late Mr. Green.

Return Home.

Mrs. Harry King and her daughter, Miss Carol King, have returned to their home in Arkansas after a stay with Senator and Mrs. John Miller. During their visit Mrs. Miller gave a luncheon and a hooking party in their honor.

Chairman of Garden Fete

Hessler Studio.

Mrs. Emil Hurja is general chairman of the annual spring fete of the Woman's National Democratic Club, to be held this afternoon at the Spring Valley home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer. A number of notables, including Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, are expected to attend.

Function Given For La Saignes

Mme. La Saigne and Mlle. Susy La Saigne, mother and sister of Senora de Ghirlado, the wife of the Argentine Counselor, were the guests of honor at the cocktail party given by Miss Anna Wolcott Archibald at the Hay-Adams House yesterday afternoon.

Guests arrived between 5 and 7 o'clock, danced to the tangos played by Larry Hendrick on the organ in the Fiesta Room and listened to Mexican songs sung by Vincente de la Garza.

For the occasion Mme. La Saigne had chosen a black dress, pearls and a large black picture hat, while Mlle. La Saigne was attired in an attractive black taffeta suit with which she wore a small black turban. They will leave W. hington soon for a motor trip to California, but on their return to the East will visit here for about a month.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, the Counselor of the Italian Embassy and Signora de Cosmelli, she in a black and white print frock; the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron and the Counselor of the Belgian Embassy and Baroness de Gruben, who wore a canary yellow suit.

Also glimpsed here and there were the Counselor of the Hungarian Legation, Anthony de Balasy; Frau Thomsen, wife of the German Counselor; Paolo Hasslocher, Commercial Counselor of Brazil; the Counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation and Mme. Bresjka, Mme. Mircea Victor Babes, who was dressed in pale blue; Mrs. Walter S. Watson, Dr. and Mrs. Ricardo Alfaro, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Thatcher, Miss Margaret Wadsworth, Stanislav Klima, of the Czechoslovakian Legation; Sophocles Papas, Miss Marcia Lorenz and the Agricultural Attache of Cuba and Senora de Santiesteban.

Still others present were Carlos Zevalles, Hector Leguisamon, Ricardo Siri, Miguel Quirno-Lavallo, Barry Scott, Arsenio Calle, Jacques Dumaine, Jaoa de Deus Ramos and Sebastian Velverdo.

F. H. Allens Have Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Allen announce the birth of a son on May 14 at the Fifth Avenue Hospital in New York. Mrs. Allen is the former Miss Helen Louise Minnigerode, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Minnigerode, of 1515 Twenty-ninth street, Georgetown.

Democrats Set For Party Today

Senorita Erma Castillo Najera, daughter of the Mexican Ambassador, and Senorita Lutecia Quintanilla, daughter of the Counselor of the embassy, will do colorful Mexican dances in the costume of their country at the spring fete of the Women's National Democraitc Club which will be held this afternoon at the Spring Valley home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who with Mrs. Roosevelt will be honor guest, will draw the lucky numbers for the 20 door prizes to be given away at the party. Among the prizes are two autographed pictures of the President and one of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, chairman of the committee on traffic arrangements, has worked out a plan for getting to the party. Those using private cars should go out Massachusetts avenue to Nebraska avenue, where they will find the rest of the route marked with arrows to show the way; or they may follow Massachusetts avenue to Wisconsin and turn into Cathedral avenue where other arrows will mark the way.

Those going by bus are advised to take a Connecticut avenue bus marked Wisconsin avenue and Fessenden and get off at Nebraska avenue, where taxis will be waiting to take them the rest of the way.

Mrs. Messersmith To Leave in Week For Wilmington

Mrs. George S. Messersmith, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, will leave Washington next Wednesday for a visit in Wilmington. She will then go on to Rehoboth Beach, where she will be for a few days before returning to Washington.

Her niece, Miss Virginia Layton, has selected July 2 as the date of her wedding to William Barnes. The ceremony will take place at Miss Layton's home in Wilmington at 6 o'clock that evening and will be followed by a reception.

Mr. Barnes is now with the Foreign Service Training School here.

Dr. Fraga Ready To Give Award At Cuban Fete

Carlos J. Finlay Diploma to Be Presented to Doctor on Independence Day.

In celebration of Cuba's Independence Day Friday, the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, will receive the Cuban colony at the Embassy at noon. At that time he will present diplomas of the Order of Carlos J. Finlay to three professors of the staff of the medical school of Cornell University—Dr. Henrious J. Stander, Dr. Wilson G. Smillie and Dr. Foster Kennedy.

This award, which perpetuates the memory of Dr. Carlos J. Finlay, Cuban discoverer of the yellow fever germ, is made exclusively to doctors who have distinguished themselves by their contribution to medicine. Dr. Carlos J. Finlay, jr., son of the noted doctor, has made a special journey to Washington.

In the evening, a reception and ball will further mark the country's Independence Day.

Those in the receiving line for this latter occasion will include, in addition to Dr. Fraga, his niece, Senorita Ana Marie Carabia, Senora Luaces de Montalvo, wife of the former Secretary of Defense of Cuba, and Senora Jose T. Baron, wife of the Minister Counselor of the Embassy.

The Senoritas Margot Blanco and Lily Bartet, of Havana, were guests of honor at a luncheon given yesterday by the Ambassador. These two young ladies sang at the party given by Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt on Monday evening. Others at the luncheon included Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Albertini, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cantero, Senorita Carabia, Tete Suarez and members of the Embassy staff and their wives.

Mrs. Stanley Reed Attends Luncheon Given by Mrs. Dial

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Justice, was the ranking guest at a small luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial, wife of former Sentaor Dial, at her home on Kalorama road.

Others in the company were Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. A. O. Stanley, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. William Dennis.

Dinner Is Given For F. B. Sayre

Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Naval Operations, was the ranking guest at a dinner given last evening at the Mayflower in compliment to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, who is chairman of the Inter-departmental Committee of the Philippines. The Resident Commissioner of the Philippines, Quintin Paredes, acted as joint host with members of the Philippine Joint Committee, Jose Romero, Manuel Roxas and Benito Razon.

The company included Brig. Gen. Charles Burnett, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs; Maxwell Hamilton, Herbert Feis, Donald Christy, Dr. Harry White, Charles A. Mosser, Raymond B. Stevens, Dr. Joseph E. Jacobs, Col. Donald C. McDonald, Dr. Frank A. Waring, Dr. Ben D. Dorfman, Dr. Carl Robbins, Leslie A. Wheeler and Louis Domeratzky.

Safety Meeting Slated Today

The women's safety committee of the American Automobile Association will hold its final meeting of the season today at 11 a. m., at the Sulgrave Club. The meeting will be followed by a luncheon and the showing of a film awarded a prize by the Commercial Investment Trust Safety Committee.

Several addresses will be made, among the speakers being Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, who will talk on "A Conspicuous Contribution to Children's Safety;" Miss Edith Coulson, recreational secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, who will address the group on "Washington Gardens as a Safety Factor;" George Ruhland, who will talk on "Existing Drunken Driving Tests," and Richard Ham, whose subject will be "Tentative Plans for a School for Drivers."

Among the guests will be Mrs. Robert Freer, wife of the Federal Trade Commissioner; William Van Duzer, director of Vehicles and Traffic; Miss Sybil Baker, who is in charge of municipal playgrounds, and Mrs. Mary Steele, director of the woman's division of the WPA.

Tea Will Benefit Incurables' Home

Members of the board of managers of the Home for Incurables will take turns at the tea table on Saturday afternoon when the gardens of Dumbarton Oaks, at 3101 R street, will be opened from 2 until 6 for the benefit of the home.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will assist Mrs. Theodore S. Wilkinson, chairman of the tea committee, and others who will pour during the afternoon are Mrs. Sherman Flint, Mrs. John C. Boyd, Mrs. David E. Finley and Miss Elizabeth Keyser.

A group of the new members of the board, Mrs. David S. Barry, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, will also be on hand to assist.

She Curtsied to Royalty

One of the few Americans and even fewer Washingtonians presented at the Court of St. James on May 11, was Mrs. Warren Sewell Lockwood, whose husband is assistant American trade commissioner in London. They have been making their home in England for three years and thus Mrs. Lockwood, shown here in her presentation dress, came under the Kennedy ruling. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Jewell Gleason, of this city.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

THE Abbey Players and Gargantua the Great seem to be the favorite topics of conversation these days. Everybody who isn't at the circus is haunting the National to see the Irish plays which are being put on there this week.

DUDLEY HARMON

A number of tired business men took time off from their work yesterday afternoon to take their offspring to the circus George Howe and Jasper DuBose were among those glimpsed with an assortment of youngsters. Miss Anne Perin was also there. Last night Miss Alice Barry was among the debutantes present, escorted by Charles McKenney.

• • • •

THE Charge d'Affaires of the Irish Legation, Robert Brennan, is practically living at the National this week. He was there the opening night, and last evening again found him a member of the audience.

Miss Cynthia Davis and Oliver Gasch passed up the circus at the last moment to see the Abbey Players in "Juno and the Paycock." Others in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr.; Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan, Eugene O'Dunne in a party with Mrs. Domley, who is visiting Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, and Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard; Miss Dolly Corbin in a black frock with an embroidered jacket and a hat to match, accompanied by Joseph Heffernan; Mrs. John Sternhagen and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. C. Smith were others in the very enthusiastic audience.

DIPLOMATS on the move: The United States Minister to Latvia and Mrs. Frederick Sterling will leave in a week or two for the former's new post at Riga. They expect to catch the first boat after Mr. Sterling finishes the report he has been working on of his work as United States commissioner to last summer's Paris Exposition. Mrs. Sterling is now in New York, where she is stopping at the Ambassador . . . John Van A. MacMurray will leave next week for Turkey, which he left to work with the joint committee on Philippine affairs in the State Department. The Ambassador's attractive wife has already arrived in Constantinople, having stopped off in England en route to see her son, John MacMurray, who is at Oxford.

• • • •

DIPLOMAS and speeches, rather than the usual Virginia reels and Portland Fancies, were the big feature of a recent meeting of the Wednesday evening square dancing class. Since the group was first organized exactly four years ago, some of the more whimsical members decided that the faithful who were still with it should stage a "graduation." Mannix Walker acted as master of ceremonies, and telegrams of congratulations were received from three of the original members who now live elsewhere: Mrs. John Farr Simmons, who wired from Ottawa, and Olivia and "Ike" Stokes, now New Yorkers.

The square dancing class has suspended operations until next fall. It is such strenuous exercise, both physical and mental, that as soon as the weather gets the least bit warm, everybody wilts and quilts.

NEWS FROM ABROAD: Cards from one of our wandering diplomatic friends, Marquis Benedetto Capomazza, says he will return the middle of next month from Italy. He is Secretary of the Italian Embassy and when last heard from was vacationing in Taormina, Messina . . . Mrs. Noel Trentham writes that she adores London, and that she and her husband have taken an apartment in Hampstead. He was Financial Counselor of the British Embassy here until recalled to the Treasury Department, and his wife is a Newfoundlander who had never seen England until they arrived there early in the spring.

Affairs Honor Honolulu Visitor

Mrs. Albert Horner, of Honolulu, who is now in Washington as the house guest of Mrs. William Carter, is being feted extensively during her stay here.

On Sunday afternoon she was the guest of honor at an affair given by Commander and Mrs. Philip B. Eaton. Overcast skies, spurts of rain and an unseasonable gale changed the plans of the Eatons, who had first intended to give a garden party. The affair took place inside their home, Comnholm, and was attended by 135 persons.

Commander Eaton greeted the guests on the porch while Mrs. Eaton received them in the drawing room, giving Mrs. Horner a silk lei on her arrival. Blue and gold predominated in the decorations throughout the house and on the covered porches where guests gathered about the buffet tables.

Among the many present were Col. and Mrs. William Hicks and their daughters, the Misses Cornelia and Nancy Hicks; Mrs. George Frazer, Mrs. Daniel Boone Washington, Mrs. Roger Weightman and her daughter, Miss Nancy Weightman.

Their guests were Chaplain and Mrs. Edwin Burling, of Fort Jay, N. Y., who are visiting the Rinards; Chaplain and Mrs. Ralph C. Deibert, of Fort Davis, Canal Zone; Chaplain and Mrs. Alvin Martin, of Fort Barancas, Fla., and Chaplain and Mrs. Paul Rupp, of Fort Howard, Md.

Diplomats Win Right To Skate at Shoreham

The Diplomatic Corps, it seems, finds skating a favored sport, and so many of its members have asked the Shoreham management if they couldn't skate on the rink used in the ice carnival now going on there that the Blue Room is to be opened to the public.

There wil be ice skating there daily between 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock, beginning tomorrow, for duration of the carnival.

Card Party at Seminary Aids Goodwill Industries

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads Patronesses for Event; Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. J. B. Clark, Mrs. Karl Fenning Are Among Those Present.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Mount Vernon Seminary yesterday was the scene of a card party and garden fete given for the benefit of Goodwill Industrials. Mrs. Samuel Herrick was chairman of the affair, for which more than 100 tables were reserved, and Mrs. Roosevelt headed the patroness list.

The occasion was only the second in many years for which grounds of the seminary have been opened. Twenty girls of the junior college assisted the committee in serving and seeing that the guests were seated and Miss Jean Cole, chairman of the board of trustees of the seminary, assisted in receiving the guests.

The field house below the main school buildings was used for the party, and tables also were arranged under the trees for card players who preferred being out of doors. Large bouquets of peonies and purple iris decorated the house and climbing roses formed an arch above the doorway of the building.

The field house is used by the home economics department of the seminary. Opposite the doorway is a large fireplace, near which was a tea table, where Mrs. Ellis Meredith presided, telling fortunes with tea leaves. Outside, in the shade of a spreading tree, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis read palms.

Some of the tables were placed on the terrace near the open-air gymnasium of the school, which was ready to accommodate the guests had the weather not been fair and warm.

Among players were the Misses Clara and Gertrude Lutz, members of the committee who also were graduates of the seminary, as was their sister, Mrs. J. B. Clark, also a guest. Mrs. Karl Fenning, past president of the Twentieth Century Club, was there as were Mrs. W. L. Waller, Mrs. C. F. Consaul, Mrs. Frederick Bates, Mrs. Richard Stimson, Mrs. Gene Robb, Mrs. Emerson Taylor; Mrs. Stephen Walter and Mrs. Willard Mills.

Mrs. Elmer Frazier was chairman of tickets. Harold Snape, director of the Goodwill Industries, was present with Mrs. Snape. Among others were Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. Maurice Avery, Mrs. J. J. Cotter, Mrs. Harold Fowler, Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Mrs. W. O. Tufts, wife of the president of the board of directors of Goodwill; Mrs. Clarence Hancock, Mrs. George Ward, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. E. R. Stitt, Mrs. J. C. Tribby, Mrs. D. A. Greenlee, Mrs. E. P. Wilson, Miss Mary Riley, Mrs. G. T. Everett and Mrs. E. N. Wright.

Four door prizes were awarded during the afternoon, including an angelfood cake made and donated by Mrs. R. H. McNeill, costume jewelry, East Indian finger-bowls, and a linen tray set.

Proceeds of the benefit will be used to help establish a sick benefit fund for employes of the Goodwill Industries.

Gray Ladies Will Hold Garden Fete Saturday

The annual garden party sponsored by the Gray Ladies and the Chapel Guild of the Army Medical Center will be held in the Red Cross House and formal garden at Walter Reed Hospital on Saturday from 2 until 7. Bridge will be played in the Red Cross House from 2 until 4, when table prizes will be awarded. There will be a fashion show in the formal garden at 4:30, following which tea will be served. Reservations are in charge of Mrs. John Doyle Mrs. Wallace DeWitt is the chairman of the Chapel Guild and Mrs. Albert N. Baggs is the chairman of the Gray Ladies.

D. C. Women's Bar Gives Second Term To Miss Matthews

Miss Annabel Matthews last night was re-elected for a second term as president of the Women's Bar Association at the annual meeting of the organization at the Mayflower Hotel.

Also re-elected was Mrs. Mary Marraffa Wittenmyer, recording secretary. Mrs. Olive Geiger Faircloth succeeds Miss Mary Agnes Brown as corresponding secretary; Mrs. Verna Parsons Young was elected treasurer to succeed Mrs. Vera Walton Rhine and Mrs. Helen Huhn Rivers succeeds Miss Florence Curoe as vice president. Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox was elected to succeed Miss Mary M. Connelly on the executive committee, serving with Judge Fay L. Bentley and Mrs. Pearl B. Klein.

Mrs. Rivers was nominated from the floor, having been named when Mrs. Rebekah S. Greathouse, whose name had been presented by the nominating committee, withdrew.

Miss Elizabeth F. Reed was chairman of the nominating committee, with Miss Marguerite Rawalt and Burnita Shelton Matthews the other members.

Girl Reserves Plan 'Mothers' Day Off

Girl Reserves of Washington have agreed they will be the homemakers for a few days so their mothers may have the opportunity of a get-together and a chance to share problems. The Girl Reserve Department of the Young Women's Christian Association is inaugurating a new program on Wednesday, May 18; an overnight conference called "Mother's Day Off The Record."

The meetings will be held at Vacation Lodge, the summer residence of the Y. W. C. A. in Cherrydale, Va. The mothers and their friends are invited to meet at Seventeenth and K streets at 2 o'clock to go to the lodge for the meeting at 3 o'clock when there will be a discussion on the guidance of young people. Dinner will be at 5:30. Around the fireplace in the evening, an informal discussion on the problems of high school boys and girls will be led by Mrs. Elwood street.

The closing session will be Thursday morning at 9 o'clock; the subject of this, "Spiritual Values Within the Home," led by Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Ernest Danly, of the Girl Reserve committee, is chairman of the planning committee of the conference assisted by Mrs. Harold Saunders, Mrs. James McNeely, Mrs. G. J. P. Barger, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. Earl J. Smith and Mrs. Arthur Fowle.

Sen. Lewis Addresses Luncheon To Aid Jewish Children's Home

Decries Divisions of Sect Which Leave Support of Such Undertakings as Burdens on Shoulders of Single Groups.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, was guest speaker yesterday at the annual donor luncheon of the Washington Chapter of the National Home for Jewish Children at Denver. The affair was held at the Mayflower Hotel, with more than 400 persons attending.

Senator Lewis, who was introduced by Mrs. Albert W. Jacobson,, president of the local organization, commended its work in supporting the home maintained at Denver for children of tuberculous parents, Charity among the Jewish people has a higher significance than that of the condescending gift from one with abundance to one who has less, he said. From ancient times, it has been a law of the race for each individual to distribute a portion of his income and possessions for the welfare of mankind. This, he pointed out, transforms charity into a sacred duty, conscientiously observed.

The speaker deplored the divisions of race and sect which left the burden of support of so worthy an undertaking as the home in Denver on the shoulders of one group.

He decried the situation faced by Jews in Europe and predicted the day would come—perhaps in the distant future, but inevitably—when the prejudice and racial feeling now rife in the world would be exchanged for appreciation of the contribution made by various racial and national groups to mankind's progress, and a consequent spirit of co-operation and friendliness.

Senator Lewis made only a brief address.

Following his talk, Mrs. Jacobson introduced committee chairmen, including Mrs. A. D. Solomon, who was in charge of the luncheon with Mrs. Ellis Kossow as her co-chairman. Mrs. Kossow presented a check for $300 to Mrs. Charles Goldsmith for Camp Chopowamsic, where a hut is maintained by the chapter. This represents only part of its work for local underprivileged children. It also has clothing showers for children at Glenn Dale Hospital and carries on other philanthropic activities here in addition to its contributions to the Denver home.

Following this part of the program, "The Black and White Revue," produced and directed by Mrs. Jacobson, was presented by members of the organization. Special numbers included an accordion solo by Mrs. Sylvia Kaplowitz, with a minstrel ensemble; a song by Paul Young, with violin obbligato by Mrs. Freda Balotin; a waltz by Mrs. Bea Wolf, a song by Miss Sarah Charles, a dance fantasy by Mrs. Murray Brauenstein and Sam B. Brook, and a cakewalk by Marvin Yago and the ensemble.

Officers of the chapter in addition to Mrs. Jacobson are: Mrs. A. Daniel Solomon, first vice president; Mrs. Kossow, second vice president; Mrs. Maurice Kicszales, treasurer; Mrs. Elwood Zupnik, financial secretary; Mrs. Meyers Jacobs, recording secretary, and Mrs. Israel Segal, corresponding secretary. Trustees are Mrs. Louis P. Levitt and Mrs. Isadore Zeskind.

Standing committees include: Mrs. Bertha Epstein, editor of Voice; Mrs. Isadore Zeskind, chairman of publicity and sunshine committee; Mrs. Philip Segal, hostesses; Mrs. Lemar Harper, Glenn Dale Hospital committee; Mrs. Jack Schneider and Mrs. Albert Wilcher, other local charity work; Mrs. David Rosenberg, the telephone committee; Mrs. May Brodie, membership, and Mrs. S. P. Cohen, the golden book.

MISS TYLER, who is chairman of the Erna Berry Watson Memorial Fund, and also a well-known poet, has written the following poem entitled, "Our Jubilee Gift."

Unafraid and singing as they go;
Singing to the meadows and to the mountain rills,
Meadows white with apple blossom snow;
Singing through the sunshine and through the April rain—
Asking but the simple things of life;
"Rising from their ignorance, from poverty and pain—
Learning the futility of strife.
Over all the mountain a gleaming silver ray
Shines upon the children through the night—
Betas lifting torches along the Golden Way!
Higher, Betas, higher! Give them light!

Mrs. G. C. Thorpe Is Fete Hostess

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, president of Barney Neighborhood House, heads the list of Washingtonians who will be hostesses at the thirty-sixth annual May festivay at the settlement, 470 N street southwest, tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. A different group will be on duty each day.

Barney is the oldest settlement house in Washington, and its festival has become an institution. Residents of other cities attend the final day's activities, when Maypoles are set up in the street and more than 200 children take part in folk and Maypole dances.

The festival carries out the tradition of the old-time European village fete, in which all the inhabitants took part. All kinds of craft work will be on sale and the Mothers Club will prepare supper.

The reception committee tomorrow afternoon will consist of Miss Mary L. McQuade, Mrs. Howard LeRoy, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Clarence Hancock, Mrs. George T. Everett, Miss Mary B. Adams, Mrs. Thorpe and Mrs. Merle Thorpe. For Thursday evening Mrs. Howard LeRoy and Mrs. Herrick will receive.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Baldwin, Mrs. Herrick, Mrs. F. M. Goodwin and Mrs. Thorpe will receive.

Historical Evening At Memorial Home Planned by U.D.C.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy of the District will hold theid annual historical evening at Confederate Memorial Home, 1322 Vermont avenue, tomorrow at 8 o'clock, when Dr. Frank Bohn will speak on Gen. Robert E. Lee, and will quote from his forthcoming book on the Confederate leader.

Dr. Bohn is a noted lecturer and traveler, and served in 1918-19 in Europe as a member of the committee on public information. A short musical program also will be given by Livingston Vann, Dr. Seba L. Christie and a group of students from the Washington College of Music. Another feature of the evening will be the unveiling of the portrait of Gen. Lee, which the Robert E. Lee Chapter recently purchased from the artist, Frank Mackenzie, and presented to Confederate Home. It will be unveiled by Miss Liza Carpenter, president of the chapter.

Mrs. Ralph Pendexter, division president, will preside over the meeting, and Miss Katherine Hinton Wootten, division historian, will be official hostess, assisted by the historians of the various chapters, including: Mrs. Elizabeth Fred, Stone Wall Jackson Chapter; Mrs. Seba L. Christie, Robert E. Lee; Mrs. Minnie Thayer, Southern Cross; Mrs. W. O. Owen, Jefferson Davis; Mrs. W. F. Thornhill, Jeb Stuart; Mrs. David St. Clair, Hilary Herbert; Mrs. A. W. Wells, Asa F. C. Williams; Miss Mary Yates, Richard S. Ewell; Miss Agnes Roueche, Confederate Flag, and Miss Odella Oliver, Dixie.

Dance Is Given For Daughters Of the Senate

The Senate Daughters were guests of honor last night at a dance given at the Shoreham Hotel by the Southern Society of Washington. Miss Marjorie Nye, president of the "Daughters," was in the receiving line with officers of the society.

The line was headed by the Executive Vice President and Mrs. Garland E. Taylor, and included Senator and Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, Senator Richard B. Russell, Senator and Mrs. Ellison Smith, Senator and Mrs. George L. Radcliffe, Senator Rush B. Holt, Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, chairman of the committee for the party, and Miss Dorothy Ashby Moncure, secretary of the society.

Among the Senate Daughters who attended were Miss Ann Duffy, Miss Elizabeth Ann Bailey, Miss Katherine Bulow, the Misses Noreen and Patricia McCarren, Miss Marcia Hatch, and Mrs. Prew Savoy, accompanied by Mr. Savoy.

Several members of the society entertained guests at dinner or cocktails and later brought them to the dance. Among these was Miss Moncure, who gave a dinner in honor of her cousin, Miss Mary Lewis Moncure, of Fredericksburg, Va., and her fiance, Norman Crowell Hunter, of Washington. Their marriage will take place June 12 in St. George's Church at Fredericksburg. Among others who entertained preceding the dance were E. K. McDowell, former president of the Alabama State Society, and Mrs. McDowell, Miss Mary Elizabeth Tyree and Mrs. William Eugene Elliott.

The program included a group of songs by Representative Louis C. Rabout, of Michigan; a duet by Miss Bertha Byrd and William Moran and folk dances by little "Cookie" Giovanonni.

Miss Annie Lee Chisholm, chairman of the membership committee, was in charge of tickets. The members of the floor committee were Lieut. Ovid C. Foote, Abram M. Tillman, Charles W. Warden, F. Clyde Baggarly, John Franklin Little, A. K. Tigrett, Joseph Howorth, John T. Hollister, Burton Smith, William A. Moncure, Paul D. Stone and Mr. McDowell.

Berlin Accuses U. S. of Making Brazil Hostile

Officials Here Are Silent on Nazi News Attacks on Diplomacy.

By the Associated Press.

Diplomatic passages at arms between Berlin and President Vargas of Brazil, behind whom Berlin sees the malign influence of Uncle Sam, have added another to the series of questions disturbing relations between the United States and Germany.

Officials at the State Department refrained from commenting yesterday on the succession of editorials in German newspapers accusing the United States of pushing Brazil into enmity with Germany. They refused to regard them seriously in view of the fact they were not official expressions.

Relations with Germany, however, have been in a state of irritation recently owing to a number of causes. Chief of these are:

United States' reluctance to sell helium to Germany after Germany, on the basis of the allocation already made by the State Department and the first export permit issued by the National Munitions Control Board, had made alterations in its new dirigible to receive helium.

Frequent criticisms here of dictatorships, notably the speech of Secretary of War Woodring declaring that democracies might some day be pushed too far and resort to war.

America's demands that Germany assume Austria's debts to this country.

The United States' protest against the decree requiring registration of property of American Jews in Germany.

Officials here refused, however, to consider the relations between the two countries as tense. Hull has several times recently told Germany, through statements here, that he would be glad to negotiate a trade agreement with her on the same basis as with other countries.

Nazi Attacks Renewed.

Berlin, May 17 (U.P.).—Renewed attacks on the Washington War Department and Wall Street by Germany's inspired press, attributed in the main to developments in Brazil, tonight brought German-American relations to a new point of tension.

Providing additional fuel for the newspaper attacks were Washington's protest against the new Nazi decree calling for "utilization" of Jewish fortunes and property and the State Department's refusal to sell helium to Germany.

Foreign office officials said tonight that the United States protest regarding the Jewish decree of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering will be acknowledged either Wednesday or Thursday but would merely "confirm" receipt of the representation and promise an answer within a short time.

The foreign office pointed out that a statement carried by the German Official News Agency to the effect that the Jewish decree is an internal affair and not subject to any American protest must not be regarded as the government's official view.

Death Decree for Rebels.

Rio de Janeiro, May 17 (AP).—Acting less than a week after the abortive Fascist revolt of May 11, President Getulio Vargas today issued a ten-point decree providing the death penalty for varied offenses against the state, including attempts "to change the political or social order" with the "aid or subsidy of a foreign power."

Brazil Envoy Sees Nazis.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 17.—The Brazilian Ambassador, Moniz Aragon, conferred at length at the German Foreign Office today.

President Getulio Vargas and the Brazilian government have been criticized in the Nazi press lately for alleged anti-German discrimination.

NERVES

FREE Millions of people are suffering from "nerves" and don't know what to do about it. Scientists have recently proven that many conditions of nervousness such as neuralgia, neuritis, insomnia, fatigue, loss of appetite, constant worry, constipation and many muscular aches and pains are due to lack of certain vital food substances, which, when taken by the sufferer, give amazing relief. Neural-Aid, an inexpensive, DRU .ESS preparation contains these all-impo..ant food elements. Sufferers who clip this ad and bring it in can obtain a FREE SAMPLE of Neural-Aid and full information.

Half of City of Cardiff Sold By Marquess for 100 Millions

By the Associated Press.

Cardiff, Wales, May 17.—The Marquess of Bute today sold half of this world port of 200,000 population for a price understood to be about £20,000,000 ($100,000,000). It was believed to be the largest real estate deal recorded in Great Britain.

Neither the purchaser nor the actual price was disclosed. The sale included wide residential suburbs, shopping centers and the docks from which South Wales exports most of its coal. The land involved in the sale is covered by about 20,000 houses, 1,000 stores and 250 saloons.

The marquess retained his two historic residences here, the famed Cardiff Castle and Caerphilly Castle. The marquess, a descendant of one of the 19 sons of the fourteenth century King Robert II of Scotland, holds three earldoms, three viscountcies and six baronetcies. He owns a total of about 117,000 acres. He has eight palaces, including the fairy-story castle at San Roque, Spain, where he houses one of the world's richest art collections.

Legend says he has priceless treasures from Spanish galleons hidden in secret caverns under Cardiff Castle.

Britain's largest owner of the lucrative coal royalties, he enlisted as Private John Chrichton-Stuart in the World War at a wage of 2 shillings 9 pence (68 cents) a day.

Rebels Blocked Again by Rains And Loyalists

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, May 17.—Spanish government reinforcements, aided by fresh spring rains, tonight blocked again the insurgents' attack along the coast toward Valencia.

Fresh government troops, moved up from Gen. Jose Miaja's central sector, manned trenchworks on the 6-mile line inland from Alcala de Chisvert, near the coast, to Cuevas de Vinroma. The line bridged both spurs of the seaboard highway, giving the government control of the direct line south toward Castellon de la Plana and Valencia.

In the interior of Castellon Province, government forces also clung tenaciously to their positions before Le Iglesuela de la Cid, guarding the inland road through Albocacer to Sagunto and Valencia.

The bulk of the insurgent drive was directed temporarily against government trenches northeast of Teruel. The insurgent high command apparently was attempting to flatten government-held humps in its mountainous line for a general push toward the coast.

Mora de Rubielos, dominating the main Teruel-Sagunto road 20 miles east of Teruel, is the main objective of the insurgents in that sector. They reported capture of Alcala de la Selva, 6 miles from Mora de Rubielos on a secondary highway.

Moscow Divorce Ruled Illegal in Suit of N. Y. Man

New York, May 17 (AP).—Eliot Janeway, who said his wife divorced him by paying a fee to a Moscow bureau, was granted a divorce himself today by Supreme Court Justice Sheintag.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

The Culbertson System of Five-Suit Bridge.

(On Monday I started the description of the Culbertson System for Five-Suit Bridge. This is a continuation.)

An opening two notrump bid is based on 7 to 7½ honor-tricks and precisely 4-3-3-3-3 distribution. At this point it is well to note that notrump is a relatively undesirable game contract at five-suit bridge and that, so far as no-trump slams are concerned, they will be practically nonexistent. The value of the widow is almost always 1½ to 3 tricks higher at a suit contract than it is at notrump. Thus, a 14-trick minor suit game—a small slam—is often easier to fulfill than a mere 11-trick, 3-notrump contract. There will, however, be some reasons for playing notrump games. To determine trick expectancy at notrump use the following rule:

The Culbertson Rule of Ten (for notrump contracts only).

To determine the total trick expectancy of a single, or of combined hands at notrump, count the honor tricks in the combined hands. To this add one-half of said total. Then add one trick for each card of a suit in excess of four cards. Example: Six honor-tricks in combined hands and one five-card suit: 6 plus 3 (one-half of total) plus 1 (long card) equals ten tricks (one short of game).

Suit Contracts.

The widow acts as a sort of guillotine, chopping off the heads of about two defensive honor-tricks. Thus, for practical purposes there are only about eight active honor-tricks held around the table at a suit contract. This leads to the following expectancy in suit contracts:

Game in eagles (12 tricks) 6½ to 7 honor-tricks with a four-card trump suit; 5½ to 6 honor-tricks with a five-card trump suit; 5 to 5½ honor-tricks with freakish distribution.

To determine total trick expectancy at a suit contract, take honor-trick total of combined hands. Increase this total by 50 per cent (one-half). Furthermore, add one trick for each trump in excess of three, then add one more trick. Example: Combined hands hold six honor-tricks with a five-card trump suit: 6 plus 3 (one-half of total) plus 2 (for fourth and fifth trump) plus 1 equals 12 tricks.

(To be continued Friday.)

Today's Five-Suit Hand.

	♠ K Q ♡ 7 4 2 ♢ K 7 6 ♢ 9 8 7 4 3 ♣ 8 7 2
♠ 9 8 7 3 ♡ K Q ♡ A J 10 9 ♢ 5 2 ♢ 10 8 ♣ 5 4	North West East South	♠ A J 10 2 ♡ A 8 5 3 ♡ 8 ♢ A K 6 ♣ K J 9 3
	♠ 6 5 ♡ J 10 9 6 ♡ Q 4 3 ♢ Q J 5 ♣ A Q 10 6

Widow: E 4.

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

East	South	West	North
1 E	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 E	Pass
4 N T	Pass	6 ♡	Pass
6 E	Pass	Pass	Pass

As may be seen, the bidding was built up logically from the very start. East mentally added the widow, the eagle deuce, to his own holding and this gave him a five-card suit. Later, after West had shown a strong preference for eagles, East used the four-five notrump convention to locate aces. West showed the heart ace, by jumping (a mere five-heart bid would have been a sign-off in the lowest bid suit), and East rested at a small slam in eagles.

South opened a trump. Declarer put the eagle four in dummy's hand, discarding the club four. He won the first trick with the ace of trumps and returned a trump. The heart suit was easily established and, in all, declarer lost only one trump and the club ace. He could actually have discarded dummy's remaining singleton club on his own spade ace, but this would have involved some risks.

Trains Telescope In London Subway, 6 Die, 40 Injured

By the Associated Press.

London, May 17.—Six persons were killed and more than 40 injured, many of them seriously, today in a rear-end collision between two crowded subway trains.

The disaster was the worst in the history of London's "underground" and caused a panic in the tunnel under the heart of the city.

The two trains, both jammed with office-bound workers, threw masses of men and women into splintered wreckage as the rear car of the first and the head car of the second telescoped.

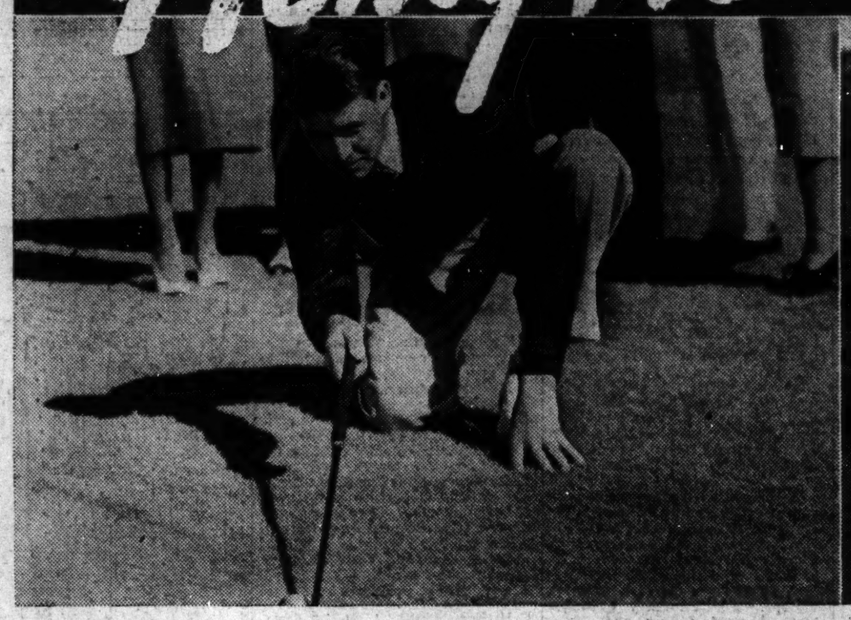
Henry Picard LOOKS THE SITUATION OVER!



Picard's game seems effortless. He's a long driver—in a tight spot, a heady strategist. "A cigarette, too, has to be sized up from a lot of angles," he says.

WORLD-FAMOUS GOLFERS—men who need iron nerves and steady hands for that winning stroke—and millions of other people under the strain of everyday life—all appreciate this fact: Camels suit your cigarette taste from every single angle. Naturally, CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT! There's a world of pleasure and enjoyment in a cigarette like that. Smoke Camels yourself. See why they are really so different from other cigarettes. Note in particular the greater pleasure and contentment you experience from Camel's costlier tobaccos!

"Camels are distinctly different from other cigarettes, Mr. Stahl—and they're different in many ways. The longer I smoke Camels, the more I appreciate their natural smoothness and mildness—the real mildness that's easy on the throat. Camels never tire my taste. Camels agree with me—from all angles. You know, I hear so many top-flight golfers praise them. Camels never get on your nerves, and Camels set you right!"

"'LOADING SHIP' in a 60-hour stretch," says hard-working Captain Francis Dolan, Marine Superintendent, "naturally a man can't be fussy about his food. I like a few Camels during and after meals 'for digestion's sake.'"

HELEN STANSBURY, Director of Women's Traffic for United Air Lines, says: "I choose Camels for their mildness and good rich taste. They're never harsh. When the pace I go gets me fatigued, a Camel gives me a 'lift.'"

"BOSSING 200 MEN deep under mud and water means, as Mike Maguire, tunnel engineer, puts it: "I can't risk 'jangled nerves.' So I stick to Camels. Besides, there's a delightful 'lift' in a Camel for a man when he's tired."

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER

"CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY:

"We smoke Camels because we know tobacco"

Marvin Holloman, well-known planter, says: "At auctions the Camel buyers pay more and take the real choice lots of tobacco. That's why we tobacco planters make Camels our cigarette. Then we're sure we're smoking finer, COSTLIER tobaccos, and they sure make a big difference!"

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Mr. T. Strickland, who sold his highest grade tobacco to Camels. "Last year those Camel buyers sure bid up to get my finest lots. There's a big difference in those expensive Camel tobaccos—so I smoke Camels myself. And there's your reason why most planters I know smoke Camels."

John T. Bone, who cultivates some of North Carolina's choicest leaf tobacco, remarks on his last crop: "Yes sir! Those Camel buyers paid top prices for my best lots. No wonder I smoke the cigarette made of finer, more expensive tobaccos—Camels!"

"We planters sure go for Camels," says Raymond Craft, whose life work is growing tobacco. "At the auctions, Camel buyers pay more to get the best of the tobacco offered. Camel bought my choice lots last year—gave me fancy prices for them. Knowing the quality that's in them, I smoke Camels myself."

The best of his last crop brought top prices from Camel buyers for grower George B. Dew. Speaking of the auction last year, Mr. Dew has this to say: "Camel buyers sure get the best tobaccos—that's certain. I guess that speaks plenty for the fine quality tobaccos in Camel cigarettes. And, like most planters who know tobacco because they grow it, I smoke Camels myself."

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

STRONG SENSE OF RUMOR: At diplomatic parties the gossip is that one of Europe's better kings, discussing a trip he had in mind, recently said:

Thurman Arnold . . . pragmatic?

* * * *

On the afternoon of the vote on the $5,000,000,000 spend-and-lend bill, someone counted 52 Congressmen in the grandstand at the ball park. (After all, its only about $38.50 for each man, woman and child, or $150.00 per family.)

* * * *

"What's wrong, John?" she demanded.

"Can't you hear 'em?" he said. "They're playing 'The Star-Spangled Banner' at the convention downstairs."

"—gawking through a doorway."

On the same day recently three journalists showed up for the White House press conference with three pungent wisecracks disguised as questions.

One asked F. D. R. about the "fire-breathing spell" of business.

The third wanted to know about "gassing Germany with helium."

* * * *

Then a fourth newshawk shot an impromptu wisecrack—a rather tart reference to Mr. Roosevelt's Chicago "quarantine" speech . . . The atmosphere got so thick you could cut it with a muffled laugh.

At this moment some tactful journalist said, "Thank you, Mr. President," and the conference ended, at the highest tension of the year.

The President took a very deep breath and remained tense in his chair for just the blink of an eye. Then relaxed again.

* * * *

Nothing subdues a squad of tourists so completely as to stand at a roped-off doorway and gaze into a room where a Great One was born or died or once slept on a tall canopied bed . . . Even the tourist tots are silent and awed as they gawk into a bedroom where an immortal once lay horizontal.

* * * *

Within a short drive of Washington there must be scores of such famed bedrooms . . . Mostly they are austere, barren, comfortless, by modern standards. . . .

It's difficult to imagine a pair of breeches draped over the foot of the bed, or some underwear crumpled abjectly on the floor, or a pile of small coins on the dresser. I wonder whether Washington ever mused, as he climbed into his nightgown, that on spring days in 150 years there would be a thousand tourists peering into his bedroom door.

"—the fences are aslant."

A writer was complaining plaintively, within Mrs. Roosevelt's hearing, that he could not quite fathom what the President really meant by one of his speeches.

"That's nothing," she said. "I couldn't quite understand that one either."

* * * *

At the Spanish Embassy in Washington there's no admission that the loyalists are losing the war . . . They borrow the Chinese catchword—"We may lose battles, but not the war."

They bring in returned warriors to tell groups sitting in the lofty ballroom that Barcelona and Madrid are more optimistic about victory than readers of American headlines.

The Russian Ambassador is apt to be there and, oddly enough, the Mexican Ambassador, whose government is harboring Trotsky, the devil of the Russians.

Guests listen to tales of bombings and blood transfusions, and then eat ices and dainty cakes.

Everyone goes home saying Senorita de los Rios is very plucky, carrying on while the Ambassador's away in Spain.

* * * *

GILT OFF THE DOME: Some of the Congressmen are poised like sprinters for the homeward dash, bag packed; they hear their fences are aslant . . . No Congressman thinks he's one of the 50 or 60 destined to lose his seat . . . Thurman Arnold, the new trust-busting Assistant Attorney General, used the word "pragmatic" five times in a half hour chat . . . At yesterday's White House press conference the President was once again in complete control . . . Virtually every question was answered with a quip.

Brazenly, one girl reporter said aloud:

"Frankly, you weren't much good today."

Jimmy Roosevelt heard it, threw back his head and laughed. The President didn't seem to hear.

War Department and Security Board Listed in Proposals.

Roosevelt Signs Bill for Gallery to House National Art.

A new public building program loomed for Washington yesterday as Congress was informed of plans for an Army Medical Library, new buildings for the War Department, the Social Security Board, the Railroad Retirement Board and an additional story on the Navy Department building.

At the same time, President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing him to set aside a site here for a Smithsonian Art Gallery to house national art collections. The building, probably to be located on Constitution avenue near Fourteenth street, will be financed by private subscription.

Deficiency appropriations for the War Department, Social Security and Railroad Retirement Boards were sent to the House by President Roosevelt. Grants of $3,000,000 were asked for purchase of sites and construction of the first units of each project.

Space for Draftsmen.

The Navy Department addition called for $210,000 to provide space for draftsmen engaged to draw plans for recently authorized naval vessels.

Discussion of construction of a new Army Medical Library and Museum came up as leaders of the medical profession urged the House Military Committee to allow a $3,750,000 appropriation for a building to house the medical writings, said to be the most complete collection in the world. The Senate Military Affairs Committee has scheduled a hearing on the same subject for tomorrow.

Dr. Alfred Stengel, of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, declared that he was "shocked" to learn that the museum's exhibits were kept in a nonfireproof building. He said he didn't "know what modern medicine would do" if the possessions were destroyed by fire.

Contrary to expectations at the Capitol, none of the proposed buildings were included as projects to be financed from relief funds.

War Units Scattered.

President Roosevelt, in justifying the building projects, pointed out that War Department units are now scattered in 19 buildings in Maryland, Virginia and the District. In wartime, he said, a concentration of the departmental units would be essential.

No permanent homes have yet been provided for the recently organized Social Security and Railroad Retirement Boards. The appropriation which the President asked would give them one building for joint use.

Both that building and the one asked for the War Department were included in a total request for $70,672,407 for additional Treasury Department appropriations. At the same time, an additional grant of $3,014,492 was asked for the Interior Department.

Coast Guard to Be Aided.

The estimate includes $600,000 for establishing a Coast Guard air station at San Francisco and $540,000 for another at Elizabeth City, N. C. The President also requested $654,000 for additional Coast Guard airplanes. To provide funds to meet the increased need for currency and internal revenue stamps and to take care of increased material costs, $1,500,000 was included for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The request for the Interior Department included $500,000 to start construction of an irrigation project in the Arch Hurley Conservatory district in New Mexico; $300,000 for constructing and equipping a Bureau of Mines experiment station at Salt Lake City, and $6,000 for the Bureau of Mines to buy a building at Boulder City, Nev.

For care and custody of the insane in Alaska, $4,700 was recommended.

Mr. Roosevelt asked $500,000 additional funds for the Bituminous Coal Commission to carry on enforcement work in the next fiscal year and asked that the United States Housing Authority be allowed to use $4,500,000 of funds, already available, for administrative expenses.

Credit Women to Meet.

The Credit Women's Breakfast Club will meet at the Willard Hotel tomorrow at 8 a. m. The speaker will be John K. Althaus, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington.

40 Years Ago Last Night 'Remember the Maine' Was Their Cry.

Forty years ago last night, 78 strapping young Washingtonians, members of Company C of the District of Columbia Volunteers, marched away to the Spanish-American War, shouting "Remember the Maine." In Cuba they took part in the siege and surrender of Santiago.

Thirty-two of the 78 are dead.

Of the 44 who remain, 16 last night gathered for a reunion at the Harrington Hotel to celebrate that memorable departure of 40 years ago, to offer a silent toast to the dead and to reminisce over the war.

Several of the veterans had not seen each other for years. Each spoke for five minutes.

Present were Capt. S. C. Domer, Lieut. Samuel C. Redman, Sergt. Harry Sisson, Maj. Thacker V. Walker, Dennis Walker, Lieut. Kenneth A. O'Connor, Capt. John Lewis Smith, Privates Gus Burghausen, William A. Hickey, Jere A. Costello, Clarence Ruggle, Charles Davison, Raymond Tongue, Daniel Cleary, Fred Greenwalt and Frank L. Ketchum.

Capt. Smith was toastmaster. The company adopted a resolution urging that a memorial placque or a monument honoring the District of Columbia veterans of the Spanish-American War be placed in the proposed Municipal Center.

Pilgrims Flock To Washington Cathedral Rites

1,000 Kneel in Prayer of Thanks for Shrine's 40 Years of Progress.

A crowd of approximately 1,000 worshipers knelt at Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon to offer prayers of thanksgiving for the shrine's 40 years of progress. Many of the worshipers were pilgrims, come here from almost every State in the country.

William R. Castle, president of the National Cathedral Association and former Undersecretary of State, told the worshipers that because the Cathedral is intended for the entire country its rolls should eventually list 100,000 members. Such a membership, he said, could provide funds to maintain the Cathedral and to increase its activities.

Mrs. William Adams Brown, vice president of the association and advisory chairman of the women's committees, declared that "upon the fidelity and devotion" of the women active in the organization's enterprises the "Cathedral builds as upon a rock."

Some 200 leaders of the cathedral's women's committees in 14 States were present at the observance. Carrying the official flags of their States, they marched into the church behind the clergymen and choir members. They were followed by delegations from the National Cathedral School for Girls, St. Alban's School, the Cathedral School for Boys and the volunteer Pilgrim Aides.

Other speakers were Coleman Jennings, a member of the cathedral council; the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the cathedral; the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington and Canon E. H. Jones, newly appointed chancellor of the cathedral.

Representatives of many denominations joined in the service, which was begun by a first recital on the now organ, with Robert George Barrow at the console. The service ended with a Thanksgiving Te Deum sung by the full cathedral choir. Prayers were said for the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington and for Bishop Alfred Harding.

Impounding Crane Has Record Haul: 5-Ton Coal Truck

The Traffic Division's impounding crane performed its heaviest job of traffic enforcement yesterday, when it towed in a five-ton truck loaded with coal.

The truck, heaped high with soft coal, was parked in the 800 block D street northwest, in violation of the 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. no-parking regulation.

House to Get D. C. Plea for Votes Today

Noyes and Allen Slated to Open Hearings Before Judiciary Body.

Constitution Amendment to Be Advocated as Way to Suffrage.

Backed with the vote in the recent suffrage plebiscite, District citizens today will take their fight for suffrage before the House Judiciary Committee.

Today's hearing, set for 10 a. m. in the caucus room of the House Office Building, will be opened with a statement of Theodore W. Noyes, editor of the Evening Star and president of the Citizens Joint Committee on National Representation, or by Commissioner George E. Allen, chairman of the sub-committee on Congressional hearings, or both.

Commissioner Allen will tell the committee that the "underlying philosophy of democracy is suffrage." So firm is the Commissioner's belief that suffrage is a necessity here that he commented:

"I will fight for local suffrage long after I am out of office."

To Seek Amendment.

They will be followed by Paul E. Lesh, chairman of the sub-committee on briefs, and Jesse C. Suter, vice chairman of the joint committee. Lesh and Suter plan to support both the Capper-Norton and the Lewis-Randolph resolutions aiming at establishment of suffrage for the District by constitutional amendment.

Suter said last night the joint committee expected to complete its arguments in favor of national representation by the close of today's hearing.

The case for local suffrage will be opened tomorrow morning by Wilbur Finch, chairman of the Citizens Conference on Suffrage for the District. He will center attention on Section 1 of the Lewis-Randolph resolution which would provide Statehood for the District.

To Give Poll Results.

Finch's arguments will be supported by Sefton Darr, Washington attorney and member of the Chevy Chase Citizens Association, and William H. Mondell, chairman of the elections committee of the conference. He will also outline methods used in conducting the District suffrage vote, and present its results.

Finch said representatives of the C. I. O. and A. F. L. groups in Washington and of colored organizations would be called to appear at the hearing.

Among organizations who will send representatives to appear with the joint committee are the Board of Trade, District Bankers Association, Federation of Citizens Associations, District Bar Association, Central Labor Union, Columbia Typographical Union, Society of Natives, American Federation of Teachers, Washingtonians and others.

Women's Groups Slated.

Women's groups include the Voteless District League of Women Voters, Women's Bar Association, Federation of Women's Clubs, Twentieth Century Club, Soroptimist Club, Women's City Club, Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women and its local branch and the Medical Women's National Association.

Others will speak for the District Democratic national committeeman, the Democratic national committeewoman, the Republican national committeeman and Republican national committeewoman.

Congressmen Pay Tributes to First Parachute Hero

A group of Congressmen yesterday paid tribute to Maj. Thomas Scott Baldwin, the world's first parachute jumper, laying a wreath on his grave in Arlington Cemetery.

Occasion for the ceremony was the fifteenth anniversary of Baldwin's death. Maj. Baldwin made the first parachute jump in the world in 1887, the first successful dirigible flight in the United States in 1904 and three years later developed and sold to the Army the Government's first lighter-than-air craft.

He was born in Marion County, Mo., June 30, 1855, and died in Buffalo, N. Y., May 17, 1923. Participating in the ceremony were Representatives Boyer, Lucas, Rigney and Thompson, all Illinois Democrats, and Romjue (Democrat), of Missouri.

Religion Held Way to Peace By Hornbeck

Army Chaplains Told U. S. Must Be Firm With Aggressors.

Stanley K. Hornbeck, adviser on political relations in the State Department, last night urged members of the Army Chaplains Association "to use the concepts of Christianity toward bringing relief in peace through justice."

Hornbeck, addressing the chaplains in their thirteenth annual convention at the Raleigh Hotel, said that in the present conflict between political beliefs, "it is through the ministry of religions that the world should hear and be asked to give heed to the perfect formula of peace."

Pointing out that differences in religion had been a "fruitful source" of international strife, Hornbeck added "Christianity as an institution has made substantial contributions toward maintenance of peace and prevention of conflict among nations."

Hornbeck said that in the desire for peace there was complete identity between the religious and the political objectives of the American nation.

Asks "Resolute Attitude."

He declared that since present world conditions block realization of these common objectives, it is still "the business of the United States to safeguard—to defend and promote—the interests of the people of the United States."

Calling for a "resolute attitude" toward nations inclined to violate legitimate interests of other nations, Hornbeck advised that where force becomes necessary, it should be made "a servant of morality, an instrument of justice."

He said the doctrines of Christianity "should contribute mightily toward advancement of the cause of peace."

Hornbeck advised that while the first line of our national defense should be spiritual, the second line should be material.

Bishop Freeman Speaks.

Other speakers at last night's meeting were Bishop James E. Freeman, Chaplain John J. Allan, of New York City, and Chaplain Julian E. Yates, of Washington.

The association was welcomed during the morning session by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Dr. Horace E. Cromer, president of the District Federation of Churches; Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Rabbinical Association, and the Most Rev. John McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore.

Other speakers included C. H. Taylor, assistant director of the CCC; Howard W. Oxley, director of camp education; William R. Arnold, chief of chaplains, outlined the theme of the convention, "Divine Worship in the Service," and Brig. Gen. L. D. Gasser, deputy chief of staff, who extended greetings from the War Department.

Mayflower Workers Vote Down Union

In an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, service employes of the Hotel Mayflower yesterday voted against representation by Local 80, Restaurant and Hotel Employes Alliance.

It was the first time a local hotel case has gone to employes for an election or certification that the union has lost. Only 2 employes out of 234 eligibles failed to vote. The results were 107 for representation and 125 against. No other questions were involved.

Col. Frederic A. Delano, president of the Americanization School Association, as he welcomed Marcia Luisa Gargon, of Madrid, Spain, and other new citizens at the school's fifteenth annual festival last night.

New Citizens Present Story of Ratification of the Constitution; Col. Delano Welcomes Them at 15 Annual Festival.

Swarthy young ladies from the Levant Coast rubbed elbows with their blonde sisters from Germany, Sweden and Denmark. Olive-skinned gentlemen from Italy and Palestine puffed cigarettes with young giants from Finland and Iceland.

It was thus last night that the Departmental Auditorium became a melting pot when the Americanization School Association held its fifteenth annual festival, with Col. Frederic A. Delano, president of the association, presiding and delivering the principal address.

The story of the ratification of the Constitution was presented, in colonial costumes and wigs, by new citizens of the United States, whose ancestors were in various sections of a king-ridden world at the time the newly freed colonists in the 13 original States ratified the Constitution and officially formed the nucleus of the United States.

A concert preceded the program. Next followed the procession of new citizens, led by Mrs. G. M. S. McClintick and Miss Vera Parker. Salute to the flag came next, after which Col. Delano welcomed the new Americans.

"The kind of education that the Americanization School gives is not easy," said Col. Delano.

"In the first place it applies to adults of other countries, where, in many cases, the language is very different, while, furthermore, the manners, the customs and the form of government may be very different.

"The children, which they bring with them, can soon adjust themselves to our ways. The work of the Americanization School is important for giving foreigners who have come to this country the opportunity of learning the fundamentals of our language and our form of government, but it is also important in enabling parents to maintain contact with, if not control, over their children."

Col. Delano's address was followed by Norwegian songs, sung by Sola Holmen, with John Kierman at the piano. Then greetings to the new citizens were extended by Commissioner of Immigration James L. Houghteling, and Albert Blum.

Also welcoming the new citizens was Mrs. Alexander H. Bell, chairmen of the Americanism committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Others on the program included Souren H. Hanessian, vice president of the Americanization School Association, and Miss Maude E. Aiton, administrative principal in charge of Americanization work.

A reception followed the program. During it Col. Delano was introduced to the new citizens, representing nations in all corners of the world, and political creeds as varied as the characteristics of mankind.

Brig. Gen. A. L. Cox Named as National Guard Head Here

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, Reserve Corps, U. S. Army, was appointed commanding general of the District National Guard yesterday by President Roosevelt, filling a vacancy existing since the death of Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan four years ago.

An attorney, the new Guard commander has had a wide and varied career of public service both in civilian and military fields.

Gen. Cox, who has attended the Army War College here, received the Distinguished Service Cross for his World War services.

Beauty Parlor Meeting Split On Basic Pay

Employes' Estimates on Living Expenses Are $5.30 Higher.

Workers Ask Minimum Established at $22.30 Per Week.

Budgets differing by $5.30 were proposed yesterday by employe and employer representatives at the first conference to fix a minimum wage for all women workers in the beauty culture industry.

Claude H. Woodward, employer representative on the board, estimated the minimum cost of living at $17 per week. Included in this sum was an amount of $10 per week for room and board.

The employes, through their representative Arthur L. Schoenthal, estimated the minimum at $22.30 per week. This is the highest budget employes have submitted.

Differ On Stockings.

Schoenthal asked for $5 per week for room rent and $7 per week for food, making a total of $12 for room and board. In addition the employes asked for $3.67 per week for clothing; $5.15 per week for sundries, which include health, recreation, personal car and clothing repair; and $1.48 for tools used in the trade, uniforms and their upkeep.

The employers, on the other hand, estimated it would cost $2.74 for clothing and $4.26 for sundries, disregarding tools and upkeep of uniforms.

The employes and employers differed in the number of hose estimated for the year's use. The employers maintain that a girl can get along with 24 pairs of hose, and the employes say "at least 52 pair." They agreed on the price per pair at 69 cents.

Nightgown Argument.

The employes want four nightgowns at $1 each, and the employers estimate nightgowns should be purchased at a price not exceeding 59 cents. However, the employers were willing to allow one umbrella every two years at a price of $2.

Employes estimated an umbrella could be purchased for $1.95 and should last two years.

The wage conference decided yesterday to hold future meetings each Monday and Tuesday from 10 a. m. to noon.

Petworth Group Votes Against Zoning Law

A resolution favoring the new zoning law was voted down by the Petworth Citizens Association last night at the Petworth School.

The group took in 106 new members, bringing the total to 1,373. Members went on record as favoring the proposed cross-town bus line from Chevy Chase to Northeast Washington; and indorsing a petition to put the Petworth loop back on its old route.

Abbey Players Offer Tragedy In Second Bill

'Juno and the Paycock' Arouses Enthusiasm of Large House.

By Nelson B. Bell

"JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK." Gilbert A. Wickes presents the Abbey Theater Players in the tragedy in three acts by Sean O'Casey; under the personal management of F. R. Higgins.

THE CAST.

"Capt." Jack Boyle ... Barry Fitzgerald
"Juno" Boyle, his wife ... Eileen Crowe
Johnny Boyle ... Arthur Shields
Mary Boyle ... Aideen O'Connor
"Joxer" Daly ... F. J. McCormick
Maisie Madigan ... Maureen Delany
"Needle" Nugents ... M. J. Dolan
Mrs. Tancred ... May Craig
Jerry Devine ... Dennis O'Dea
Charlie Bentham ... Joseph Linnane
An Irregular ... Austin Meldon
Sewing Machine Vendor ... Frolie Mulhern

Following their opening night's genial and hilarious "The Far Off Hills" with Sean O'Casey's tragic drama of "Juno and the Paycock" at the National Theater last night, the Abbey Theater Players won the enthusiasm of another large audience by their complete command of the somber as well as the gay, in dramatic expression.

"Juno and the Paycock," in the first two of its three acts reveals nothing more than vague overtones of the tragedy that is to overtake its pivotal characters in its final chapter. The play, at base, is a protest against economic and political conditions in Ireland that are not quite so universal in appeal as the humorous developments of the initial Lennox Robinson comedy. It is, nevertheless, played with the same integrity, the same skill and the same unfaltering fidelity to the actual things of life that characterize all of the Abbey performances.

O'Casey, by a deft drawing of contrasting characters and an adroit contrivance of dialogue, has succeeded in alleviating the depressing aspects of his drama by the introduction of a great measure of effective comedy. For its first two acts, "Juno and the Paycock" is almost unadulterated fun. The last is lachrymose and lugubricus.

Fitzgerald Scores Again.

The comedy springs largely from the incomparable playing of Barry Fitzgerald, making his first local appearance of this engagement, in the role of "Captain" Jack Boyle. He is the "Paycock"—a roistering, vociferous and blustering ne'er-do-well, who stands in splendid awe of his wife, Juno, the role assumed with perfect effect by Eileen Crowe. By this portrayal, Mr. Fitzgerald strengthens the impression that he is, perhaps, the most facile comedian on the English speaking stage today.

F. J. McCormick, who did so fine a piece of work as the pessimistic Harold Mahony in "The Far Off Hills," last evening emphasized his versatility by contributing a companion piece to the Fitzgerald humor as "Joxer" Daly, "Captain" Jack's equally indolent accomplice in indigence.

The other members of the cast acquitted themselves with their accustomed proficiency, Arthur Shields, Aideen O'Connor, Maureen Delany, M. J. Dolan, May Craig and all the rest coming in for their rounds of applause upon their first entrances and upon the fall of the final curtain.

This afternoon, George Shiels' "The New Gossoon" will be the bill, with J. M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World" scheduled to be enacted at night, with Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon" to complete the double bill.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Community Center Department presents Evelyn Davis and her dance group in the Roosevelt High School auditorium Tuesday night. Program: Second Processional (Stevens),. Proclamation. (Healy), Two Femininities: Pseudo-Intellectualist (Stevens) and Cause Woman (Hindemith) Bourree (Lully), Impending Cataclysm (Stevens), Theme and Variations (Stevens), Americana (Guion), First Person Singular (Foldovski), Marching to Glory (Negro Spirituals).

Among the young practitioners of the modern dance, Evelyn Davis is one of the most talented, as her work in Washington has demonstrated during the last few years. Both in her inventions for the solo dance and in her choreography for ensemble evolutions, she discloses a lively imagination, a sure sense of design and a ready wit. These qualities were all in evidence last evening in the program which she gave with 28 assisting dancers in Roosevelt High School auditorium.

Eclectic in her choice of formulae, she has followed no one school, but has developed her individuality with a refreshing freedom from stylization. It is inevitable, of course, that certain style patterns be adopted as symbols of the motivating ideas, but Miss Davis utilizes them with an effective plasticity. Her choreography flows with a spontaneous movement and seems to be the natural emanation of the artistic idea which energizes it.

Of the major dances exhibited last night, "Second Processional" and "Theme and Variations" were abstract in their designs, "Impending Cataclysm" was symbolic, and "Marching to Glory" representational. The last, accompanied by the off-stage singing of a sextet from Howard University, was a stirring reproduction of the religious fervor characteristic of the old camp meetings.

Satire was the motive in Miss Davis' two solo dances, "Pseudo-Intellectualist" and "Cause Woman," and humor in her "Americana." Dorothy Ross also used the satiric method in her "First Person Singular" and showed herself an apt pupil in dance composition. Elaine Scanlan created her interesting solo, "Proclamation," and Lois Bowen devised original treatment of a bourree by Lully.

That gifted young resident composer, Everett Stevens, displayed his keen appreciation of the aims of the modern dance in his music for "Second Processional," "Impending Cataclysm" and "Theme and Variation." He is well aware that the new technique requires the predominance of rhythm, and that the melodic line must neither be long nor so pleasing as to call attention to itself to the detriment of the dance. That Elizabeth Healy also recognizes this was apparent in her music for Elaine Scanlan's "Proclamation."

Approaching Season of 'Barn' Theater Promises Capital an Augmented List of Amusement Places

The Roadside, Olney Theater Corporation and Crossroads All Plan to Get Under Way Within Few Weeks; Variety Club Gets Active; About Phil Regan; Mr. O'Neill Denies; Tickets for "Hood."

IT won't be long now until the rural theaters will be bursting into bloom.

The Roadside "old red barn" will open its season on June 13 with a play which, to the best of my knowledge and belief, never before has been seen in the Capital. Along about the middle of July, Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran hopes to inaugurate his pretentious hot weather project out Olney way, with a restaurant, theater and stage training school as integral parts of the plant. A little farther to the South, the Cross-Roads Theater, in Virginia, will get under way with a production of Mark Reed's comedy of "Petticoat Fever."

BELL.

It takes a dash of action, a seasoning of suspense, a leavening of comedy, a bit of intrigue, a considerable meed of romance and quite a touch of melodrama to make a summer Roadside season. The schedule for 1938 seems to adhere to that formula.

"Sweeney Todd, or the Demon Barber of Fleet Street," will be the initial offering of the Roadside's new season, running from June 13 to 25. Six more plays, many of them new to Washington and each running for a fortnight, will complete the 14-week season. A wide variation of type in the listed plays is indicated by the advance announcements.

The second play of the season out on the Rockville pike will be another play by Tom Taylor, author of "Our American Cousin," a last season hit, which will be put on from June 27 to July 9. Its title is "Plot and Passion." After that, you will be surprised!

If the Cochran enterprise eventuates, there will be seen in his rustic playhouse such established stars as Ethel Barrymore, Jane Cowl, Charlotte Walker, Frances Starr and others, plus a possible importation or two from Hollywood, "between pictures," to do stage plays here. Possibilities for this brief duty include such notables as Edward Arnold and Spencer Tracy.

Edward Arnold, of course, feels a little sentiment in the matter, since he was one of the early members of the National Theater Players, which Mr. Cochran engineered on E street, for something over a decade.

Getting back to the Cross-Roads, the second presentation of the season across the bridge will be "Holiday," Philip Barry's splendid play that has been done successfully on both stage and screen by some of our most eminent players.

It seems that there will be places to go this summer.

The Variety Club of Washington, Tent No. 11 in the national organization, has had its face lifted. The rooms have been done over in an entirely new color scheme that adds greatly to their effectiveness. Formerly in rose tints and terra cotta shades, the main lounge now is more deeply toned in pale greens, gray and deep blues with a marine blue ceiling that is suggestive of some sort of celestial or zodiacal design intended to indicate the position of the stars. As a matter of fact, what those ceiling symbols really are are magnified stencils of snow flakes in all of their peculiarly beautiful geometrical designs. I wouldn't say that the Variety Club's rooms are the handsomest in Washington, but they come close—thanks to the artistic perception of Dr. Archie Engel, who supervised the going-over.

And speaking of the Variety Club, the mere fact that it has been quiescent for a brief period does not mean that it has abandoned its charitable enterprises, calculated to ameliorate suffering in the Capital City.

Within a few days, Variety will present a new ambulance to Emergency Hospital to relieve an unfortunate situation in the matter of providing quick succor for the ill and injured. I am led to understand that only a fraction of the present number of emergency calls received daily by the Emergency Hospital can be responded to, by reason of a sorry lack of rolling equipment. It is to overcome this deficiency that Variety is making this additional gesture on the side of humanitarianism.

You will hear more of this when the presentation is made, in front of the District Building, following a luncheon to be attended by many prominent civic workers of the city.

That might be as early as next Monday—I wouldn't be sure.

Tickets for the midnight premiere of "The Adventure of Robin Hood," beginning this Thursday night at 11:30 o'clock, are now on sale at the boxoffices of the Earle and Metropolitan Theaters. The preview showing will be held at the Earle. Tickets also may be obtained, so I am told, at all of the Warner neighborhood playhouses, with the exception of the Home and Central. So now you know—or at least ought to suspect.

Phil Regan, headlining this week at Loew's Capitol Theater, can't keep himself away from the prize rings. Never a professional boxer himself, he still goes along with the beak-busting business as his favorite sport. So do I, so that makes us even.

Accordingly, Phil will not leave Washington immediately after his last performance at the Capitol Thursday night, but will trek himself out to Griffith Stadium, where Lou Gevinson and Petey Sarron will be tossing leather at each other—and may the best man win. Phil personally will present his own handsome trophy to the victor at the end of the bout.

This will not be the first time Regan has been at a Washington ring. He was in Champion Freddie Miller's corner the night this same Petey Sarron took the championship away from him. He also was at the ringside at Maj. Brown's police charity show last year. The lad seems to like fighting, and if, as an old friend, I might be permitted to say so, can do a bit of it himself, if he has to—but not up there in the ring for money.

• • • •

This Regan fellow, incidentally, sees the motion picture industry with a clear eye and a shrewd appraisal of what ails it—if anything. During a pleasant visit yesterday afternoon, he coincided with this department's view that double-feature bills are a curse, "A" and "B" pictures an unfortunate advance admission of attempted pre-eminence and mediocrity, and that there is no sense in attacking star salaries when studio executives are "pulling down" stipends that make their acting aces look like mere pikers. I can go along on all of this. I also can go along on Mr. Regan, who is one of the most down-to-earth and "regular" chaps I ever have known. Mrs. Regan falls into the same mold. Their two small daughters, here with them on this visit, I have not met, as yet, but I'll wager they are all right, too.

And can Phil sing! He now is doing his singing at the Capitol from the ramp, right down in the laps of the first row. It is much better that way than when he had to sing from the stage across what Allan Jones described as the "Gulf of Mexico"—meaning the expansive orchestra pit that places an artist practically miles away from his audience.

I mean to say that when the report got abroad that he was breaking with the Theater Guild, which has produced all of his plays since 1928—that would be an even 10 years—he had this to say:

"Please emphatically deny that I had any intention of breaking with Guild or producing cycle myself. Report is nonsense. First two plays already are under contract to Guild and I discussed plans for production of whole cycle with Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner when they were out here and since then by letter. Deeply regret this rumor. Guild always has been fine to me as a producer. Its members are my personal friends and my one feeling is of grateful loyalty to the organization and absolute confidence in it."

That ought to put an end to that.

Meteorological Note.

What is so rare as a day in June, when it happens to come along in May?

Marco Polo Seems Unconcerned

GARY COOPER,

as he appears in the title role of Samuel Goldwyn's elaborate production of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," opening on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday. Marco Polo leads an adventurous career in China, both commercial and romantic. What are a few arrows in his life—even if they are shot at him?

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

HEDDA HOPPER

The story—well, let's do what they did—skip it, and go on to the raised eyebrows of Melville Cooper, the mad joy and despair of Fritz Feld and Kurt Bois. For my money I'd rather have one "Wu" from Hugh Herbert than the whole Schnickelfritz band. I'm so tired of physical comedy I could scream. A washboard is fine in its proper place. I'd like to see a lot of our people use it for what it was intended instead of making sounds passing for music on it.

Ed Brophy's tears are as funny as the expression on Al Jenkins' face when his hard-boiled Hollywood pals give him a baby shower. I don't remember having seen prettier chorus girls.

And a little child shall lead him. With everyone doing raves and nip-ups over Errol Flynn in "Robin Hood" and with threats, exhortations and what-nots from the Brothers Warner, Errol's coming back to assume his most sincere role to date—godfather to Patrick Knowles' baby boy.

In case you haven't seen "Robin Hood," don't wait but do it now. Truly exciting and glorious color. It's almost indecent to be as beautiful as Olivia DeHavilland. How do girls get that way? Mother Nature certainly had her arms around her.

Doug Fairbanks' opening night in New York, in that picture, was thrilling, too. But with a difference. The man who stole the spotlight was Rudolph Valentino, who occupied a box. So much so that Doug and Mary made their entrance and exit through the stage door. During intermission the audience never moved from their seats. People from the balcony poured down the aisles—stood drinking him in. Almost as bad as a certain Hollywood wedding at which the matron of honor stole the show from the bride.

Twould appear that Selznick has tested everyone, from Dorothy Gish to Marie Doro, for the mother part in "The Young in Heart." Why overlook Sophie Tucker? They'll probably end up by giving it to Bee Lillie. Speaking of Bee, her salary has doubled since "Doctor Rythm." Quite right, too.

Rosa Ponselle and husband, Carle Jackson—testing like mad at Metro. Slapsie Maxie, tailed and top-hatted, after attending a big opening, looked in at his own cafe and said, "I'm getting too good for this joint." Things are so bad in China they're closing their antique factories.

Welcome is on the mat for Cole and Linda Porter, who have had a miserable time over accidents. Cole's broken leg and Linda's arm. He's not allowing his songs from the success, "You Never Know" to be played on radio before the New York opening. Wants them fresh.

Understand Mrs. Jock Whitney finally gets her wish—goes into a horse opera. Why not a Western for Allan Jones, who sings well and knows what to do with a horse besides sitting on it. That animal didn't do Larry Tibbett any harm in his first and only great success on the screen, "The Rogue Song." Nor do you hear any complaints about Gene Autrey—he's broken records throughout the country.

Some good, riproarin' Westerns, with a couple of songs thrown in, is just what this country needs instead of a lot of note-writing to "Dear Mac" and others.

John Charles Thomas and troupe are having a terrible time. When all set and ready to go into a full rehearsal of "Blossom Time" they find the hall has been rented for a church service or flag-waving contest. I don't mean the American flag, either.

Mrs. Sigmund Romberg bought a tiny boat with a sail. Can you picture Romey using one paddle and making the rounds of his swimming pool in nothing flat. He couldn't wait to get one—pool, silly. And in one year he has dunked the body twice. He'll be very upset when he hears that George Burns glides around his in a boat with an outboard motor attached.

Tipping my lid to Dorothy Lamour, who dances with orchids in one hand, Randy Scott in the other and husband, Herbie Kay, directing the orchestra for them. That's cooperation. Let's have more of it.

Pigskin Soldier.

Ambrose Schindler, former football ace at the University of Southern California, has been assigned to portray a soldier in "Shopworn Angel." The film marks his screen debut.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 17.

"And I keep reading about theater owners squawking about big movie salaries . . . so with your influence, dear—why don't you get me a job in Hollywood? . . . What? . . . As a writer? . . . No, I'm willing to start at the bottom—as a plain, ordinary movie star."

12 P. M. "This is the complete list of the men Dewey has secretly indicted for racketeering in the baking industry," a police official informs at the Tavern. "In addition to Gurrah Shapiro, Lepke Buchalter, Samuel Schorr, Isidor Zennreich, Harold Silverman, Max Silverman and Wolfie Goldis" . . . "I'm leaving soon for China," Burgess Meredith confides at 21, "right into the interior" . . . "Although we've been playing 'Heartbreak House' for more than two weeks," Orson Welles reports, "We still don't know how much we owe George Bernard Shaw for the royalties. He won't answer our inquiries" . . . "I went to school until 5B. Then Eddie Cantor made me quit my cab-driving six years ago," Eddie Davis tells Terry Lawlor at the Glass Hat, "and I joined his gag-writing staff. Now, I'm with RKO, and last month, when I changed my bank in Hollywood, I had to fill out the application. I gave my name, address—but 'occupation' stumped me. I had to turn to my wife, and ask her, 'How do you spell "Writer?"'"

1 A. M. At Billy the Oysterman's, New York's industrial designers enter a "functional-design" contest, to see what they can model out of oyster shells. The guests gather around Donald Deskey, designer of the Radio City Music Hall, who spends 15 minutes molding the clay and oyster shells—into a nice-looking oyster . . . "So we dined at the White House," Mark Hanna relates at Gallagher's, "and F. D., jr., told his father that I had lived in China for nine years. The President asked me all about China and its chances for holding out against Japan. But Mr. Roosevelt knew more about China than I could ever know" . . . John Jacob Astor, who refused to pose for the photographer, jumps from his table at La Conga when a flashlight bulb goes off. "Don't worry," he's assured, "We were merely photographing Frederic March" . . . "I hear you're going to try just coasting through the summer," Billy Rose is asked at the Casa Manana . . . "Yes," he admits, "Gold-coasting."

2 A. M. "We didn't allow the picture to be taken," the head waiter reports at the Plaza's Persian room, "but there was Gladys Swarthout singing 'Sidewalks of New York,' while Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith waltzed on the floor, alone" . . . "Before the war," Ben Bernie and Phil Baker declare at the Stork Club, "we were vaudeville partners, and the team of Bernie and Baker were headliners. Now we might have a reunion—for a series of broadcasts" . . . "So they told me to go to the costume department and be fitted," Luise Rainer laments. "They wouldn't tell me what the role would be, so I told them to go ahead, and just find me a garland of potatoes" . . . "These British film people tried to sign the Hartmanns," Bert Wheeler reports at the Cotton Club, "didn't offer enough money, and said: 'Come, come, it takes two to make a bargain.' 'The trouble is,' Hartmann replied, 'only one of them'll get it.'"

3 A. M. "Ella Kazan and I just visited the East Side Dramatic Group," Clifford Odets states at the Versailles, "and one of the youngsters started to say 'I'm embarrassed. I always am embarrassed when I have to make a speech. I'm embarrassed.' His pal interrupted to say 'Look. With two wars going on in the world—he's embarrassed'" . . . "Goldwyn's publicity department didn't like the statements Sam was issuing," a film executive states at the Gay '90s, "so when Goldwyn was on the boat, in Frisco, they called in the press, to see that a good story is released. Sam suddenly stared at the bridge, through the porthole, and shrieked: 'Look, look—the bridge is moving'" . . . "Billings and Mooney are completely reconciled, and now are friends," George Davis, Tom Mooney's lawyer, assures at the Onyx Club.

4 A. M. "No, I won't direct 'Golden Boy' for Columbia," Leo McCarey states at El Morocco. "Before 'the Awful Truth' was previewed, Columbia didn't like it. They offered a one-quarter interest, for $200,000—and I said I'd take that offer. But before the agreement could be signed, the picture was previewed and it became apparent that it would be a hit. My $200,000 would have given me more than $300,000 profit" "The American Labor Party won't enter a national ticket in 1940," an A. L. P. official assures at the 18 Club. "We'll apply our voting strength only to keeping the Democratic Party liberal." . . . "Edward Hungerford, of the New York Central," a railroad executive informs at The Famous Door, "is trying to arrange for him and Lucius Beebe, both locomotive enthusiasts, to get permission to pilot, from California, an 1871 wood-burning locomotive to the World's Fair Railroad Show."

• • • •

5 A. M. "I'm going back to Hollywood," Frank Fay sighs at Lindy's, "because I can't find any fun in New York—and also because I've got to appear in that law suit" . . . "Word just came," a music publisher reports, "that Abe Lyman's deal to purchase the Trocadero cafe has been called off. They couldn't agree on price" . . . "When Quentin Reynolds flew to Haiti and Santo Domingo to investigate the border massacres for Collier's magazine," an editor relates at Dave's blue room, "he first interviewed Trujillo. Then to President Vincente's place in Haiti, to get his version. The city was under martial law, because there were rumors of revolution . . . The two men sat in the living room, in the midst of all this excitement, and Vincente told of the massacre of thousands of his subjects. Reynolds suddenly interrupted to ask: 'Have you a radio here?' . . . Vincente nodded . . . 'Good,' said Reynolds, 'turn it on. I don't want to miss Charlie McCarthy!'"

*X WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, 1938 17

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Detroit, Mich., May 17.—Tom Yawkey's uncle, who owned the Tigers in the Ty Cobb era, made a gift of 49 per cent of the stock of the club to the late Frank Navin, then the team's secretary-treasurer . . . that share of stock would now bring $2,000,000 in the market . . . inasmuch as Detroit is rated as the best baseball town in either league, not excluding New York . . . Lavishing his wealth on the Tigers, present owner Walter O. Briggs, automobile body magnate, bought up property along an entire street and closed the street in order to build new grandstands that have increased the capacity of the Detroit park to 55,000 . . . Navin Field has been renamed Briggs Stadium.

POVICH.

• • • •

Lou Fonseca was fired as manager of the Chicago White Sox in mid-season of 1934 because of Al Simmons . . . was the favorite ball player of Owner Lou Comiskey who read in the late evening editions that Fonseca ordered Simmons back into a game in Washington after he had been struck on the head by a ball thrown by Cronin . . . That night Comiskey dispatched a telegram discharging Fonseca and elevating Jimmy Dykes to the management of the team . . . Jimmy Wasdell, sent to Indianapolis by the Nats for seasoning as an outfielder, is not hitting.

• • • •

Cornelius Vanderbile Whitney is enlisting the aid of race fans in the search for a name for one of his prize young colts . . . it is a foal out of the mare Top Flight and sired by Man o' War . . . And it was born on May 7, Derby Day . . . Whitney believes such a combination of circumstances demands an expressive name for the colt and is welcoming suggestions. . . . Here is this department's contribution: "The Makings" . . . The skeptics who aren't ready yet to concede that War Admiral can beat Seabiscuit, are wondering what will happen at Belmont in the May 30 match race if the Biscuit is within striking distance as they turn into the home stretch. . . . If it's question of stamina, the Biscuit will have plenty of backers.

• • • •

Andy Farkas, the University of Detroit star who George Marshall thinks will replace Cliff Battles in the affections of Washington football fans, chose between professional football and the priesthood when he signed a contract to play professional football with the Redskins . . . Marshall may be correct, but it smacks strongly of all the predictions that "This guy is another Ty Cobb" . . . Columbia University's first offer to Battles before he accepted an assistant coaching job with Lou Little was $3,800, which was $1,050 more than the Redskins paid him.

• • • •

Cincinnati's ball park already is sold out for the all-star American vs. National League game on July 6 . . . in which Bill Terry and Joe McCarthy again will be the opposing managers . . . McCarthy, who is privileged to pick six players of his own liking after the votes of other managers are in, again may pack the American League club with his Yankees . . . New York players drove in seven of the eight runs in the all-star game last year . . . The National League, still fuming over the "new minor league story," will pull no punches on July 6 . . . Hubbell, Melton and Mungo will probably be Terry's pitchers.

• • • •

Detroit's Harlem is souring on Joe Louis, who has forsaken his home town for Chicago, now that he has wealth and affluence . . . Win, lose or draw against Max Schmeling, Louis is not expected to figure in another fight during 1938 . . . On account of the terrific percentage he would be forced to give up in income taxes. . . . The moon shooters who picked Schmeling to lick Louis two years ago may have been correct in their declaration that the first good fighter who wasn't afraid of the Negro had a great chance to beat him.

• • • •

The National League's battle for equal recognition with the American League is suffering in one respect . . . Tony Lazzeri, who was an sixth-place hitter with the Yankees, is now batting in the cleanup position with the Cubs . . . Zeke Bonura still insists that Lou Comiskey, White Sox owner, had heard nothing of the Bonura-Joe Kuhel deal until it was completed by Manager Jimmy Dykes . . . and that Comiskey told Bonura not to report to Washington . . . He was given the okay by Comiskey only when the White Sox owner learned that it was too late to cancel the deal.

The applause given Goose Goslin when he appeared in the Washington line-up as a pinch-hitter here yesterday was the greatest ovation ever given a visiting player in Detroit . . . And the Goose promptly singled . . . Rudy York and Hank Greenberg are in such a frenzy to win the favor of Detroit fans with home runs that they are overswinging at a terrific cost to their batting averages.

Tribe Wins Over Macks, Gain on Sox

Win 5-1 Behind 4-Hit Work of Whitehill; Caster Pounded.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 17.— Earl Whitehill turned back Philadelphia's Athletics with four hits today to give Cleveland a 5-1 victory which put the Indians within a half-game of the league-leading Boston Red Sox, who were rained out.

It was a mixed triumph for the Cleveland southpaw, however. He was wild in the first inning, when two passes and a hit batsman plus Bill Werber's single gave the Mackmen their only run. Whitehill had not a single strikeout to show for his day's work, but himself batted .666 in three times at bat.

George Caster, the Mack's pitcher, also had his moments of wildness. In the fourth, Ken Keltner, who had doubled, took third on one of Caster's wild pitches, and then came home on Whitehill's single. Keltner had scored Hal Trosky with the tying run.

Another wild pitch, in the seventh, scored Jeff Heath, who had tripled to start the inning. Averill then walked, and Trosky hit his fifth home run of the season to score him.

Dick Siebert, Connie Mack's first-base recruit from Columbus, Ohio, made an unassisted double play in the second, grabbing Bruce Campbell's smash with one hand and putting out Lyn Lary.

Sothoron Denies Joe Heving Report

Minneapolis, May 17 (AP).—Manager Al Sothoron, of the Milwaukee American Association baseball club, commenting on a Milwaukee report, said today he had not granted Pitcher Joe Heving permission to sell himself to a major league ball club for $7,500.

"We bought him in good faith," said Sothoron, "and it is not reasonable to believe that after the majors waived on him at the $7,500 price they would want to take him back. However, if a player has a chance to go to the major leagues, the Milwaukee club will not stand in his way."

Sothoron said Heving, whom the Brewers bought from Cleveland for $7,500, remained in Milwaukee when the team came here. The Brewer manager said he had a conference with him last night but was unable to reach an agreement on salary.

D. C. Commissioners Beat R. R. B., 13 to 4

In a United States Government League game, the District Commissioner nine defeated the Railway Retirement Board team, 13-4, in an eight-inning tilt yesterday.

Frye, with two homers and a double in four trips to the plate, was the slugging star for the winners.

Little Augie Wanted Too Much—Lost All!

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Augie Galan, of the Chicago Cubs, hit a single in the third inning of the game with the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday, but was not satisfied. He tried to stretch it into a double. Result: one out for the Cubs. Dick Bartell, taking a perfect throw from Outfielder Moore, tagged the ambitious Bruin as he slid into second base. The Giants won, 6 to 5.

600 Expected At 'G' Dinner

Elwood Seal Toastmaster Here Tonight.

Close to 600 guests are expected at the annual Georgetown University "G" dinner this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Mayflower Hotel.

Elwood Seal, District corporation counsel, will be toastmaster and principal speeches will be given by the Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown; Frank Dobson, head football coach of the University of Maryland, and Harry Woodring, Secretary of War.

Joe Murphy Electtd Hoya Court Captain

Joe Murphy, of North Bergen, N. J., a junior in the school of arts and sciences, yesterday was elected captain of the 1938-1939 Georgetown University basketball team. He was elected by the lettermen.

Murphy, who succeeds Mike Petroskey, ranked second to that player in scoring last season and was named to a forward berth on several All-District teams. He also was honored on Temple University's all-opponent team.

Harris Sad As Pitching 'Turns Sour'

Would Buy a Hurler or Two if Available; Sees Losses as a Crime.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Mich., May 17.—Stanley Raymond Harris leaned back in the upholstery of the Nats' hotel lobby this dismal, rain-swept afternoon and surveyed a situation equally as dreary as the weather outside.

"It's a shame," said Harris, "that the talent on this ball club is being wasted because we haven't been getting the pitching."

The Nats' manager obviously was referring to the Nats' current four-game losing streak and their rapid decline since leaving Griffith Stadium on their first extended road trip which has yet to produce a Washington victory.

"We should have had three wins in those four games," he said. "We can't squawk about losing that first game in Boston. We were shut out, and that's all there was to it. But losing those other three since has been a crime. We made nine runs in one game and couldn't win. We made 13 hits in the next and couldn't win. Yesterday we made seven runs and couldn't win. That's getting to be serious.

Knew Staff Was Weak.

"I knew our pitching staff wasn't anything to get excited about when we came out of the South, but I never dreamed it would be this bad. I had an idea that we'd cover a lot of our pitching sins with our hitting, but our good hitting can't keep up with our weak pitching.

"The worst part about it is, there's no sign that we can pick up even one pitcher that would be helpful to us. Clark Griffith would buy him in a minute, but clubs are hanging on to their pitchers these days. There isn't a team that isn't in the market for one.

"I actually know only one pitcher who can be had and he's Vito Tamulis, of the Browns. They want $10,000 for him and I couldn't conscientiously recommend him if they only wanted half that much."

When Harris said it was a shame that the Nats other talents were being sacrificed because of the lack of capable pitching, he meant that otherwise his ball club was doing very well, indeed.

The Nats have been hitting the ball well, and scoring runs in clusters. On the defense they have been downright spectacular—both infield and outfield. Defensively, his catching has been as good as any in the league.

Outfield Is Set.

Finally, Harris' outfield seems to be squared away. With the return of Al Simmons to the lineup, Harris apparently is through experimenting with his rookie outfielders—George Case and Taft Wright.

Simmons, Almada and Johnny Stone are now outfield fixtures. Like Simmons, Stone has begun to hit the ball hard. Almada, in fact is not expected to add power to the attack. His fielding is compensation enough. But he is a pesky type of hitter, nevertheless and his ability to get on base adds to his value.

Harris' plan of alternating Buddy Myer and Ossie Bluege at second base has worked out perfectly. The veterans apparently appreciate their rest and have performed brilliantly. Cecil Travis has finally learned how

Terps Whip V. M. I., 8-6

Maryland Coasts in Behind Early Lead.

By Jack Munhall.

Cramming five runs into a big third inning, Maryland University's nine fought off the belated challenges of V. M. I. yesterday and staggered to a 8-6 victory in a Southern Conference battle at College Park.

It was the eleventh triumph of the season for the Terps against eight setbacks.

It was a wild, loosely-played game that the Terps took yesterday, there being no fewer than five pitchers and seven errors. The Terps were guilty of employing three of the alleged hurlers and also were guilty of committing five of the miscues. But the Keydets were weak with men of base and were left holding the bags—11 of them to be exact.

The Terps were behind only once. V. M. I. scored the initial run of the game in the second inning and then subsided peacefully until the seventh when Bill Steiner, the Terps' starting pitcher, started a rally by walking three men. But by this time the Terps had a 7-1 lead, so the four runs that the Kaydets separated from Steiner and Willie Silverman, his relief, served only to make the final score closer.

Silverman apparently taking his cue from Steiner suddenly grew wild in the eighth, and Earl Springer, the third Maryland pitcher, was wheeled into action. He managed to throw the belligerent Keydets out in the ninth but not before yielding them their fifth run.

Maryland's scoring in the third inning was not alone due to their hitting ability, for the Terps made only four hits. However, a single by Jos Crisafulli, triples by Waverly Wheeler and Shorty Chumbris, combined with a pair of walks given by Lugar, the starting Keydet pitcher, were sufficient to produce the five runs.

Maryland had made its first two runs in the second, also with the aid of two walks. Hugh Keller and Cleno Chumbris were passed and crossed the plate on infield outs by Crisafulli, Shorty Chumbris and a single by George Knepley. The final score came in the eighth.

Paul Shu, who graduated from George Washington High to become V. M. I.'s greatest all-around athlete, played an excellent game for the losers. Although he made only one hit, his fielding was both flawless and spectacular. Three times his accurate arm cut down Maryland stealers.

Giants Beat Cubs in 12th By 6-5 Count

Leslie's Single Off Jack Russell Scores Ott With Big Run.

By the Associated Press

New York, May 18.—A ringing single to center by Sambo Leslie broke up a turbulent ball game and gave the Giants a 6-to-5 victory over their ancient enemies, the Chicago Cubs, in the twelfth inning today.

Leslie's hit scored Mel Ott from second base with the run that won the three-hour and ten-minute game, a battle which kept 19,315 fans shouting from the first inning on.

In each of the three extra innings, the Cubs had men on base. Dick Coffman, the former American Leaguer, came in to relieve Cliff Melton in the twelfth with three on and none out. Coffman ended the crisis by retiring the side on two force outs and a pop fly and became the winning pitcher.

The Giants, off to a one-run lead with a three-run first inning start, added two more in their half of the fifth on singles by Jimmy Ripple, Hank Leiber and Johnny McCarthy, but suddenly the Cubs came to life.

A walk and a single by Tony Lazzeri, making his New York debut as a National Leaguer, set the stage and Rookie Joe Marty tied the score when he dropped a home run into the right field stands.

Clay Bryant, who had relieved Tex Carleton, the Chicago starting pitcher, in the first, picked up form there and held the Giants helpless. They didn't get a hit or a run off his fast one from the fifth to the twelfth. Then he walked Ott, the first hitter. Leiber bunted Otty to second. The Cubs sent in Bob Logan to replace Bryant, who had lost his stuff.

Logan passed McCarthy and when Bill Terry sent Wally Berger up, the customary juggling set in. Jack Russell replaced Logan to pitch to Berger and Terry sent Leslie, a left hander, to hit against Russell, a righty. It was a good move. Leslie picked the second pitch and the Cubs were sunk.

Reds Swamp Phillies, 13 to 1

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Combining effective hitting with Paul Derringer's four-hit pitching, Cincinnati today scored an easy 13-to-1 victory over the Phillies. It was Derringer's fourth victory of the season.

The Reds knocked Claude Passeau out of the box in less than an inning and then went on to batter Southpaw Al Smith and Right-hander Pete Sivess for a total of 22 hits, including a homer by Frey.

Cardinals Win, 2-1; Pirates Beaten, 1-0

Fiddler Silences Bats of Dodgers; Error Ruins Work.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, May 17.—Fiddler Bill McGee, big St. Louis right-hander, opened the Cardinals' eastern jaunt today by pitching a one-hit game to turn back the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 1.

McGee's bid for no-hit fame was spoiled by Goody Rosen, Dodger centerfielder, who singled to left to open the sixth and then came all the way home as Ducky Medwick let the ball go through his legs for a three-base error. It was the second time this season that Rosen spoiled a no-hitter, for on April 24 he got the only hit off Hal Schumacher as the Giant right-hander shut out Brooklyn, 1-0.

Besides turning back the Dodgers in order in seven of the nine innings, fanning nine and walking only one, McGee got two of the Cards' eight hits off Luke Hamlin and figured in both runs. He singled in the third, then scored on Stu Martin's double, and drove Don Padgett home with the deciding tally in the seventh with another single.

1,160 to Play For U.S. Open Golf Crown

Entry List Much Larger Than Expected This Year.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—One of the largest entry lists in the history of the National Open Golf championship was assured for this year's tournament when the United States Golf Association estimated that 1,160 had been received when the deadline fell late this afternoon.

Since the 1938 championship, to be played June 9-11 at the Cherry Hills Club near Denver, is being staged farther West than ever before, the U. S. G. A. had counted on a substantial drop from last year's record entry of 1,402. The drop, however, was by no means as large as had been expected.

Pending a final check-up, it already is definite that this year's figure will be either the third or fourth largest on the U. S. G. A. books. In addition to last year's, top figures in the past were: 1936, 1,277; 1930, 1,177; 1931, 1,141; 1935, 1,125.

Among the 1,160 names are those of 28 players exempt from the sectional qualifying trials to be held May 31 at 31 points throughout the country. The top 31 players in last year's field automatically became eligible for the 1938 championship proper, but three of them, Walker Cuppers, Johnny Goodman and Charles (Chuck) Kocsis and Former United States Public Links Champion Frank Strafaci, did not enter.

Goodman and Kocsis are abroad with the Walker Cup team, while Strafaci, who recently became an automobile salesman, decided to stick to his job and concentrate on the amateur championship instead.

With 28 players automatically eligible, there will be 142 places in the championship starting field to be contested by about 1,130 players in the sectional tests. Allotment of places to the 31 qualifying points will not be announced until some time next week, after the U. S. G. A. has carefully checked and approved each entry.

One familiar figure who was missing from the picture in 1937, when Ralph Guldahl set a new championship record of 281 in winning the title at Birmingham, Mich., will be back for this forty-first renewal of the open. He is Walter Hagen, winner in 1914 and 1919. The Haig is due in San Francisco the end of this month and will seek to qualify there.

Nats

to play a shortstop and at this writing has made more hits than any player in the league.

Buddy Lewis' performance at third base is entitled to a paragraph by itself. Aside from his remarkable defensive play, young Lewis has blossomed as a power hitter. His ability to get on base is attested by the fact that he leads the entire league in runs scored and in stolen bases.

Thus the Nats pitching obviously has much to answer for in the light of the club's defeats in five of its last six games. Washington's pitchers have been operating in front of a supporting cast that, on general ability, yields nothing to any club in the league. The charge against the Washington hurlers is pretty serious.

Today, the Nats encountered their first postponement of the season when rain washed out their scheduled battle with the Tigers. Since the season's opener on April 18, the Nats have played 28 consecutive games.

Jimmy DeShong will take the mound against the Tigers tomorrow. He will be opposed by "Boots" Poffenberger, who is unbeaten thus far this season.

The Nats are now down to the 23-player limit, but that was no problem for Manager Harris. He could have lopped off two or three pitchers without damage to the club's chances.

Harris still is fond of the prospects of young Ken Chase, despite his wild display against the Tigers yesterday when he walked seven batters in 2 2-3 innings.

"When he gets the ball over, they can't get a loud foul off him," said Harris. "That's encouraging, at least, and I'm going to give him another starting chance in the Cleveland series. I still think he's a big league pitcher."

Indian Office Loses.

By scoring in every inning of the game, the Branch of Buildings Management defeated Indian Office in the I. D. R. A. Softball League, 8 to 6. Brafford's pitching and timely hitting for the winners featured the contest.

Filly Brings Her Backers $4.40 Ticket

Sylvia G. Takes Second Money; Jinneal Is Show Winner.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 17.—Claude Feltner, of Berryville, Va., sent his mighty fit filly, Idyllic, out to circle the local oval today and win the Black Water Falls Purse, outstanding event on the program of the Charles Town Jockey Club. The crowd of 5,000 made Idyllic a $4.40 favorite, and the trim 4-year-old made good by leading from start to finish. Winner of two races on the major tracks in Maryland, Idyllic was capably handled by Lou Machado, who was riding his first winner of the meeting.

Mrs. A. A. Gray's Sylvia G. made a game but futile attempt to catch the daughter of Flying Ebony and finished two lengths behind her with Mrs. H. W. Wageley's Jinneal third in the field of six.

Idyllic ran the seven furlongs in 1:27 4-5 over a fast track. Ideal weather prevailed and favorite backers were right in the majority of the seven events.

A pair of "red hot" choices supplied the chief action in the daily double, Proteus and Blue Prelude teaming to bring those who bet the "5 and 2 combination a $10.40 payoff.

Blond Reel, owned by W. W. Gift, came up as a "good thing" in the first race and ran accordingly, winning by six lengths over Bursting with Zac Time tridd in the field of eight cheap sprinters going 5 furlongs. With Lou Machado in the saddle, Blond Reel broke on top and the others never threatened her. The winner was the favorite at a $4.80 mutuel.

A poor start marred the second race, but the favorite players made it two straight winners when Proteus proved superior to the seven sent postward with him. Fair Boy broke through just before the starting bell, but swerved outride of the field and interfered with only one horse, Big Toney. Proteus soon went to the front, withstood an early challenge from Silver Arch and won by four lengths to pay $4.40.

Blue Prelude kept the string of winning choice intact in the third race, presenting her backers with a $5.40 pay off after leading seven 3-year-olds to the wire over the "Charles Town" distance. Grumpy and Needmore chased the winner to the wire.

Sammy Palumbo, champion jockey here for several meetings, rode his firt winner of the current session when he brought White Sweets along in time to take a length and a half decision over Royal Veil in the fourth race, named "the Hanging Rock Purse." Tuleyries Star was third in the field of eight. The winner paid $9.20.

The day's fifth winning favorite walked in with the sixth race. Jockey Bobby Root brought Best Policy from off the pace to win the mile and one-sixteenth test. Best Policy paid $4.60 and let Chatterdoo home by four lengths. Lovely Amelia was third in the group of seven.

The card ended with a $46.60 shot when Chatteress, favored by feather weight, finished a length in advance of Sweepemup with Mantados third.

Cross Keys Wins, Beats Favorite

Churchill Downs, May 17 (AP).—Besting a field of eight, of which six are eligible for the Kentucky Oaks, Cross Keys, 3-year-old filly from the stable of Midkiff & Wells, won the feature event here today, with the favorite, Shining Heels, second, and Fantine third. Abanico and Play Dis are not eligible for the stake.

Taking command soon after the start, the victor set her own pace and continued on to win by one length. Shining Heels, taken to the inside in the stretch drive, failed to get up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROTEUS, $4.40, $3.00, $2.40; SILVER ARCH, $3.80, $2.80; CANYNGE, $8.40.

PROTEUS had speed to go to front at first turn, drew out on SILVER ARCH gradually and was much the best. SILVER ARCH followed close to leader under hustling tactics and tired under punishment in closing stages. CANYNGE was hard ridden throughout. FAIR BOY bolted out of gate before bell and swerved to outside. BIG TONEY had to pull up at break.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town Course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:32½. Off 3:36½. Winner, Mrs. G. H. Pearce's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE PRELUDE, $5.40, $3.00, $2.40; GRUMPY, $4.20, $3.00; NEEDMORE, $3.00.

BLUE PRELUDE, rushed to top in opening furlong, was rated while setting good pace and was in hand at end. GRUMPY, slightly tardy at the break, was rushed to contention and closed gamely under punishment. NEEDMORE was hard ridden throughout, but weakened in final test. MERIDIAN TIME went evenly, but was no serious factor. The others were not prominent.

Daily Double, Proteus and Blue Prelude, Paid $10.40.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:06. Off 4:06. Winner, Mrs. G. Hutchins' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHITE SWEETS, $9.20, $4.20, $3.00; ROYAL VEIL, $5.00, $3.00; TULEYRIES STAR, $2.40.

WHITE SWEETS, mildly urged while closest to pace of ROYAL VEIL, rallied strongly when shaken up and wore down pacemaker to win going away. ROYAL VEIL broke poorly, was rushed up to set pace and saved much ground, but tired in final eighth. TULEYRIES STAR was forward factor throughout and hung in final stages. TROSTAR had some early speed.

FIFTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500. The Black Water Falls. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:30½. Off 4:34. Winner, C. Feltner's br. f. (4), by Flying Ebony—Dorothy Whitemore. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $360; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IDYLLIC, $4.40, $2.60, $2.40; SYLVIA G., $3.40, $2.80; JINNEAL, $3.40.

IDYLLIC, first away, opened a lead on SYLVIA G. and was kept to drive to end. SYLVIA G. had good speed from start, was slightly blocked when attempting to go to inside of IDYLLIC nearing first turn and was hard ridden thereafter. JINNEAL showed a good effort. MY SURPRISE closed with good courage. SEA BOY was practically left; moved up to contention and stopped. GREAT GUNS was a distant trailer throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:01½. Off 5:02. Winner, A. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATTERESS, $46.60, $19.20, $7.00; SWEEPEMUP, $10.40, $6.20; MANTADOS, $4.40.

CHATTERESS, outrun for half, improved position gradually, rallied sharply to drive and disposed of SWEEPEMUP and MANTADOS in final sixteenth. SWEEPEMUP, first away, was steadied along in pace and MANTADOS was sent to front and came again with good energy in closing test. MANTADOS was hurried into lead, set pace and weakened in final eighth. LADY CIREK, off sluggishly, was rushed to contention and quit after six furlongs.

Indian Spring Women Defeat Chevy Chase in Golf Team Matches

Booker-Hill Duo Scores For Losers

Congressional Holds Its Lead by Defeat of Manor Players.

Indian Spring women's team again defeated Chevy Chase in the first team play yesterday, although Mrs. Betty Meckley, captain, was a loser for the third time in a row. She paired with Marion Brown and lost 2½ points to Mrs. Bishop Hill and Mrs. Y. E. Booker. The matches were played at Chevy Chase.

Congressional defeated Manor, 8 to 1, in the second team play at Washington, and now leads with 35½ points; Army and Navy won, 8 to 1, over Chevy Chase; Washington won, 5 to 4, over Beaver Dam, and Columbia trounced Woodmont in other second team matches.

Congressional, also leader among the third teams, won, 8½ to ½, at Chevy Chase, over Army and Navy, to boost its lead to 28 points. Kenwood won over Columbia, and Indian Spring defeated Manor in other matches.

Gonzaga Virtually Clinches Golf Title

Gonzaga High School virtually clinched the championship of the Metropolitan Prep School Golf League yesterday by defeating the erstwhile co-leader, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 7-2, at Columbia Country Club.

Bethesda, playing without Daivid Ross, its captain and No. 1 player and Ernest Lord, its No. 4 player, who were declared ineligible just prior to the match, was no match for the smooth-stroking Purple.

Gonzaga snapped the already weakened Bethesda morale by grabbing the first foursome with ridiculous ease. Buddy Sharkey defeated Tucker, 9 and 8, and then Quinn beat Di Blasi, 8 and 7, to give Gonzaga best ball by 9 and 8.

Bethesda's only points came as Holland trimmed Beuchert, of Gonzaga, 1 up in the third foursome and teamed with Bolston to take best ball, and 2.

In another league match, Rockville turned back Devitt Prep, 5-0, at White Flint.

Results follow:

GONZAGA, 7; BETHESDA, 2.

Sharkey (G.) defeated Tucker (B. C. C.), 9 and 8; Quinn (G.) defeated Di Blasi, 8 and 7. Best ball, Gonzaga, 9 and 8.

Fitzgerald (G.) defeated Burgess, 2 up. Bodnar (G.) defeated Sullivan, 3 and 1. Best ball, Gonzaga, 3 and 2.

Holland (B. C. C.) defeated Beuchert (G.); Springer (G.) defeated Bolton), 2 up. Best ball, Bethesda, 3 and 2.

ROCKVILLE, 5; DEVITT, 1.

Kuster (R.) defeated Kahn, 8 and 6; Elfish (R.) defeated Andrews, 5 and 3. Best ball, Rockville, 9 and 8.

Holland (R.) defeated Junck, 9 and 7; Bageant (D.) defeated Weaver, 7 and 6. Best ball, Rockville, 7 and 6.

Clements' Hit Gives Pepco 3-1 Victory

Paul Clements' single in the seventh inning, driving in two runs, won a 3-to-1 victory for Pepco over the Union Printer's team yesterday on the North Ellipse diamond.

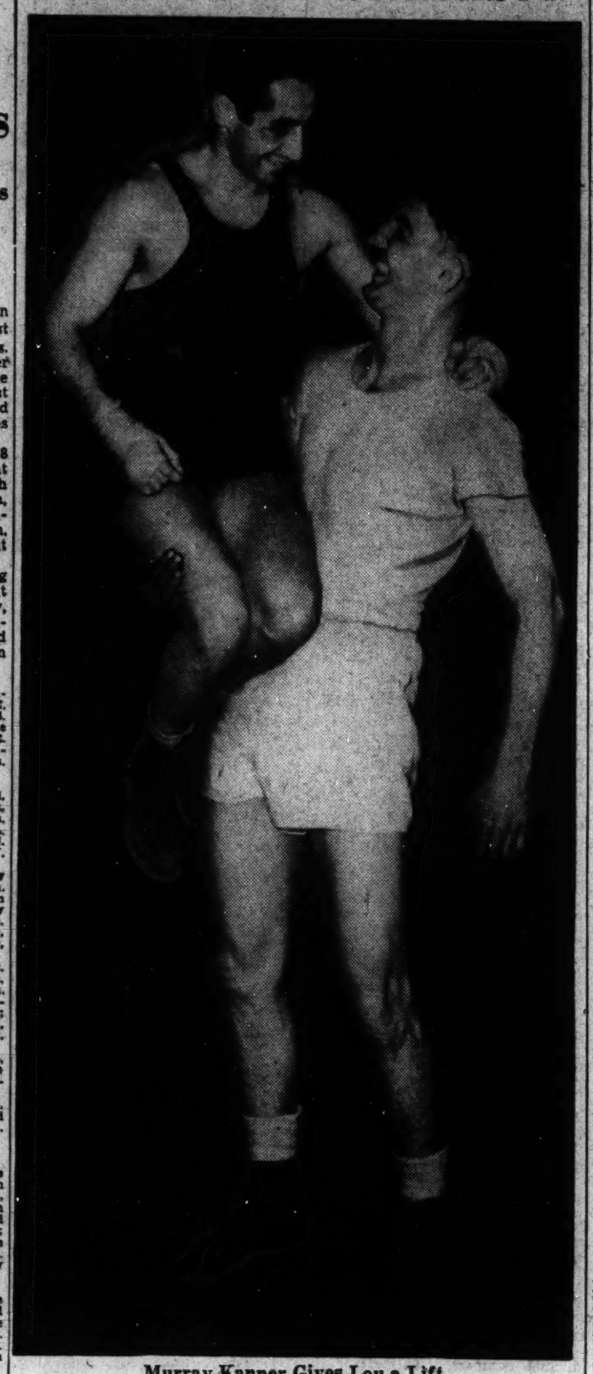
Gevinson Gets a Boost From His Pal



Murray Kanner Gives Lou a Lift.

Gevinson's Antics on Road Indicate a Race for Sarron

Lou's Bunions Hold Up Well in 3½-Mile Ankle Excursion Through Potomac Park.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

If Lou Gevinson blows the duke tomorrow night in his bout with Petey Sarron it won't be because he isn't in condition. We watched the portside pugilist do his last heavy piece of roadwork early yesterday morning, and were smitten by the happy thought that if Sarron does catch up with him at any time during the 10 rounds he's going to be too exhausted to hit him a good lick.

Gevinson scampered 3½ miles around East Potomac Park, burning a crisp, brown fringe around Tommy Doerer's public golf links with his flying feet. He negotiated the distance in 20-odd minutes, and pulled up as fresh as this morning's eggs. Cross my heart, he wasn't breathing as hard as a canary, and could have gone another 3½ miles without effort.

He looked so good we got to wondering whether Manager Matt Twomey actually was grooming him for Sarron or a race with the winner of the War Admiral-Seabiscuit duel. Lou would be a cinch in the third at Charles Town—and could carry Twomey in the bargain.

"You're gonna see roadwork as all the great champions have done it," Twomey warned us as we demounted from our own rusty jallope and climbed up beside him on the driver's seat of his sleek limousine. "You're gonna see real roadwork," he repeated. Then to Gevinson, "Cast off there, bub." The nautical command puzzled us, but only momentarily. Admiral Twomey had scented a breath of ocean-going air from the nearby Potomac.

Garbed in a heavy suede jacket, light cap and long, form-fitting training pants, he reminded us of an absent-minded gent rushing from home—minus trousers—in a desperate effort to catch the 8:15. He ran as smoothly as a veteran trackman, a la Glen Cunningham, and even had a finishing "kick."

Coming down the home stretch he suddenly started galloping sideways. We rubbed our sleepy eyes to make sure they weren't deceiving us and looked again. He was still traveling sidewise, like a skittish colt.

"You'd better get out and turn him around," we told Twomey. "Something's gone wrong with his machinery."

"What are you talking about?" he demanded with a scornful look. "That's the way Tunney worked. If you use that gait only once during the whole fight it's worth having. Tunney used it in his second fight with Dempsey at Chicago, and it saved him. Man, alive, that's important."

We rode another hundred yards without speaking, admiring the odd-sized craft lying peacefully at anchor in the channel. Then your correspondent looked at Gevinson again. He was running backward.

"Look, look," we yelled. "He's in reverse. You'd better get out and wind him up again."

Twomey clucked forlornly a couple of times. "That's part of the routine. We do that every time we come out."

"You mean, you get out there and run backwards, too?" we asked reaching for the door handle.

"No, no. I drive the car and pace him, but Lou does that every time he runs. All your great champions did it, and it's a good thing for any fighter. It gives 'em foot. A fighter's got to have plenty of foot when he goes in against a man like Sarron. Don't make any mistake about what he's doing, it's important."

Then it dawned on us that this is Gevinsons' plan of battle. He'll let Sarron chase him nine rounds, wear him out, then step in and flatten him.

"Nothing of the sort," Twomey snorted. "If there's gonna be any chasing, my boy's going to do it. We haven't run from anybody yet, and we're not gonna start now."

Gevinson pulled up on the tenth tee of "A" course and finished off with light calisthenics. He was just breaking into a sweat when he came back to the car.

"He'll go home, now," Matt volunteered, "take a sponge bath, have breakfast, and get right down to the office."

"You going to eat anything special for breakfast, Lou?" we asked.

"No," he replied.

"No," Twomey interrupted. "It won't be real heavy food, though."

"No," we thought. "If that guy eats like he runs, it'll be a bale of hay, bucket of oats and pailful of water."

Hail Wolcott As a Second Jesse Owens

Rice Sprinter, Olympic Threat, to Specialize in Hurdle Events.

By the Associated Press.

Houston, Tex., May 17.—Cotton-Topped Freddie Wolcott looks like the man they've been paging since dusky Jesse Owens quit the amateurs.

Blond as the former Ohio State star is chocolate, the Rice Institute hurdler is a sensation track coaches believe will improve before the 1940 Olympic games roll around at Tokyo, Japan.

Only four years of track experience are behind the 22-year-old West Texan—hurdling never entered his mind. Until his senior year at Snyder (Tex.) High School. Yet, the smooth stride of his long legs in both the 120-yard high and 220-yard low hurdles already has carried him to five new marks in 11 meets.

Two more appearances are on his calendar, the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet at Minneapolis June 17 and 18, and the National A. A. U. at Buffalo, N. Y., July 2 and 3.

Nervous little Emmett Brunson, the Rice coach, has decided to enter Wolcott only in the hurdle events of the two big meets.

True it is that Wolcott has stepped the 100-yard dash twice in 9.5 this season and is the anchor man on a great Rice sprint relay team that shattered the Drake Relays mark, but Brunson believes a bit of specializing in the timber events will give the tow-headed youngster a shot at some American and world records.

Wolcott bettered the Texas, Drake and Kansas Relays high hurdles marks and came along in the Southwest Conference meet last week to hang up new times in the high and low hurdles.

A tail wind aided him on his 13.9-second trip over the high sticks at the Texas relays, keeping him from filing a claim for the American record—now at 14 seconds—but his other feats were under ordinary conditions. He did 14 seconds flat in a triangular meet with the University of Texas A. and M.

Veteran Track Coach Clyde Littlefield, of the University of Texas, tags Wolcott as one of the Southwest's finest products of all times. He should. Wolcott scored the 16¾ points that ended the Texans' six-year reign as Southwest Conference champs.

Zaharias Added To Mat Program

George Zaharias, who tossed Jake Patterson last week in the semifinal of Joe Turner's weekly mat show, has been added to the card scheduled Friday night at the arena. His opponent will be Roy Schyler, a recent importation from Columbus, Ohio.

Bobby Bruns and Orville Brown are meeting a third time in the feature engagement.

Chaconas Softball Team Defeats Kavokos, 5-2

Chaconas defeated Kavokos, 5-2, in a Sherwood Playground softball league game yesterday.

War Admiral Is Ready

New York, May 17 (AP).—Close to the peak, Samuel Riddle's War Admiral swung over a slow mile in 1:49, pulled up in a mile and an eighth in 2:05, at Belmont Park today.

The Admiral is fit and ready for his mile and a quarter duel with Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit, Memorial Day, and Trainer George Conway is taking no chances of the champion slipping over the peak.

Seabiscuit was given a virtual lay-off after his good workout of yesterday when he stepped the mile and an eighth in 1:55 3-5 and then was eased up the additional furlong of the mile and a quarter in 2:11 3-5.

Lynch Is Given Navy Sword

Annapolis, Md., May 17.—It was announced this afternoon by the superintendent of the Naval Academy that Frank C. Lynch, jr., of Kansas City, Mo., had been awarded the sword of the Navy Athletic Association as having personally excelled in athletics during the past scholastic year.

Lynch, a towering midshipman of 218 pounds and 6 feet 4 inches, was a tackle on the eleven, center on the basketball five and tosses the weights on the field and track team, being the holder of Naval Academy records with both the shot and the discus.

During the various scholastic years, Lynch won three "N-Stars," given only to those who take part in winning contests with the Army and was the only midshipman in the history of the academy to accomplish this.

Lynch is the "five-striper," or midshipman commander of the regiment.

To William T. Ingram, third, of Jeffersonville, Ind., scion of the Navy's most noted athletic family, who was the winner of the sword last year, was assigned the honor of having his name engraved on the Thomas trophy cup as having done the most to promote athletics during the year.

Ingram is a football back, a basketball guard and center and now is captain of the nine, on which he plays left field. He is doing fine work this season.

Relieve Torture of Athlete's Foot Tonight

Druggist's "Double-Action" Ringworm Treatment Must Give Relief or Your Money Back

There is one sure way to get relief from the torturing discomfort of Athlete's Foot . . . be certain you destroy both kinds of germs that cause the trouble. This stubborn disorder can be caused by either vegetable (fungus) or animal parasites. In many cases there is a "mixed" infection, so don't waste time with single-barreled remedies that do only a half-way job. What you need is a treatment that acts against both types of germs.

Ask your druggist for A•M SOLUTION. It is designed to combat both vegetable and animal parasites, and owes its great success to this double-action function. Apply clean, easy-to-use A•M SOLUTION tonight. It penetrates the irritated tissues and almost instantly stops the itching discomfort. Quickly helps to speed away the scales, sores and blisters. Use this preparation for 5 days and if your Athlete's Foot, ringworm, jockey itch has not improved to your entire satisfaction, your money will be refunded. Ask your druggist for A•M SOLUTION, only 50c, and don't take anything else. am

Wheat Prices Fall Further To 4-Year Lows

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 27.—Eclipsing again and again four-year bottom price records, wheat tumbled 1⅝ cents a bushel here today and 2¼ cents at Winnipeg. Increased likelihood of bumper yields both in the United States and Canada did much to pull values down. Widespread beneficial rains fell, Southwest and Northwest alike, and the forecast indicated further heavy downpours.

Lower quotations brought some enlargement of export demand. Late estimates were that Europe purchased 700,000 bushels today from North America, and that 265,000 bushels of Kansas and Oklahoma wheat would be loaded out of Houston this week, the first export shipment from Houston in six years.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅞ to 1⅜ cents lower, compared with yesterday's finish: May, 78⅜@78½; July, 75⅞@76. Corn, ⅛ to ½ down; May, 57⅛@57¼; July, 58¼@58⅜. Oats, ½ off to ⅛ up. Rye, unchanged to 1⅛ decline, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to 10 cents advanced.

Sun's Bid Low For Fast Ships

By the Associated Press.

The Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., of Chester, Pa., was the apparent low bidder yesterday on contracts for building four steel cargo vessels designed to be the fastest ships of their class in American foreign trade. The ships will be expected to make 16.5 knots per hour.

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co., of New York was low, however, on a contract for constructing all four vessels on a "fixed sum" basis. The American Export Lines of New York would operate the ships between the United States and Mediterranean ports.

On a fixed sum basis, the Sun Co. bid $2,750,000 for construction of a single vessel, and $2,630,000 each for construction of four ships. On the basis of a price to be adjusted to fluctuations in labor and materials cost, the Sun Co. bid $2,650,000 for building a single ship, and $2,530,000 for each of four vessels.

Bethlehem bid only on a fixed sum basis, proposing to construct the ships at Quincy, Mass. The Bethlehem bid on a single ship was $2,893,000, and on each of four vessels, $2,559,000.

Other bidders were New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, N. J., Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation, Newport News, Va., and the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., Kearney, N. J.

Daily Oil Output Drops 33,364 Bbls.

Tulsa, May 17 (AP).—Production of crude petroleum in the United States declined 33,364 barrels daily during the week ended May 14 to an average of 3,341,011 barrels daily, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma declined 2,125 to 484,650 barrels daily, East Texas dropped 8,242 to 425,657 and the State of Texas was down 36,118 to 1,319,379. Louisiana decreased 539 barrels daily to 261,705 and California dropped 2,740 to 687,750. Kansas production was up 11,550 barrels daily to 174,450.

June Bond Maturities.

New York, May 17.—Corporate bond maturities during June will total $49,180,000, according to the Standard Statistics Co.

Germany Plans Big Increase in Steel Output

Reich Production in First 2 Months Exceeded That of U. S.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 17.—Germany, moving toward self-sufficiency in iron and steel, has launched a "four-year plan" which includes construction of 32 blast furnaces and 3 new steelworks, the magazine Steel says today.

American equipped builders have been asked to submit figures on the project and an American engineering firm, H. A. Brassert & Co., Chicago, has the contract for building both furnaces and steelworks. Eight of the furnaces and one steelworks are under way on the Salzgitter ore beds near Brunswick in northern Germany.

The additional steel-making capacity will be designed to operate on the lean native German ores, will tend to make Germany self-sufficient in iron and steel products in case of war, and will further strengthen her position as the second largest steel-producing country in the world.

Austria a Factor.

Newly acquired Austria will play an important part in these plans. Although Austria has little steelmaking capacity, it has iron ore deposits estimated at 200,000,000 tons and averaging about 30 per cent iron. Germany in the past has been handicapped by lack of rich native ore, German ore averaging only 23 to 25 per cent iron. Since loss of the rich Lorraine deposits to France in 1919, Germany has been forced to import high-grade ore, principally from Spain and Sweden.

For the past five years Germany has ranked second only to the United States in steel production. In the first two months this year, after United States production dropped to about one-third of capacity, Germany outproduced the United States. Germany's position compared with other leading producers may be gathered from the following 1937 production figures:

	Gross tons.
Germany	19,380,000
Russia	17,000,000
Great Britain	12,900,000
France	7,825,000

Sales of 'Light' Steel Set New Record

New York, May 17 (AP).—In 1937, for the second consecutive year, the output of "light" steel products—the bulk of which go into consumer goods—broke all previous records, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today.

Nearly 16,884,000 gross tons of steel sheets, strip, black plate for tinning, and wire rods were produced in 1937, about 5 per cent more than the previous high output of 15,995,000 tons in 1936, and nearly 25 per cent more than the 13,640,000 tons in 1929.

Business Failures.

New York, May 17 (AP).—Business failures in the United States for the week ended May 12 totaled 231, unchanged from the previous week and compared with 190 a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Rally From Early Weakness and Close With Small Gains; U. S. Bonds Lower.

New York, May 17.—Stocks closed with a firm tone after early weakness and an afternoon of backing and filling. Closing prices were near the best, with a majority of small gains. Sales volume was around 400,000 shares. Government bonds weakened. July wheat lost a cent at 75⅛ cents a bushel.

Nothing happened along the business road to stimulate stocks, but the tone stiffened a bit around the middle of the day after morning trading had reduced quotations by a point or more in leading issues. Another cut in steel scrap prices of 50 cents was announced from Pittsburgh, and the banking return showed the decline in commercial borrowing goes on. The market is now enjoying some relief from the flood of corporation reports for first quarter that kept sentiment depressed last month, but the experience will have to be relived in July, and probably more fortitude will be required of investors.

Gold Shares Rise.

Regardless of the bearish implications of news and views, the feeling is well maintained that the market may have seen the worst for the present and that it will pay to hold tickets in the next price drawing. Some interesting movements took place in the mining group. Gold shares advanced fairly well, but coppers had an early setback. Rails leaned a bit toward the minus side. Only one sale was made in New York Central during the best part of the early trading.

Armour of Delaware preferred jumped 4¾ points on one sale. After dipping below par duPont recovered a point. Eastman rose 2 points in easy fashion. General Mills climbed into new high ground, as did Federal Mining preferred and Household Finance. Both classes of Hudson & Manhattan were active around the year's best prices on the examiner's recommendation for an 8-cent fare.

Losses of 1 to 2 points on light volume were suffered by United Fruit, Penick & Ford, Midland Steel, Lehigh Portland Cement, International Agriculture preferred, General Outdoor Advertising A, Goodrich preferred and Congoleum.

Monetary Management.

While industry continues to show no sign of improvement, the consensus in the financial district is that at least the door has been thrown ajar for improvement by means of reversal in credit deflation involved in the bank reserve requirements and sterilization of gold. So far the only appreciable effects of that reversal of policy on the part of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board have been lower rates on Treasury loans and preparations for a few industrial loans, chief of which is the United States Steel Corporation's $100,000,000 in debentures to be offered shortly. However, the steel loan is an operation forced by the slump in business, in part, and by the need for a cushion of cash against a prolongation of the depression.

It is agreed that merely dumping another billion or so of excess reserves into the money market won't in itself help business. Other measures are badly needed, calculated to restore the confidence of businessmen in their ability to make and hold profits. Instead of finding much promise of anything of the sort, the businessman reads that the President plans to bring up again his reorganization bill, that he intends to force passage of the wages and hours bill and that he has no thought of putting an end to the use of Federal money for the suffocation of private enterprise, particularly in the public utility field.

Gold.

The price of gold in the London open market, expressed in dollars, is sinking gradually toward the point at which American banks may again find it profitable to import. Though the sterling price today rose a half-penny, the decline in sterling at the time the price was fixed made an American equivalent of $34.77, a drop of about 2 cents overnight and the lowest since April 11. Gold sales in London today were only $1,280,000.

Queen & Crescent.

The extra $5 dividend declared by Queen & Crescent, in addition to the regular $5, will be welcomed by several roads, particularly the Baltimore & Ohio. About 668.5 per cent of C., N. O., T & P. stock is owned by South Western Construction Co.

Technicolor 4 Months' Net Tops 1937 Total

New York, May 17.—Earnings of Technicolor, Inc., for the four months ended April 30 were estimated at $475,000 by Herbert T. Kalmus, president, at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. Net in the first quarter was $361,339. The profit for four months, he said, exceeds the net of $468,169 shown for the full year 1937.

B. & O. owns 37 per cent of the stock of South Western. Southern Railway and Alabama, Great Southern also will share in South Western's share of the Queen & Crescent dividend.

Default.

While actual earnings of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway for 1937 amounted to approximately $1.20 a share on outstanding common stock, it has been pointed out that the N. O., T. & M. has about $12,000,0000 of unpaid matured interest on its books. Commonstockholders are still some distance away from the $7 annual dividend which was paid up to 1931.

Continental Securities.

The curb exchange might as well drop Continental Securities, the investment trust involved in grave charges of financial hocus-pocus. The range for the shares this year is 4 to 3¼ and the last sale was two months ago. The present quotation is 1-16 of a dollar bid and 2⅛ on stock offered for sale. The scandal calls to mind the overexuberance of Wall Street for the formation of investment trusts in the summer and autumn of 1929, during a peroid in which the stock market otherwise probably would have gone into a decline. The excessive turnover of shares as the newly formed trusts bid for stocks held by individuals helped to raise prices to excessive heights and accentuate the crash later.

Financial Madness.

Even the most conservative people in Wall Street caught some of the contagion for the investment trusts. Those with less balance stopped at little and the remains of their efforts still can be seen bleaching in the sun along the highway. In some instances the desire for control of certain companies and certain industries was at the bottom of the trust manufacturing business; in others it was the wish to provide for a set of founding fathers a comfortable income; in still others the motive was the desire of brokerage firms sponsoring the trusts to secure a source of orders on which they could collect commissions. No matter what the motive, the interests of the public investor in the shares often was lost in the dust raised in the jockeying around the starting post.

Farm Prices.

There is little doubt but that Mr. Wallace and his cohorts will tour the farming regions to secure consent of grain and cotton growers to some sort of subsidy in return for acreage reduction, for it looks as though the large crops combined with depression in consumption will force down prices. The Department of Agriculture is a bit bearish. A current bulletin of the department says there is little prospect for an early improvement in demand for farm products. The department takes the current Washington view that the depression has hit bottom, but thinks consumption of grains will continue low and that less cotton will be consumed. The public's chances of having lower food and clothing prices will be as slim as the Government can make them.

3 Million Suit Names Nation's Largest Banks

Continental Sec. Trustee Accuses 91 Defendants of Loot Plot.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—A civil suit for $3,300,000 today faced 91 individuals and corporations—some of them high in the Nation' financial circles—accused of conspiring to loot investment trusts.

Arthur A. Ballantine, trustee for the Continental Securities Corporation, in Federal District Court, charged that in October, 1937, the corporation possessed holdings with a market value of approximately $3,370,000, but were worth only $50,000 last March, when he was appointed trustee.

The suit claimed this constituted "a dissipation, waste and depletion within a period of less than five months of more than $3,300,000."

American and Canadian financiers named in the suit also were charged with conspiring to obtain control of investment trusts for the purpose of "looting and wasting the treasuries and assets thereof."

Corporations, banks and firms among the defendants included Paine, Webber & Co.; Granberry & Co., Prentice & Brady, the National City Bank of New York and the Westinghouse Electric International Co.

Individual Defendants.

Individual defendants included Vincent E. Ferretti, George H. Clayton, Philip A. Frear, James A. Frear, S. Leo Solomont, George J. Mitchell, jr.; George H. Clayton, jr.; Thomas W. Morris, Ralph H. Robb, Fred A. Ross and Chester A. Dunham.

Paine, Webber & Co. issued a statement saying:

"The firm was asked last October to make a loan against collateral consisting of marketable securities which we were advised were to be liquidated. The securities were delivered to our representative at a bank and our counsel was furnished with a vote of the corporation authorizing the sale of the securities and the disposition of the proceeds.

"The securities were liquidated and the proceeds were paid over in accordance with the terms of the vote and the direction of the parties named. Paine, Webber & Co. received only the regular commission on the sales of the securities and interest on the loans at the customary rate."

Mo. Pac. $8,778,893 Short of Fixed Charges

St. Louis, May 17 (AP).—Trustee Guy A. Thompson reported today the Missouri Pacific Railroad failed by $8,778,893 to meet its fixed charges of $21,119,648 in 1937. Net railway operating income for the year amounted to $11,003,378, as compared with $11,047,319 for 1936. Miscellaneous additions to income brought the amount available to meet the fixed charges to $12,340,754.

Railroad Votes Extra.

Cincinnati, May 17 (AP).—An extra dividend of $5 on common stock of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway was declared by directors here today. The regular semi-annual dividend of $5 on common stock was announced. Both payments will be made June 24 to shareholders of record June 3. Last year an extra disbursement of $2.50 was declared on the common stock.

Penn. Reports March Loss.

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad reported a net loss for March of $323,493 against a profit for the month in 1937 of $3,514,125.

SEC Won't Dismiss E. F. Hutton & Co. Case

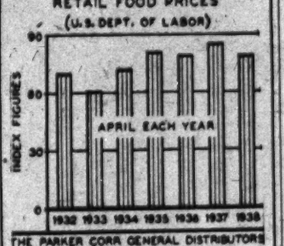
The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday denied the motion made by counsel for E. F. Hutton & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, to dismiss the proceedings to determine whether Gerald M. Loeb and Gordon B. Crary, individually and as partners of E. F. Hutton & Co., and H. Terry Morrison individually, should be suspended or expelled from membership on certain national securities exchanges.

Budd Mfg. to Build 50 Steel Trailers

Philadelphia, May 17.—The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co. announced today it had received an order for 50 light-weight stainless steel motor freight semi-trailers from Horton Motor Lines, Inc.

The order for 50 new units will increase the Horton fleet of stainless steel trailers to 66. They will operate from Charlotte, N. C., to New York City, Atlanta and other Eastern cities.

Retail Food Prices Advance in April



THE PARKER CORR GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., May 17.—The retail food price index went up during April with a sharp advance in the prices of fruits, vegetables and meats, but the Department of Labor's index for all retail foods for April was 7 per cent below a year ago.

Curb Utilities Are Resistant

New York, May 17 (AP).—A brief period of buying in utilities gave the curb market a better appearance in the final hour today after a listless session in which most groups worked lower.

Final gainers of minor fractions to nearly a point included Northern States Power "A" at 12¼, Electric Bond & Share 8, Pan American Airways 14⅝, Pittsburgh Plate Glass 75, Columbia Oil & Gas 3¾ and Lake Shore Mines 49¾.

Unchanged to lower were Niagara Hudson Power, Pioneer Gold, Sherwin Williams, American Cyanamid "B," American Gas, Creole Petroleum and United Light & Power "A."

Turnover amounted to 93,000 shares, compared with 85,000 yesterday.

Treasury Purchases.

The Treasury said yesterday that it made net purchases of $2,480,250 of Government securities in April for Government trust funds, compared with $23,348,500 in March.

Cotton Steady; July 8.63 Cents

New York, May 17 (AP).—Cotton ruled steady today in quiet trading. Scattered buying and unfavorable weather in the Western belt were steadying influences. October advanced from 8.66 to 8.74 and closed at 8.70, with final quotations 1 to 4 points net higher.

The market opened unchanged to 3 points higher. Limited foreign selling was absorbed by light trade price fixing, and the market soon advanced to net gains of 5 to 8 points. Hedge selling believed to be for Brazilian account became more of a factor in the late market.

Farm Income 19 Per Cent Below 1937

New York, May 17.—Farm cash income from marketings declined to $512,000,000 in March this year from $596,000,000 in the same month last year. Consequently, total farm income for the month was 19.2 per cent smaller than a year ago, declining from $708,000,000 to $572,000,000. This decrease in income was greater than the drop in the prices of goods which the farmers bought. The net result was a 14.7 per cent decrease in the farmer's purchasing power.

The showing in March was less favorable than in the first two months of 1938. This is indicated by comparing the first quarter figures for this year and last. For this period total income amounted to $1,679,000,000 last year, a decrease of 13.7 per cent. This compares with the decrease of 19.2 per cent for March alone. The farmers' purchasing power in the first quarter was 9.8 per cent lower than a year ago, as compared with the decrease of 14.7 per cent in March.

Although farm income in the first quarter was only 13.7 per cent smaller than a year ago, the definite tendency of the spread to widen in March supports the expectation that, for the full year, farm income will show at least as great a drop from last year's annual figure as the 19.4 per cent decline from 1929 to 1930.

Bob Burns Says—

I know a lot of politicians are just groping around in the dark tryin' to balance the budget and all they can think of is higher taxes, but they would find another solution mighty quick if the high taxes hurt them as much as they do some of the taxpayers.

It's like my Aunt Boor. She only had one lamp and she use'ta pour the coffee in the dark kitchen while the lamp was in the dining room. When I asked her how she could pour the coffee in the dark without spillin' it, she said, "Well, when the coffee gets up to the first joint of my thumb, I stop."

FHA Releases First General Housing Film

100 Banking, Government Chiefs See Movie of U. S. Foreign Projects.

Designed to show that housing "is a business, not a philosophy," the first general movie prepared by the Federal Housing Administration was previewed yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Archives Building.

Aproximately 100 banking, Government and business leaders attended the showing, which was prefaced with a short introduction by Stewart McDonald, the Federal Housing Administrator.

The movie will be cut, edited and released for presentation throughout the Nation, McDonald said.

Glimpses of what has been done in housing programs of the Scandinavian countries, England, Germany, Switzerland and Palestine were given first.

"We are first in many things, but we are extremely slow to attack our housing problems. The countries of Europe are far ahead of us, as these pictures so clearly show," McDonald said.

Colonial Village and Buckingham in Arlington, Va., and the Falkland Center at Silver Spring, Md., were among the large FHA housing projects shown and explained in the movie.

Not all the good housing developments shown for this country were financed by the FHA. Some of them dated back to the 1890's.

"Whenever housing has been considered an investment and not a speculation, it has paid as a business proposition," McDonald declared. "To be a good investment, however, it must be correctly planned both for the welfare of the tenant and in regard to the growth and plan of the community."

Among guests at the showing were William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York; Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, and 11 other members of the advisory council of the Federal Reserve System, who were here yesterday for a meeting; Herman Oliphant, general counsel for the Treasury Department; Leo Crawley, chairman of FDIC; Senator Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa; JoJhn Ihlder, executive officer of the Alley Dwelling Authority Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post; T. D. Webb, of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; Sam Husband, chairman of the Federal National Mortgage Association; Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, of the Department of Agriculture.

Adm. R. M. Watt Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Rear Admiral Richard Morgan Watt, 66, Construction Corps, U. S. Navy, retired, who died Sunday in Philadelphia, will be held at 3 p. m., today, in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

After graduating from the Naval Academy in 1891, Admiral Watt attended Glasgow University, Scotland, from which he received the degree of bachelor of science in naval architecture two years later.

He was a member of the Shipping Board Claims Commission from 1921 until 1924 and then for six years was manager of the Industrial Department, Philadelphia Navy Yard. In 1930 he was appointed inspector of naval material, Philadelphia, and retired from active duty six years later.

Admiral Watt is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bessie Davis Watt, and his son, Lieut. Comdr. Richard M. Watt, jr., who is in the Bureau of Construction and Repair, Navy Department.

Funeral for Piffering Is Set This Afternoon

Slum Life in D. C. Shown in Revised WPA Play

'One-Third of Nation' Is a Hit Despite Senators' Objections

WPA-Compiled Play, Including Speeches Legislators Complain of, Plus Washington Interlude, Makes Hit at Preview.

Senators Byrd, Andrews and Tydings notwithstanding, "one-third of a nation" seems to be headed for the Washington hit list.

Dealing with slums and housing, the WPA Living Newspaper production was given its second preview performance at the Wardman Park Hotel last night, presented by the Washington Civic Theater.

Not scheduled to open its regular one-week run until next Sunday, "one-third of a nation" already has been viewed by Supreme Court Justices Roberts and Black, Secretary Morgenthau, Ambassador Troyanovsky, several members of Congress and a bevy of Federal executives.

The dialogue complained of by the three Senators, who are portrayed under their own names, will remain just as it was written, Director F. Coles Strickland said yesterday.

"Every line in the play is taken from life," he declared. "The Senators' speeches pertaining to the Wagner-Steagall bill which are used came right out of the Congressional Record.

"They protested on the ground that use of only some of the quotas, instead of all of them, may create false impressions. Obviously, however, it would be impossible to avoid abridging the speeches and at the same time keep within time limits."

One major change is being made in the script, however. The New York version, still playing, does not treat the slum situation in Washington. For local interest, Strickland and his Civic Theater aids dug up some material on the Capital's tenanted alleys and whipped it together for an extra scene.

Schott's alley, Fenton place and Snows court, three of the ugliest of Washington's alleys, are described to a visitor, who thinks the Capital has nothing but monumental buildings and beautiful residences.

There are 176 inhabited alleys in the National Capital, 4,571 Washington families are without inside running water, and 14,493 have no inside toilet facilities, one is told.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and other headliners are personified in "one-third of a nation," as well as the members of Congress. "But the actors do not attempt to imitate their voices or manerisms," Director Strickland pointed out.

And while he was pointing out, he placed emphasis on the fact that the play's title is spelled correctly only with small letters, and with the dots fore and aft. That, he explained, is to keep the public constantly reminded that the first words were lifted from President Roosevelt's second inaugural address, in which he said he sees "one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished."

The preview peeks Monday and last nights were under auspices of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women. Audiences were large at both performances, heralding a financial success when the regular run begins Sunday, especially since there are no royalties to pay.

Arthur Arent was managing editor—not author—of the play, for which research material was gathered by 26 other WPA workers in New York from hundreds of newspapers, public documents, books, interviews and other sources. The play is now public property, but just the same the WPA Living Newspaper outfit is reported to be somewhat miffed at the show's being given by a private organization.

In preparing the special Washington scene, Civic Theater researchers drew upon the Health Department, Alley Dwelling Authority, Washington Housing Association and other agencies concerned with the slum problem.

Director Strickland said he is a little fearful some of them will jump on the production because the interlude leaves the impression nothing is being done about the Capital's alley shacks.

Reason for that, he said, was that the company wanted to steer clear of the late feud between John Ihlder, director of the Alley Dwelling Authority, and Nathan Straus, United States Housing Administrator, and it was felt that local accomplishments could hardly be mentioned without risking a slight to one or the other.

Straus, incidentally, reserved 16 seats for opening night.

Funeral Is Set Today For Jessie R. Howell
